The Prospect for Queen

All Universities Face Great Increase in Enrolment

Queen's Will Seek To Preserve Essential Characteristics and Assets

It has become a custom for the Principal of the University to speak over the regular Queen's quarter hour on Radio Station CKWS in Kingston at the end of each year. The established practice is to tell the citizens what is happening and what is expected to happen at Queen's. On December 30 Dr. W. A. Mackintosh gave the following talk, which is particularly timely because of the fact that the University is launching a financial campaign in February with the objective of raising for capital purposes from corporate and private sources the sum of $4,000,000.

There is, of course, a multitude of things happening at the University. Some of them, such as the achievement of a football championship, have already been adequately publicized. No one was more pleased than I that the team which had played with such spirit and resourcefulness again won the Yates Cup. I was equally pleased that once the games had been played, football was quickly consigned to history and students went on to other things.

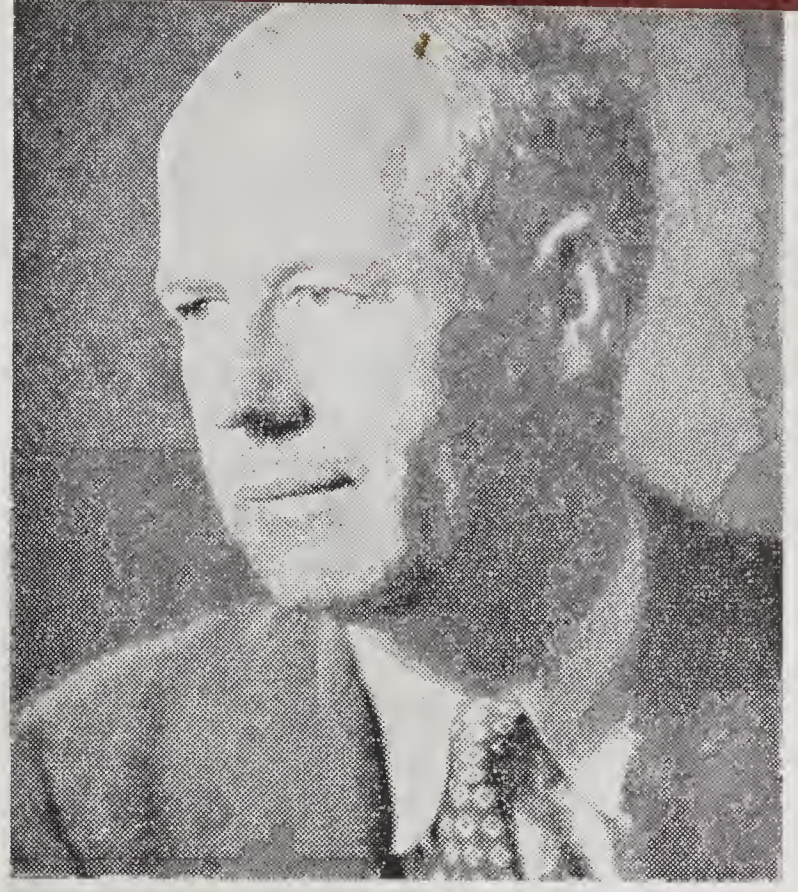

Obviously the most important thing which has been happening at the University in the past three months is that about 2,400 young people from all parts of Canada and about 160 from many other countries of the world have been actively engaged in learning from each other and in learning from about 200 senior scholars who make up the teaching and research staff of the University. The students have varying degrees of interest and competence and the scholars who assist them are at differing stages of their careers and experience. Some of the students will become distinguished scholars and scientists, nearly all will become competent and qualified in a variety of professions and other careers.

This process is the basic work and the basic accomplishment of a university and everything else is merely a means to this end.

There is one notable difference in the circumstances of this generation of students. They are all acutely aware that if they can achieve competence, if not distinction, they are greatly needed. The business community, governments and people at large have been awakened to the great needs of this country for able, trained and competent minds. The moral, governmental, economic, educational and other social problems as well as the purely physical problems of great complex communities and of resource development have become so great that they can no longer be mastered merely by willing work and common sense, though a dash of common sense still helps. Knowledge, expertness and the judgment which comes from imagination applied to a wide background of knowledge and experience are now essential.

I suspect that this sense of being needed will exercise a potent effect on this generation. A few will feel that with the competition slight, they can relax but most are stimulated by it and will rise to the challenge.

DR. W. A. MACKINTOSH

On more than one earlier occasion, I have spoken of the prospect of larger numbers of students. This year we have 2,515 full time students in the regular session, which is nearly 100 more than last year and we can expect that there will be similar increases for the next three or four years. Then about 1960 we shall encounter much larger numbers of applications. Of course, in addition to the full-time students, we reach an even greater number through evening courses, summer courses and correspondence courses. Some of these students are qualifying for degrees, some are preparing for professional examinations and some have the very important purpose of enlarging their knowledge and interests.

The prospect of a great increase in numbers of students in three or four years' time is one which confronts all Canadian universities. It will require very substantial expansion and probably the establishment of some new universities. The particular effect on individual universities will vary according to their special circumstances and opportunities. Probably the maximum impact will fall on universities in large metropolitan centres and on provincial universities since the largest increases in population are right at their doors or they have all-embracing statutory obligations.

While Queen's University will receive less of this impact, we still have to prepare and are preparing for substantial increases. In doing so, however, we are giving careful attention to the preservation of the essential characteristics and assets of the University and are seeking to conserve them.

Not less important is the need to extend university work in quality and to higher levels. Every field of study is expanding and every profession is demanding more extended training, greater knowledge and more intensive research.

The most important and critical means of meeting these needs is the gradual enlargement of the University teaching and research staff with every effort being made to enlarge its competence and increase its quality. This is a matter of careful and unremitting work and the problem is not to be solved by any general formula or by making a speech.

We are already busy providing additional space and equipment. One medical building for teaching and research in Physiology is under construction on Arch Street. We hope in February to have completed the plans for a new medical-clinical building to be erected on the Hospital grounds but owned by the University and used for University work. This building will extend south from Stuart Street just west of the Richardson Laboratory. General plans of a new engineering building on University Avenue have been approved and the architects are preparing detailed plans. Almost as far advanced in planning is an additional men's residence to be located south of McNeill House on Lower Albert Street. It is hoped that construction of these three buildings can begin in the spring or early summer of 1957.

We require also a considerable number of other buildings but they at present have not reached the stage of specific planning.

All of these needs and plans propound large and difficult questions of ways and means. For its capital expenditures, the University depends on a number of sources. In the first place, we receive gratefully from time to time bequests which vary considerably over the years but have added very signifiicantly to the resources which we can apply to higher education. In the second place, we depend on and have reason to be thankful for the systematic annual giving of our graduates through the Alumni Fund. Over the past few years this fund has assisted in the improvement in scholarships, has contributed to the University endowment, and has provided a substantial amount of money toward the second unit of the men's residence. From time to time there have been some special campaigns among graduates, such as the Medical Centenary Fund, the proceeds of which go largely to the Connell Wing of the Hospital and the new medical-clinical building. Thirdly, we receive from time to time and for the past few years annually capital grants of varying amounts from the Ontario government, which has taken a sympathetic and constructive view of the needs of universities. Fourthly, while we have not hitherto received capital grants from the federal government, the Prime Minister has announced that the government will recommend to Parliament a grant of $50,000,000 for all universities over a period of ten years. This, if it is approved by Parliament, will be a most welcome additional source of funds. There are, however, likely to be some misconceptions about this in the mind of the public. Fifty million dollars seems a very large sum. It is only about 1/7 of what is needed. It should be noted further that it is spread over all the universities and over ten years. While the method of division has not been decided, Queen's University might expect to receive $2,000,000 to $2,500,000 over ten years or at the rate of $250,000 a year. This is only a fraction of our needs. Further, the grant is conditional on its being used for not more than 50 per cent of the cost of any project. It, therefore, is essential that other sources should also participate.

While Queen's University gratefully accepts government grants and has never found either the Ontario government or the Federal government attempting to attach strings to such grants or to exercise any control over the University, we have always believed in making great efforts to help ourselves.

We are, therefore, launching a financial campaign in February of 1957 with the objective of raising for capital purposes from corporate and private sources $4,000,000. We estimate that our capital needs over the next five years amount to $9,200,000 of which it is reasonable to expect that we might receive about $5,200,000 from bequests and from government sources. The remaining $4,000,000 we hope to raise from private sources, including the givings of our graduates through the Alumni Fund.

We have the good fortune to embark on this campaign with Mr. N. R. Crump, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, as the general but very active chairman of the campaign. A really notable group of men in some thirty communities across the country, some graduates and some not graduates, have undertaken to act as divisional chairmen. Mr. Crump likes to say that his organization stretches from Halifax to Victoria and from New York to Yellowknife. We even have some hopes of organizing a few centres still further north than Yellowknife. It is a truly national campaign. I am happy to say that advance subscriptions from a number of corporations and individuals have already encouraged Mr. Crump and his team to believe that the objective of the campaign will be achieved.

ALGOMA-BLIND RIVER

In the article on the Algoma-Blind River District which appeared in the August issue tribute was paid to the role played by Queen's graduates in the development of this important source of uranium. Included were the names of such men as R. C. Hart, R. T. Pountney, John Kostuik, A. W. Stollery, M. A. Upham, M. W. Airth, M. S. Stevens, G. A. Jewett, B. H. Budgeon, G. M. Godfrey, E. C. Keeley, K. H. Stubbs and many others.

It has been brought to the attention of the editor that at least two additional Queen's graduates were prominent in the initial stages of the development of this area, Harry R. Buckles and Larry F. Labow.

Mr. Buckles, a 1934 graduate in mining engineering, was actually involved in the operations in the Blind River District at an earlier date than any of the men mentioned in the article. The staking venture in the early summer of 1953 was divided between Bob Hart and Harry Buckles, and the efficiency with which these two men carried out their responsibilities played the major role in harvesting for the Hirshhorn interests a large percentage of what will ultimately result in producers of uranium products. In the fall of 1953 Mr. Buckles was brought into the Toronto headquarters of Technical Mine Consultants Limited, the engineering organization which directed all operations for Hirshhorn interests in the field.

Mr. Labow graduated in mining from Queen's in 1936 and was engaged by Technical Mine Consultants in the summer of 1953, in the capacity of assistant to Franc Joubin, managing director. In October, 1953, he was made manager of the organization and together with Joubin was responsible for direction of the Blind River operations, and also operations scattered across Canada involving not only uranium but developments of base metal deposits, industrial minerals, precious metals, and ferrous deposits. Early in 1955 he was appointed managing director of Pardee Amalgamated Mines Limited, which was a company formed by the amalgamation of fourteen companies in the Hirshhorn orbit, and this Company under his direction proceeded to develop the Pardee-Aquarius Property in Blind River, which finally resulted in indicated tonnages in excess of 3,000 tons per day on the parent and acquired properties. Subsequently Mr. Labow was in charge of the negotiations for Milliken Lake, as a consulting engineer, these negotiations in Ottawa resulting in a contract which will eventually exceed $90,000,000 in concentrate purchases.

Mr. Labow left the Hirshhorn organization a year ago and set up his own consulting business. He has been elected president and managing director of West Malartic Mines Limited, Ultra Shawkey Mines Limited, and Reef Explorations Limited.

Mr. Buckles is still associated with Technical Mine Consultants as chief engineer and managing director of some of the companies. He is also associated with the Rio Tinto mining organization.

TRICOLORS WANTED

From time to time requests are received for back copies of the Tricolor, official yearbook published annually by the Alma Mater Society. Some issues are in short supply and it is not always possible to fill these orders immediately. However, copies turn up from time to time and eventually it is possible to satisfy most of the requests. Currently there is a demand for copies of the 1938, 1941, 1945, and 1953 issues. Graduates who have any of these to sell are asked to communicate with the Secretary-Treasurer, Alma Mater Society.

Prof. Robert Carr Harris and the School of Mining

A Tribute to a Man Whose Lectures and Personality Left a Lasting Impression

Some sixty-four years have passed since the School of Mining opened its doors and its contribution to our national economy is now a matter of record. It may be fitting, therefore, to pay a tribute to those whose energy and example in those early years did much to prepare Canadian engineers for the responsibilities which lay ahead. One of these men was the late Robert Carr Harris whose lectures and personality left a lasting impression on so many of the older graduates.

Queen's men are to be found in key posts all over the world and nowhere is this more evident than in engineering and science. If any criterion were needed to explain their success, it is probably to be found in that balance between theory and practice which early characterized those who graduated from the School of Mining.

In the original curriculum there is no better example of this happy combination of qualities than in the lectures given by Professor Carr Harris. His courses in general engineering not only emphasized the diversified nature of the problems to be met, but they encouraged a confident and scientific approach to their solution.

It was indeed fortunate that, when the school opened, a successful teacher of civil engineering was available in Kingston. Professor Carr Harris was then on the staff at the Royal Military College and as a personal friend of Prinipal Grant he consented to give his part-time services as a gift. This generous contribution must have meant much at a time when the school was hard pressed financially to keep its doors open.

In 1898 Professor Carr Harris retired from his post at R.M.C., and was offered the Chair of Professor in General Engineering. This he held until 1901 when, at the age of sixty, having devoted twenty-two years to the teaching profession, he decided to retire. While the importance of his work was not fully realized at the time, it is a fact that, when he retired, the course in General Engineering had become a unique feature of the syllabus and one which was destined to stand the test of time.

Only a very few of his graduates now remain but the following comment from one of them may be of interest (Professor Manly B. Baker, in a letter to Major Grant Carr Harris):

EDITOR'S NOTE

This article was written by a friend of Professor Carr Harris who wished to remain anonymous. The Review is pleased to have this opportunity to pay tribute to a man who contributed so much to the teaching of engineering in the School of Mining at Queen's.

> I remember your father when here at Queen's, and his very genial attitude toward his classes. I would add one more admirable trait in his character. When it was proposed to form a protective society of engineers by barring all who would not join such a body, your father thought it wrong, and believing it wrong, he fought it with all his energy and prevented its formation.

Sir Sandford Fleming once said:

> In my long experience I do not think that I have met many men—certainly I have met no practical engineers—so highly qualified in many essential parts, as Professor Harris. (Morgan, The Canadian Men and Women of the Time, 1912, p. 505).

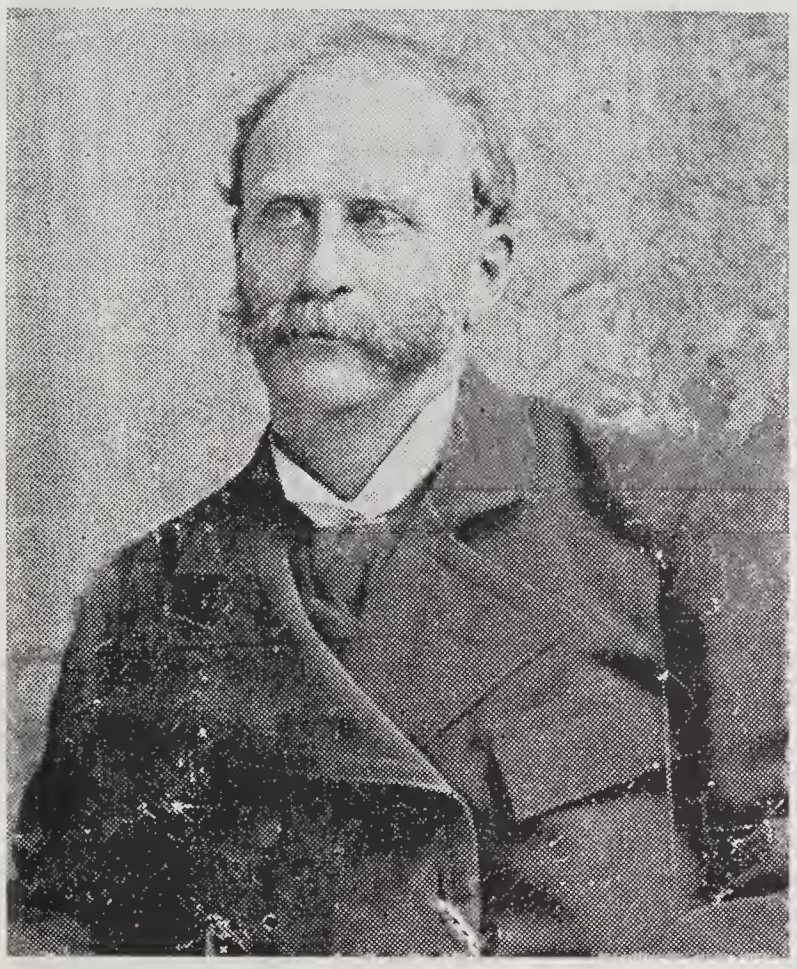

Again, Sir Percy Girouard, a graduate of the R.M.C. writing as president of the Egyptian State Railways, paid him the following tribute:

> Your broadmindedness I think taught all the cadets of my time a very valuable lesson as to the manner in which they should approach engineering questions and saved many from becoming automatons or mere draughtsmen. My grounding by you in railways and hydraulic and general engineering left a lasting and valuable impression.

Opinions such as these were shared by many of his graduates, including the late R. W. Leonard of St. Catharines who continued to correspond with him on professional matters.

The following amusing anecdote contributed by W. M. (Billy) Goodwin illustrates what Professor Carr Harris would have called the "direct approach" to a minor problem:

> My first job of surveying, when I was fifteen, was as rodman at the Outer Depot for Professor Carr Harris. It was early spring and I was inordinately proud of the long leather boots with which I negotiated the pools of slush and icy water. Eventually, of course, the water came over the top, and the ensuing strange gait caught my chief's attention. He called me to him and told me to empty the boots and wring my socks. Then he showed me how he coped with such a difficulty—two little slits in the toe of each of his boots. "It will let the water in," he eplained, "but it runs out again just as fast, and my feet will never be scalded." Care for others and such simple and effective expedients were characteristic of this friend of my boyhood.

PROF. ROBERT CARR HARRIS

Unconventional to the point of perhaps appearing eccentric at times, Professor Carr Harris was a man of broad Christian sympathies and had many interests outside the scope of his profession. He was a student of military history and spoke both German and Gaelic. One of his hobbies, for instance, was to read Ossian's poetry in Gaelic. As a public speaker, he was at ease in discussing almost any subject. What he said was always worth listening to.

It is not intended that this should be a biographical sketch. For the record, however, Professor Carr Harris' association with the School of Mining may be summarized under the following headings:

1. His background in 1893 was that of a successful teacher and civil engineer who had had extensive experience in railway location and public works and who enjoyed the confidence of Sir Sandford Fleming under whom he had served.

2. Not only was he responsible from the beginning for instruction in general engineering but he continued in that capacity for about ten years. During this time he did much to identify the mining graduate as a man with practical engineering training — qualities which paid dividends to Queen's in the years which followed.

3. He gave his time generously to the School and up to the year 1898 received only a nominal remuneration. In a letter, for instance, addressed to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council January 7, 1898, reference is made to "instruction in General Engineering costing hitherto only $100 a year."

4. Published in book form are the text of his lectures, Civil Engineering, Principles, Methods, Designs and Calculations, 1894, Government Printing Office, Ottawa. This is probably the earliest comprehensive publication on civil engineering practice by any Canadian writer. A review of its contents indicates a unique and original presentation of engineering principles amply supported by practical applications.

5. By 1898 his courses in general engineering had been successfully established. His appointment in that year as full-time Professor was undoubtedly responsible for rounding out the general course and establishing the more elaborate courses in Civil Engineering which followed. These were well under way before he retired (1901).

6. He had the faculty of being able to impart knowledge easily to his students. Many successful engineers graduated under him both at Queen's and the Royal Military College.

7. In conclusion, Professor Carr Harris was a close personal friend of the late Principal Grant and the late G. M. Macdonnell. His friendship with these men dated back long before the School of Mining was founded. It is logical to suppose therefore that his interest in the engineering profession in general, and in engineering education in particular, may well have been responsible for strengthening the determination displayed by both these men in establishing the School of Mining at Queen's.

The President's Message

W. A. DAWSON

Once again the season of the year returns in which we are caught up in the spirit of good-will and thoughtfulness of others. Arnold Toynbee has said that the twentieth century will be chiefly remembered, not as an age of political conflicts or technical inventions, but as a period in which human society dared to think of the welfare of the whole human race as a practical objective.

A renewed appreciation of others creates a joyful feeling, which prompts us to send greetings and best wishes to old friends and new.

My New Year's Message is to express the sincere wish that each and every member may be blessed with unmeasured success and happiness in the months ahead.

CONDUCT HIGHWAY RESEARCH

Arrangements have been made between the Ontario Department of Highways and Queen's University and the University of Toronto for a joint highway research programme. The universities will conduct research on highway engineering problems for which the Department of Highways is providing $85,000 to cover costs for the first year.

Direction of the programme will be under a committee with John Walter, Sc. '33, design engineer, Department of Highways as chairman. Queen's will be represented by Dr. S. D. Lash, who will direct the work at the University; Prof. H. M. Edwards, who will serve as associate director; and Dr. R. O. Martin.

G. C. MONTURE

G. C. Monture, Sc. '21, has retired as chief of the mineral resources division, Bureau of Mines, Department of Mines and Technical Surveys, Ottawa, to take a job in private industry.

Time magazine commented: "The guest of honour at a gathering of Department of Mines personnel one day last week was identified by a large sign in the front of the room: 'Mining Ambassador, Dr. G. C. Monture.' The honorary title was accurate. Big (6 ft. 200 lbs.) Gilbert 'Slim' Monture, a full-blooded Mohawk Indian who guided allocation of Canada's strategic minerals during World War II and the Korean war, has served for the past few years on international commissions from Bolivia to Afghanistan. Now, at 60, Slim Monture is retiring to take a job in private industry as a vice president of Stratmat Ltd., a minerals exploration and development firm.

"As a start in life, Monture had little besides a bright mind and a proud name. One of his great-grandfathers was the mighty Mohawk chief, Thayendanegea (also known as Captain Joseph Brant), who helped the British conquer Canada and fought against U.S. settlers in border raids during the Revolutionary War. But Monture's father was a sailor turned hardluck farmer, and to get an education, Monture walked five miles each way from the Six Nations Reservation to high school at Hagersville, Ont. After years of struggle and several interruptions (including service as an army lieutenant in World War I), Monture made it not only through high school but through Queen's University as well.

"In 1923, two years after he took his mining degree, Monture started up the ladder of government service as an editor for Mines Branch publications. When World War II broke out, he was made executive assistant to the Defence Production Board. 'There just wasn't anybody else,' Monture explained modestly, but his boss, Dr. John Convey, director of the Mines Branch, knew better. Said Convey: 'He knows the economics of extraction, which few economists do. He could assess Canada's resources with an ability that was uncanny.'

"In postwar years Monture revealed a talent for diplomacy at the technical level, and most of the past decade has found him working for Canada, the Commonwealth, NATO, or the U.N. on some 20 committees and economic missions all over the world. In 1953 he helped a team of NATO experts work out a plan for the allocation of strategic materials; on other assignments, he helped a U.N. committee survey world resources of iron ore, gave technical mining advice to the governments of Malaya and Indonesia, helped Jamaica and Afghanistan revise their basic mining legislation. YELLOWKNIFE

Queen's Engineer Helps To Develop This Northern Settlement

by Dave Oancia
Canadian Press

To most people this settlement, 600 miles north of Edmonton, is a spot on the map in the land of the midnight sun, gold bricks, ice and snow.

They're partly right. A few miles from the Twin Cities of the Northwest Territories the headframes of gold mines tower above the second-growth spruce trees near the icy blue waters of Yellowknife Bay on Great Slave Lake. Beyond is a seemingly endless wilderness of lakes and rivers of the rugged pre-Cambrian shield.

There are some who have the wilderness in their blood. Norman A. Byrne is one of them. This husky, soft-spoken graduate of Queen's University and his staff of a dozen engineers and geologists make a business out of developing raw chunks of wilderness into mines. Once a property reaches the production stage and a new community is born, he loses interest in it and goes on to other developments.

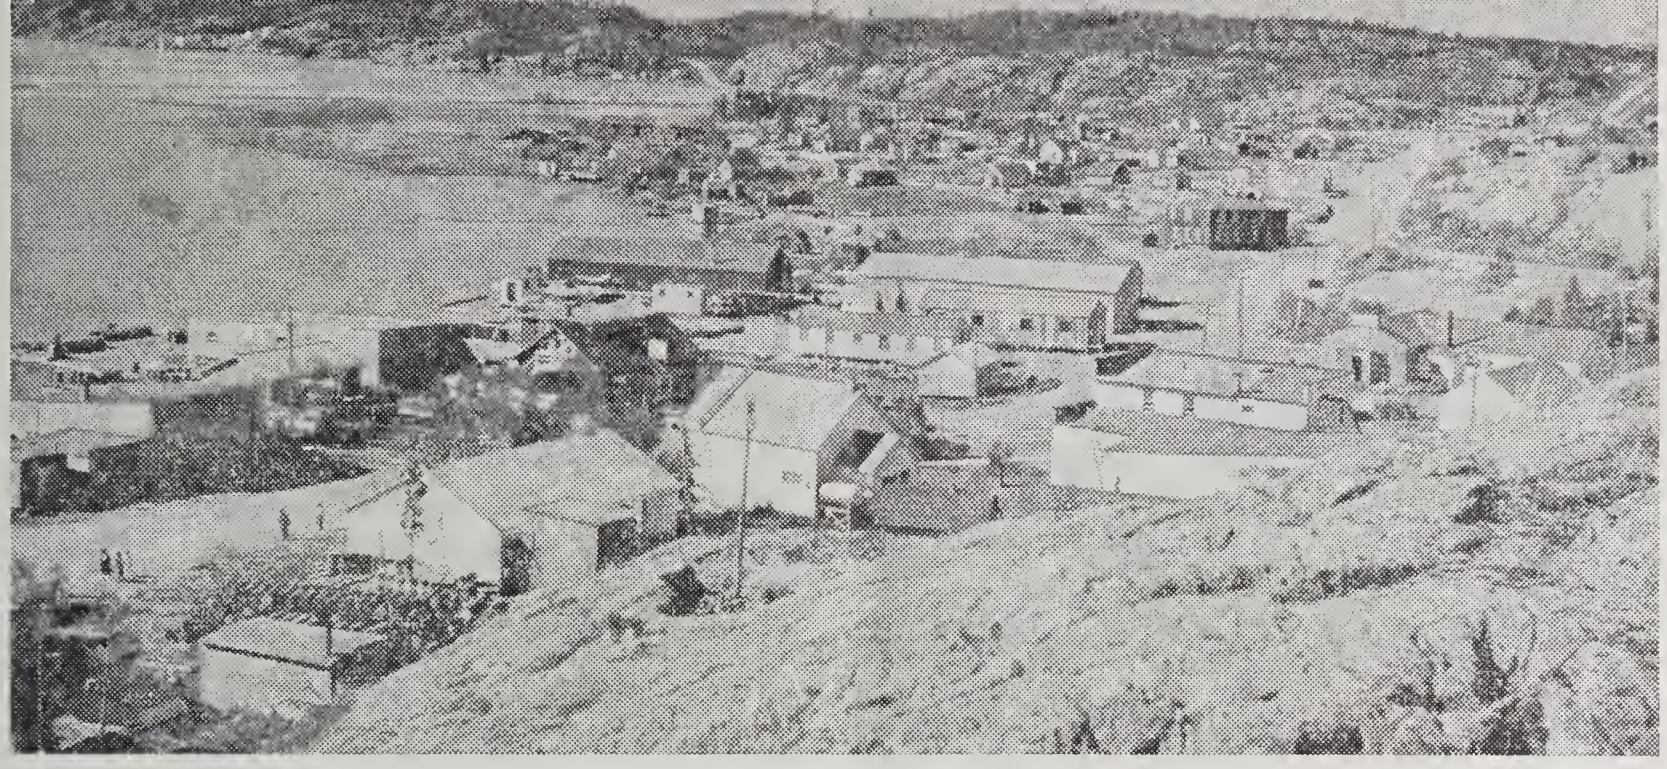

NORMAN A. BYRNE

Mr. Byrne and his assistants are bringing into production Rayrock Mines Ltd., the second uranium mine in the Northwest Territories, 85 miles northwest of Yellowknife. Nursing this property to the production stage was a job which required the construction of a 35-mile road, docks and warehouses, a 20-mile power transmission line and a mill to refine the ore, in addition to the mapping of an underground development programme.

Members of the Byrne family long have been associated with mine development in Quebec, Ontario, northern Saskatchewan and the Northwest Territories.

Centred around The Rock is the old town, a collection of shacks, cabins, warehouses and stores built by pioneers in the decade following the discovery of gold here more than twenty years ago.

But around The Rock there was little room for planned expansion and it was practically impossible to install a water system. When the big boom hit after the Second World War a new townsite was surveyed. Two years later a water system linked the homes and businesses. The old town, however, has remained the headquarters of the bush pilots and the riverboat men.

Life for the 3,000 residents of the area is much the same as it is for people who live in Assiniboia, Sask., or Brooks, Alta.

A freshly built and painted federal building and a town hall that outshines those in most prairie towns were officially opened recently. Public and separate schools are second to none and a technical training centre is being constructed.

Cars, buses and trucks roar down the broad, gravelled streets. Owners of the 500 motor vehicles can drive over a total of only seventy-five miles of road and not more than ten miles in any one direction.

The languages of many European nations are heard for many new Canadians begin their working life in this country in the mines here.

While discovery of gold brought Yellowknife into the mining spotlight chief interest in the huge mineral-rich area now centres on base metals and uranium.

"This is a young man's country," says Mayor Fred Henney, former labor organizer turned business man and now one of the town's wealthiest citizens.

Mr. Henney arrived from Trail, B.C., in 1947, to negotiate the first collective bargaining agreement between the gold mines and the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers. Two years later he bought into a taxi business which he built into a car sales agency, garage, trucking business and outboard motor sales and service depot.

The opportunity for people who are prepared to work and have a zest for adventure is good here," he added.

Most residents like the freedom from the pressures found in cities and the independent life in the frontier community.

The climate is not much different from that of the prairies. Winters are longer and average temperatures lower. It is not uncommon to have mercury readings of 20 to 40 below zero between December 1 and March 15.

"You don't feel the isolation much," said Fred Humphries, formerly of Ottawa, acting sub-district administrator for the territorial government. "The town has just about everything we want and we like the life here."

Good fishing, boating and swimming can be had within walking distance of most Yellowknife homes. The people are enthusiastic curlers and there is organized hockey, softball and little league baseball. The latest cinemascope movies are shown in the large theatres.

Lorne Pierce

The Ryerson Press Is an Enduring Record of Dr. Pierce's Lifetime of Toil and Leadership

by C. H. Dickinson

Almost fifty years ago the remnant of a once large class in Honour English at Queen's University, Kingston, was sitting through the last lecture of the last course in the last year under Dean James Cappon. He was a craggy, forthright Scot, who at that time had little appreciation of any literature arising out of the New World.

Lorne Pierce was one of the students, and at this last opportunity dared to ask a question. Was there any Canadian writer whom they should know, who interpreted Canadian life from a Canadian point of view? The Dean replied with a quotation from The Ballads of Blasphemous Bill by Robert W. Service, which ended with the phrase . . . "it didn't matter a damn," and strode out of the room.

Young Pierce strode out also and headed for a bookshop to ask for a book by a Canadian author. He bought a red Morocco-bound copy of The Oxford Book of Canadian Verse, edited by William Wilfred Campbell. Later he gave this to his wife, Edith Chown, and on it they built the outstanding collection of Canadiana now housed at Queen's. The book marked also the beginning of Dr. Pierce's career of devotion to all things Canadian.

While Lorne Pierce is thought of by most Canadians as a distinguished scholar who moves with grace in the higher echelons of the literary world, he seems to think of himself first as a minister of the Church. From childhood, things literary and religious went together. Bedtime stories for the Pierce children in their Delta, Ontario, home were from the Bible and the Classics.

His father was a hardware merchant. Life was secure and comfortable. Mrs. Pierce was a lively, intelligent woman. The introduction to their stories was: "I think you'll like this," and with that she took them on excursions through the fields of art, music, and literature, where she was widely acquainted.

After Queen's Lorne Pierce took theology at Victoria, won scholarships and studied at Union Theological Seminary in New York. He took an M.A. from New York University, too, and an S.T.D. from Wesleyan College, Montreal, having written his thesis on the surprising subject "The Contribution of Russian Literature to Religious Experience." During thirty-five years of editorial work he has continually surprised his friends by his familiarity with a wide range of subjects.

As a student missionary in Southern Saskatchewan, he became lost in a prairie blizzard, and suffered such a freezing that his hearing was permanently impaired. For the sake of others similarly affected he helped found the organization now known as The Canadian Hearing Society.

Man of Letters

He was the minister of St. James Church, Ottawa, when he resigned his pulpit to enlist in the ranks during World War I, and is rather courteously boastful of the fact that he became a Sergeant.

The Publishing House of the Methodist Church had appointed a Commission to search for a new editor. The members planned in 1920 to take a tour across the country to seek one. Lorne Pierce that year had been asked to deliver the annual lecture to the Theological Union of the Montreal Conference, an honour normally reserved for older men. He lectured on Russian Literature, and was accorded a tremendous standing ovation.

The Commission was so impressed that the youthful lecturer was invited to become editor. Pierce accepted, and the members of the Commission having had their trip shortened went home.

He has spent his life quietly encouraging authors, and artists, and poets, who feel that they have something to contribute to the interpretation of Canadian life and tradition. Many a Canadian writer has at some time received a reassuring nod, or a sympathetic letter, or a kindly criticism from him. He declares that he almost lost the affection of his family by working so late into the nights, completing correspondence or reading manuscripts—manuscripts by the hod-load, as he describes them. And in order to ensure that appropriate aid and encouragement to deserving persons should be continued, he was largely responsible for establishing the Canadian Writers' Foundation, a fund to assist authors who may be some time in need.

He himself has been a prodigious writer. He has written the biographies of half a dozen Canadians of literary stature. He compiled the only anthology of Canadian Literature, French and English; he wrote and distributed privately the Beverley Papers, ten brochures on Canadian literary affairs; and has written a definite outline of the development of Canadian literature for the forthcoming Encyclopaedia of Canada. One cannot list here all the introductions and prefaces and all the editorial contributions which he has made to a variety of publications. We wish that he would yet set down for our enjoyment his pungent anecdotes, and his memoirs of encounters, humorous and otherwise, with people of all sorts.

In all his work he was greatly assisted by Mrs. Pierce, who shared his devotion to excellence. The Collection of Canadiana at Queen's is to be maintained in perpetuity by the Edith Chown Trust. They established the Edith and Lorne Pierce Scholarship at Victoria University for graduate study in Church History, using the Archives of the United Church. Dr. Pierce has been Chairman of the Archives Committee of the General Council for several years. Together they planned and donated a beautiful chancel window in the Chapel of their Church, St. George's in Toronto. Mrs. Pierce prepared an important brochure on another of their lively interests: Canadian Glass, a Footnote to History. And together they have made presentations to the Art Gallery and the Royal Ontario Museum. Mrs. Pierce died in 1954.

Through the years many honours have fallen upon Lorne Pierce. He received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from United College, Winnipeg; LL.D. degrees came from Queen's and the University of New Brunswick; while to mark Dr. Pierce's contribution to the furtherence of English-French Canadian understanding, the University of Montreal, and Laval University, Quebec, conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters. When Queen Elizabeth II was crowned, Dr. Pierce received a Canadian medal. Last year he was given the National Award in Letters from the University of Alberta for a lifetime of distinguished literary service. Dr. Pierce is also one of seven United Church ministers who are Fellows of the Royal Society of Canada.

The Ryerson Press, as a Canadian book publishing imprint, is an enduring record of Dr. Pierce's lifetime of literary toil and leadership. His primary concern has been that it should prosper —prosper in the sense of symbolizing the best that could be published in all the categories of Canadian thought and writing; that it should continue the tradition of its founder, Egerton Ryerson, who championed educational and religious freedom in our land, and who organized our elementary school system. Dr. Pierce has edited the series of School Readers known as The Canada Books of Prose and Verse, and many other textbooks for public and high schools.

He has been anxious always that The Publishing House should represent the leadership of the Church in Canada, not alone in the official publishing of required religious materials, or in strictly theological thought, but in wider educational and cultural realms. He obtained for Canada collaboration in publishing the distinguished series of books on Canadian-American Relations sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. The House has published a large number of volumes for the Canadian Institute of International Affairs. The Ryerson list has included books in all the categories of fiction, travel, biography, poetry, art, public affairs, humour, religion, ranging from such titles as The Canadian Cook Book and the prize humour of Eric Nicol to the autobiography of the founder of The Royal Ontario Museum, entitled I Brought the Ages Home, and The Christian Church in Canada by Prof. H. H. Walsh of McGill.

The United Church of Canada through its Publishing House has made a lasting contribution to the record of the Canadian scene. Even more than that, it has created much of the Canadian tradition by providing the means of expression of the life and thought of the people. In that Dr. Lorne Pierce has been both a pioneer and a prophet. He would prefer to be called a "ploughman."

EXPANSION AT QUEEN'S

It is not to be expected that expansion here, with our compact institution limited to three faculties, with a little more than ten per cent of our students living at home, and seeking a national rather than a regional development, will follow the same pattern of development as in institutions in metropolitan areas or in provincial universities with their widespread professional responsibilities, or in those institutions which serve primarily a city community.

Mrs. Rudolph Pechel Speaks At Kingston Alumnae Meeting

Mrs. Rudolph Pechel, wife of the Dunning Trust Lecturer, was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Kingston alumnae held in Ban Righ Hall on January 15.

Mrs. Pechel gave an interesting account of the exploits of women in the German resistance movement. As the war progressed, more and more men were arrested and executed; then it was that the women took over and continued the movement. Composed of all ages and all classes of people, these women of the resistance movement suffered great hardships and great dangers in the cause of freedom. A few of their deeds were described by Mrs. Pechel, who herself ended the war in prison.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Hans Eichner, associate professor of German, and was thanked by Mrs. J. W. Brooks (Shirley Ayres), Arts '41. The president, Miss Diana Blake, Arts '46, was in the chair.

Dr. Austin O'Leary Elected President of New York Society

Dr. Austin J. O'Leary, Sc. '28, has been elected president of the New York Society for the ensuing year, in succession to Dr. J. E. Hammett, Med. '19. Dr. Hammett will now serve as honorary president.

Also elected were George S. Atkins, Arts '49, as first vice-president; Dr. Marion Laird, Arts '22, as second vice-president; and E. C. Delahay, Arts '48, as secretary-treasurer.

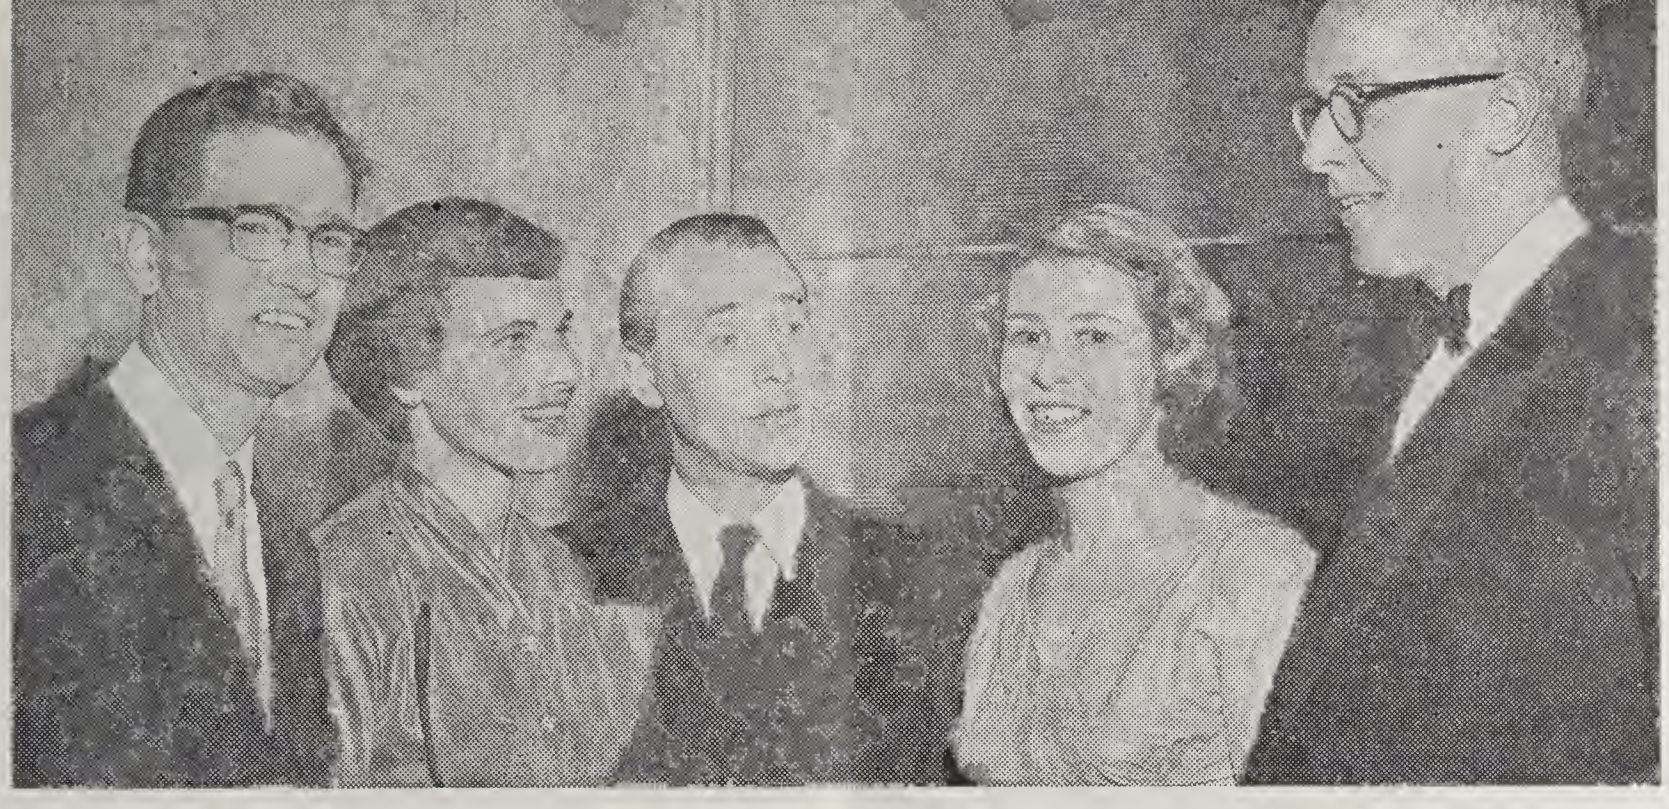

The meeting was held on December 13, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Hammett. The "snacks" provided by the hostess "turned out to be a most sumptuous buffet that more than adequately capped a pleasant gathering."

Prospect

We do not expect to raise any large fraction of this objective in the City of Kingston. We do, however, anticipate that the business firms of Kingston, the citizens and the City itself, having a more intimate contact with the University than those in distant cities, will wish to do their share. We would make a poor appeal indeed in other parts of Canada and the United States if Kingston itself did not show interest and faith in the University which has stood here for 115 years. The fact that the Divisional Chairman in Kingston is Mr. M. N. Hay, the Manager of the Aluminum Company, a graduate of the University and a member of the Board of Trustees, gives assurance that Kingston will do its part.

This financial campaign will tax the energies of many of us over the next few months but it is only a means to an end. The end is not alone the growth and welfare of Queen's University at Kingston; it is the wise expansion of higher education in a vigorously growing country whose whole future depends on education.

G. C. Monture

rambling tall tales, told at a tense moment in a conference, often helped to get a stalled meeting off dead centre.

After responding last week to the tributes paid to him at the testimonial, Slim Monture bade his former associates an Indian-style farewell: "Straight trails, good hunting.'"

Some, however, do not find this enough. They count the days until their contract term of employment is over or until they have enough money to fly out to cities farther south.

What lures people north?

Lawyer John Parker [Arts '34] a member of the Northwest Territories Council, summed it up this way:

"People initially come to the Territories, because they think they are going to make more money than they could in outside communities."

"But they don't and they usually stay because they like the life among agreeable people and the feeling they're taking part in the development of a frontier."

FACULTY OF ARTS

We do not yet know a very good and efficient way to control admission to the Faculty of Arts. Various investigations, including one conducted in this Faculty, have indicated that if requirements in terms of marks on matriculation papers are put as high as 70 per cent, failures at university would be very low indeed. Our records show, however, that many who came in with much lower standing have succeeded. There is a place here for competent students who are not brilliant and for those who make a real start late; and there is certainly need for university graduates of these types. How to devise a proper screen and how to select good prospects from among those who would not normally be admitted is a great problem which continues to receive attention here and elsewhere. One thing which we may assume is that the children of graduates and their friends, if their marks are low, are not likely to constitute a peculiar group of high excellence.

Freedom in Struggle

Dunning Trust Lectures

Given by

Dr. Rudolf Pechel,

German Liberal and

by D. G. Dewar

The Chancellor Dunning Trust was established at Queen's University in 1948 "to promote understanding and appreciation of the supreme importance of the dignity, freedom and responsibility of the individual person in human society."

Since its inception the purposes of the Trust have been carried out by an annual lecture series given at the University during the academic session by distinguished visiting lecturers.

Under the general title of "Freedom in Struggle," the Chancellor Dunning Trust Lectures this year were given during January by Dr. Rudolf Pechel, German liberal and publicist. Principal Mackintosh described Dr. Pechel as follows:

Dr. Pechel is the former editor and now the publisher of Deutsche Rundschau. He is particularly well known for his writing on the German resistance movement, but this should not obscure his literary writings. In 1950 he was President of the German Academy in Language and Poetry.

From 1942 when his periodical was closed down until 1945 he was in the Sachsenhausen concentration camp and his wife was also sentenced to five years imprisonment.

Dr. Pechel's lectures under the general title of "Freedom in Struggle" include an introduction on the moral obligation to fight for freedom, and descriptions of the struggle for freedom under the Hitler regime and in the Soviet zone of Germany.

In introducing his topic, "Freedom in Struggle," Dr. Pechel commented: "Strictly speaking, nobody knows what the value of freedom really means if he did not happen to lose it once. In constitutional states freedom is a matter of course, and nobody ponders over it. It is like the air God gave us to breathe, a matter of course like the others guaranteed by technical progress: water is running whenever you open the tap and there is light whenever you turn a switch."

Imagine, he said, there was suddenly no air for breathing and switch and tap failed. Then pondering about this unheard of situation, you would worry about those matters . . . Under certain circumstances every matter becomes problematical and then it will be necessary to struggle for it.

He quoted several examples from poetry and ancient and modern history dealing with the fight for freedom and against tyranny, and quoted Duff Cooper in his biography of Tallyrand: "It is one of the grossest defects of autocracy or unlimited monocracy as a form of government that there is no place for a lawful opposition."

In describing German resistance to Hitler and National Socialism he said: "In Germany resistance assumed the most varied forms. The most imperceptible form was to protest and hide jeopardized persons, especially Jews.

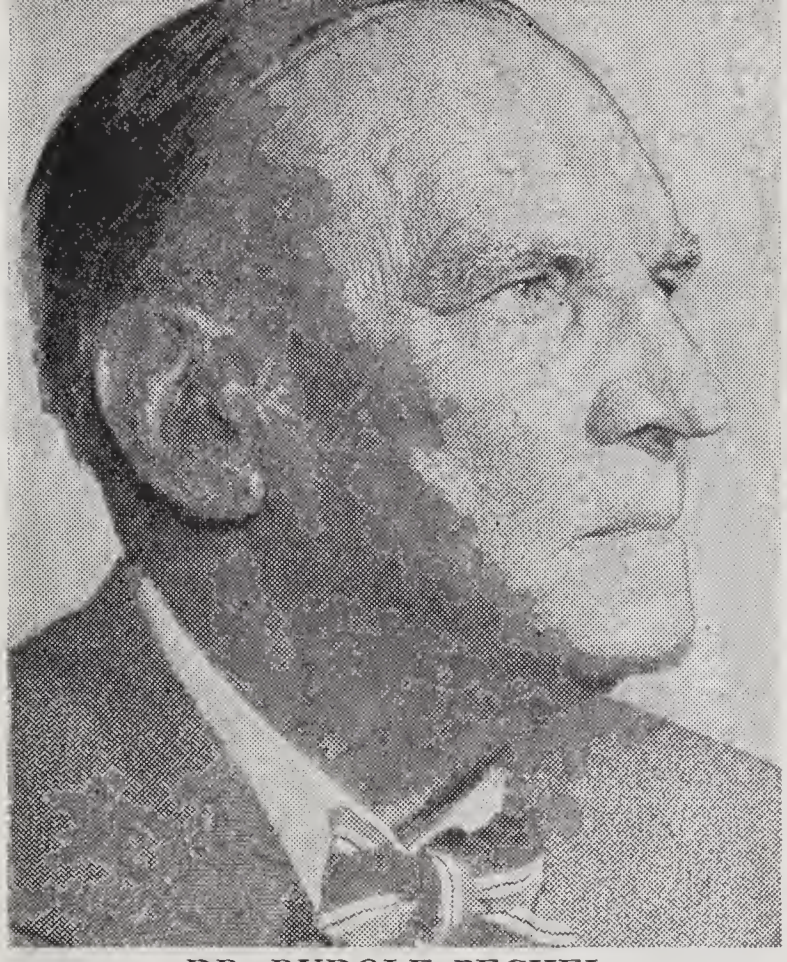

The hardest form was the assault. Besides the gradually organized resistance movement stood the Christian churches, the Protestant as well as the Catholic, at an exposed place. The resistance movement, however, naturally had to work in silence and secrecy. Among the Protestants resistance was promoted by the so-called 'Confessing Church.' For the Catholic Church the encyclical Flagranti cura indicated the trend resistance, the prominent representatives of which were the Cardinals Graf Galen, Michel von Faulhaber and Graf Preysing."

Right from the beginning the question was put as to whether a violent extirpation of Hitler was to be justified. To answer this question became more and more urgent when the Nazi crimes increased.

In answering this question, not only legal standards but also those of social ethics and theological morals had to be justified. But the injustice committed by the National Socialist government was of such a kind that it exceeded merely legal consideration. "This was obviously an invasion of satanic motives into government, and therefore everybody was called up and summoned to offer active outer resistance."

Those who intend to rise against a government must have a clear and definite judgment in order to offer lawful resistance, and they must be convinced that the government they oppose infringes upon law and duty. They must also be certain about their own motives in this matter. Further, resistance supporters must be convinced that active work is necessary and indispensable and they must be able to judge to which degree resistance is necessary.

Dr. Pechel explained the Protestant and Catholic views in the German resistance struggle. He agreed with a statement of Walter Kunneth, German professor of theology, that "All political action is in the end ethically ambiguous, questionable and tied up with guilt, but it has to be performed in responsible decision. And therefore the encounter between the Christian church and the leading men of politics and public affairs is not only necessary but also salutory."

Expressing his agreement, Dr. Pechel said: 'The work of the remission of sins is always the last ethical and religious answer to the problem of resistance."

In his second lecture entitled, "The German opposition to Hitler," Dr. Pechel gave a moving and graphic account of the background of resistance in Germany and his personal experiences as a member of this resistance.

The historical trends leading to Hitler are still very little known, but already a tendency is growing in Germany to blame the non-German powers for the disaster of the past and even to ascribe it to a mystical phenomenon, the so-called "sickness of Western civilization." There is much truth in the statement of Professor Hans Kohn of New York who writes:

"If German historians should refuse to face squarely the question of German responsibility for Hitlerism and to guide the people towards its recognition, little hope exists for a new Germany in a new relationship to Europe and the world."

Nevertheless a certain agreement is reached by most reliable German historians facing the Bismark-problem, the end of the Weimar Republic and the imperialistic way of Germany during the twentieth century up to 1945.

Discussing the rise of Hitler, Dr. Pechel said that it was in 1932 that the general assault upon the Weimar Republic began. "It was the rightist opposition, not the Nazis only, which directed the attack," he said. For twelve years, from July 20, 1932, until the very same date in 1944, the German resistance struggled for freedom: freedom for the individual, for the people and for mankind.

Resistance grew from all parts and all classes of the German people: workers and their leaders, the middle class, the intelligentsia, the aristocracy, soldiers and officers, women and young people of all social groups. The specific situation of resistance under totalitarian terror prevented all those larger and smaller groups from a powerful unification. They fought separately but they were united in the prisons of the Gestapo, in the concentration camps and on the scaffolds.

Many a lie stemming from the time of National Socialism is still alive and is one of the causes of these misconceptions. Above all there is the wicked sticking to the Nazi propaganda slogans that Hitler meant Germany; Ein Volk, Ein Reich, Ein Fuhrer. The truth is, he said, that Hitler never meant Germany.

Historical research and personal memory confirm the fact that Hitler's rise, the menace and fear that he might take over power, led whole classes of people into opposition. If Hitler really meant Germany, as Nazi propaganda assumed, why were so many Germans to be slaughtered?, Dr. Pechel asked.

From 1933 until 1945 the blood stained Nazi criminal courts sent 12,500 Germans to the scaffold, without mentioning the innumerable victims of martial law, estimated at seven to eight thousand, during the last four months of 1945 alone, until the breakdown of the Third Reich. Up to the beginning of World War II, one million Germans had been imprisoned by Hitler. In 1939, 300,000 were still Hitler's prisoners.

From the very beginning of National Socialism, some groups did everything they could to oppose Hitler. Discussing the means of resistance, Dr. Pechel mentioned the "slave language" used in public meetings and publications; the creation of an unobstrusive secret code which allowed one to inform his friends of his true thoughts and intentions.

"That went so far, that when making appointments by letter or telephone, we used a permanently changing code for describing the meeting-time — for example, Friday at 3 p.m. meant Saturday at 5 p.m., while the permanently changed name of the meeting-place always meant the same point," he said.

Dr. Pechel enumerated his own problems as an editor and the devious actions he was required to take to shake off the Gestapo. He finally was arrested by the Gestapo and placed in a concentration camp.

Dr. Pechel concluded with a most dramatic and enthralling account of Hitler's last days and the abortive plot of July 20, 1944, on Hitler's life, "the darkest hour in modern German history but also the vindication of the national honour."

In his third lecture, Dr. Pechel spoke on "From Resistance to the Struggle for Freedom of Today." He urged all free peoples to consider it their duty to work together in order to make the whole world safe for freedom.

He began by discussing various aspects of totalitarianism. The development of totalitarianism once begun is always of horrible consequences. If somebody in such a state shows only the inclination to live as a decent and honorable man according to the old holy and eternal conceptions, and to fight against every injustice, it is sufficient to mark him as a "traitor" of the people and to surrender him to the hangman. Scoundrels were rewarded in Hitler's Germany as they have been in Russia for a long time up until now. In the further development of such a totalitarian state, it is no more sufficient not to permit political crimes but everybody must constantly give evidence of his devotion and unrestricted belief in the "Fuhrer" and his government, if he wants to evade the threat of arrest and death.

Every individual non-Nazi was a "potential enemy," even if he did not know it. It is a further rule of such a monstrous and prodigious state that the pressure increases according to the growing madness of the despots and that—probably the tops in baseness—whole families were held responsible for the political opinion of one single member. The methods used in doing so are the most vile and impure that a mad brain could invent, said Dr. Pechel.

The true spirit of resistance cannot be ordered by political parties. It must be the duty of conscience to fight against all force, every injustice and every lie. Such true fighters of resistance were to be found throughout all classes of the German people, from the workmen to the East-Elbian Junkers, from the civilians to the soldiers. This fact, he said, is going to be more and more recognized by the non-German world.

Dr. Pechel favored supporting every resistance against a totalitarian state, by the individual as well as by governments. He instanced three examples in recent European history: the revolt in Soviet-occupied Germany on July 17, 1953; the revolt in the Polish city of Poznan, and the revolt in Hungary. In all three cases the people revolted in protest against the ruling Communist clique, and in all three cases Soviet tanks re-established the so-called order. In each of these cases the people were concerned with improvement of living conditions, their daily bread and the bread of freedom. This behaviour was understandable in the western world. To be against foreign rule and to raise one's voice when one is hungry are familiar actions.

Dr. Pechel said there was something so familiar and a bit uncanny "in the fact that these fighters for freedom were what we commonly call Communists, members of the Communist party. That was the case in East Berlin, Poznan and Budapest. Of course they co-operated with other groups, but the impulse came from the Communist workers and students. It took some time until we realized that fact. The result was that some short-sighted politicians in the West argued that one should leave those Reds alone and not bother about their quarrels. That is a hard word and shows a dangerous ignorance of the European situation. It means to deny the struggle for freedom itself and thereby the foundation of our civilization."

Finally, he said, he would like to add one of the most amazing facts of resistance against totalitarian systems in general. This amazing fact was that young people being indoctrinated by communism and fascism and having no idea of real freedom, gave outstanding examples of the resistance against Hitler and against Stalin and his diatribe.

How was it possible for young Hungarian students who were six to ten years old when the Soviet regime was put up, to give the signal for revolt? In the same way as the messenger pigeon finds its dovecot, these victims of totalitarianism blindly found their way to freedom. A messenger pigeon still remained a messenger pigeon even when painted brown or red.

Dr. Pechel quoted a manifesto of German medical students which condemned Hitler's aims and actions in decisive terms. They were not in touch with politicians of the Widerstand (Resistance) and could not rely on the advice of statesmen, yet events happened as they predicted.

"Remember when judging the youth of Eastern Europe that all free peoples must work together for freedom. All free peoples have the duty of working together in order to make the whole world safe for freedom," he said.

"My Father Sen

Around the CAMPUS

Sir Alan Herbert

Grant Hall was filled to capacity for the annual A.M.S. Lecture, given on February 6, by Sir Alan P. Herbert, humorist, author, and former member of the British Parliament. Sir Alan received a honorary LL.D. degree at the special Convocation which preceded the lecture.

The distinguished visitor was cited by J. A. Corry, Vice-Principal, as "author, wit, and independent member of parliament whose grip on his seat in the House of Commons could only be broken by abolishing the seat." He referred to Sir Alan as "a man of gaiety, gusto, courage, and enduring resourcefulness."

In a witty address, Sir Alan gave a salute to British parliamentary institutions. "Wherever Britain has spread, she has left people happier, more prosperous, and more peaceful than before she came, and this has been greatly due to the legacy of parliamentary institutions," Sir Alan told his audience.

In his introduction of Sir Alan, Dr. L. W. Brockington, the Rector, described him as "a reformer who has brought to the seriousness of reform the saving and healing grace of humour." The speaker was thanked by S. W. Howard, Arts '57, Brockville. The lecture was delivered after the special Convocation, Principal Mackintosh turning the proceedings over to Rich Milne, Arts '54, Med. '58, Kingston, president of the Alma Mater Society.

To Aid Hungarian Students

A special Hungarian Aid committee has been established by the executive of the Alma Mater Society. The University has offered four tuition scholarships and it is estimated the $3200 will be needed to cover the expenses of the recipients of these scholarships. It is hoped to raise half the money off the campus with the aid of service clubs and fraternal organizations in Kingston. Offers of free room and board, in whole or in part, have been received from the '44 Co-op, Ban Righ Hall, Medical House, and some of the parishioners of Chalmers Church.

Here and There

This year's musical revue was presented on January 31 to February 2 under the title of Daddy-Oh! and scored its usual success. The cast included Alex Cathcart, Arts '57, Belleville, Jo Smith, Arts '59, Gore Bay, Les Hartford, Sc. '57 Hoyle, Dianne North, N.Sc. '61, Malartic, Que., Judy Isaac, Arts '59, Middleton, Ron Stewart, Arts '57, Toronto, and John Spence, Sc. '58, Hawkesbury. Features of the programme were the numbers by the kickline, calypso songs, and songs by the "Two Dots," Dorothy Desjardins and Dorothy Enright, both of Arts '57 and from Kapuskasing.

The 1957 Aquacade, on February 5-7, was a presentation of the story of Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves. Prominent in the cast were Thelma Hunter, Arts

'57, Norval, as the narrator; Ray Hermiston, Arts '58, Stirling, Judy Reid, Arts '58, Montreal, Que., Ruth Fraser, Arts '59, Smiths Falls, and Nan and Jan Elliott, Arts '60, Sudbury.

More than one hundred members of second-year Science held a funeral service in front of the administration building to mark the passing of twenty-nine classmates required to withdraw at mid-term . . . Members of the A.M.S. executive were entertained at dinner by Dr. L. W. Brockington, Rector, on February 5. Guest of honour was Sir Alan P. Herbert, who delivered the A.M.S. Lecture the following day.

The Arts Formal was held in the Gymnasium on January 25, with the hall decorated as the courtyard of a Scottish castle. Lloyd Jones, Arts '58, Sharbot Lake, was the convener . . . The Levana Formal had a modern ballet motif and was held in Grant Hall on February 15. Miss Judy Reid, Arts '58, Montreal, Que., headed the committee in charge.

Intercollegiate champions last year, Queen's took third place with eleven points in the 1957 assault-at-arms in Montreal. McGill won top honours with twenty-one points and Varsity second with thirteen. For Queen's the winners were Fred Gunter, Arts '57, Petawawa Village, at 140 pounds, and Henry Clarke, Arts '58, Toronto, at 165 pounds . . . Queen's girls placed second in Intercollegiate badminton and volleyball . . . Ron Stewart, Arts '57, has been elected most valuable-player of the senior football team, and named as co-captains for next year are Dave Wilson, Sc. '59, Toronto, and Karl Quinn, Med. '61, Wrentham, Mass. The latter is the son of Dr. Karl Quinn, Med. '24.

Rising costs of publication will leave the Journal with a deficit of $700 this year, with deficits of $1300 and $2300 estimated for the next two years . . . The Queen's Drama Guild staged Wynyard Browne's "A Question of Fact," as their second-term production. Prominent in the cast were Bob Beattie, Arts '57, Welland, Marcy Fournier, Arts '60, Matheson, Bev MacKay, Arts '59, Fort William.

Douglas Carnegie, Theol. '58, Kingston, has been elected moderator of the Queen's Theological Society for next year . . . Bob Forbes, Kapuskasing, was named as president of the permanent executive of the Class of Science '57 . . . A session of Model Parliament was held on February 7, with Walter Dinsdale, Progressive-Conservative member for Brandon-Souris, as guest speaker.

University Problems Outlined By N. R. Crump at Ottawa

The influx of students during the next few years is a distinct challenge to all Canadian universities, N. R. Crump, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and chairman of the Queen's National Fund, told the annual dinner meeting of the Ottawa branch at the Chateau Laurier on January 28. Approximately four hundred were in attendance.

"All Canadian universities will need assistance," said Mr. Crump. "They need assistance from governments, from companies, and from private individuals. Our universities need buildings, laboratories, classrooms, libraries, and, particularly, means of scientific research, something that I feel sure has not been developed to the extent that it should in this Canada of ours."

Mr. Crump pointed out that it was estimated there will be more than 123,000 university students in Canada, or almost double the present number, in ten years' time. To teach these there will be needed 9,725 academic teachers, as compared with 5,970 today. "If we are to attract the necessary skilled training and leadership types required in our university work, then something will certainly have to be done about the salaries of our faculties—and the Gordon Commission suggested that half measures were not enough."

The speaker said that the amount spent on higher education in 1954 was four times the amount spent in 1933. Yet in 1954 twenty-one times as much was spent on non-residential construction as in 1933, and twenty times as much on new machinery and equipment.

With specific reference to the needs of Queen's Mr. Crump said that a campaign for $4,000,000 is being launched to supply a part of the costs of an overall five-year expansion programme which will amount to $9,200,000 to provide urgently needed buildings, renovation, and expansion of existing facilities, and an enlarged teaching and research staff. The balance of $5,200,000 is expected from federal and provincial grants and other sources.

Mr. Crump was introduced by C. Rowley Booth, Sc. '38. He was thanked by Principal W. A. Mackintosh.

Dr. Alex E. MacRae, Sc. '14, LL.D. '54, proposed the toast to Queen's. He spoke of the need of universities training men and women to become leaders in the practice of Christian democracy in order to offset the challenge of Communism.

Response to the toast took the form of the rendition of college songs and yells. The leader was R. A. F. Montgomery, Arts '50, Com. '51.

A highlight of the evening was the showing of the new film, "Queen's University at Kingston." The programme concluded with dancing.

Chairman was B. G. Ballard, Sc. '24, D.Sc. '56, president of the branch. Seated at the head table were Dr. and Mrs. Ballard, Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Mackintosh, Rev. and Mrs. A. M. Laverty, A. H. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Crump, Mr. and Mrs. C. Rowley Booth, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan MacTavish, Hon. and Mrs. R. O. Campney, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Macdonnell, Dr. and Mrs. Alex E. MacRae, Dr. and Mrs. W. P. E. Paterson, Dr. and Mrs. Harold A. Quinn, Miss Kathleen Derry, Dr. and Mrs. Wallace Troup. The head table guests were piped in by Cpl. D. E. Stevenson of the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa.

Convener of this highly successful affair was Dr. Harold A. Quinn, Sc. '41, assisted by Mrs. H. A. Quinn, and Miss Marian MacLachlan, P.H.E. '54.

Prior to the dinner meeting a cocktail party was given at the Rockcliffe home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Rowley Booth in honour of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Crump. More than one hundred were in attendance.

Hamilton Alumnae Hold Successful Bridge Party

The president of the Hamilton alumnae, Miss Anne Smith, Arts '22, and Mrs. H. F. McKerracher (Doreen Denyes), Arts '46, received the guests at the recent successful bridge party held at St. Paul's parish hall, Westdale. J. C. Hickmore, Sc. '48½, president of the Hamilton alumni, and Mrs. H. J. Taylor (Anne Boyle), Arts '51, drew the prizes, which were wrapped in the tricolour, this colour scheme being repeated in the flowers and candles on the coffee table.

Others who assisted in arrangements were Mrs. A. R. Trayes (Helen Kerr), Arts '27, Mrs. A. F. Meiklejohn (Jean Ramsay), Arts '30, Mrs. W. A. Morris (Muriel Wilson), Arts '23, Mrs. A. B. McBurney (Margaret Currie), Arts '53, Mrs. W. G. Cornett (Jessie Ewart), Arts '21, Mrs. A. H. Lee (Diana Wellington), Arts '53, Mrs. G. S. French (Iris Ivey), Arts '44, Miss Olwen Davies, Arts '48, and Miss Lois Allan, Arts '21.

Toronto Winter Reunion Held For Recent Graduates

More than a hundred postwar graduates assembled in the Cascade Room of the Town and Country, Toronto, on January 19. The occasion was the second annual Winter Reunion, sponsored jointly by the Toronto alumnae and alumni branches.

Conveners of this successful events were Mrs. D. C. Woolley (Marjorie MacGregor), Arts '51, Miss Sybil Rutley, Arts '55, Pat Courage, Sc. '51, and Paul Jeffrey, Arts '50.

Brantford Alumni Meet

Members of the Brantford branch met in the Yellow Room of the Brantford Drama League on February 12, with thirty-two in attendance. The president, John Maycock, Arts '54, was in the chair.

After a business session, the remainder of the evening was spent in social pursuits: bridge, scrabble, and hearts.

Students From Overseas Address Kingston Alumnae

Members of the Kingston alumnae enjoyed an address on "The Present State of the Gold Coast" given by Stephen Donkor, Sc. '60, Kumasi, Africa, and on "The Festivals of India," by K. G. Samnotra, postgraduate student in Arts, from Chandliagarh, Punjab, at their February meeting held in Ban Righ Hall. The president, Miss Diana Blake, Arts '45, was in the chair.

The speakers were introduced by Miss Mary L. Macdonnell, Arts '09. The appreciation of the gathering was expressed by Miss Verna Wilson, Arts '43. Afterwards coffee was served by Mrs. F. W. Gibson (Margaret MacKay), Arts '46, and her committee.

Guelph Alumni and Friends Enjoy Pleasant Programme

Members and friends of the Guelph alumni branch met on January 30 at the Guelph Lawn Bowling building. During the evening the excellent film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was shown by Gordon Reid, Arts '38.

The pleasant programme was enhanced by the presence of parents of several students from the Guelph area now attending Queen's. Mrs. Harold Cormick (Marion Morton), Arts '51, social convener, was in charge of the programme and refreshments.

Films Highlight Programme At Regina Meeting

The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," and the 1941 film, "Paths of Learning," were the highlights of a pleasant programme put on by the Regina branch in the Officers' Mess of the H.M.C.S. Queen on January 30. There were fifty in attendance, including a few of the parents of students now at the University.

C. T. Fyle of the Central Collegiate spoke briefly on students from Regina in attendance at Queen's. Dr. E. K. Sauer, Arts '23, Med. '26, also spoke of the Alumni Fund canvass which will be held this year.

CORNWALL BRANCH FORMED
L. E. Harris, president of the newly formed Cornwall and District branch, receives the congratulations of Principal W. A. Mackintosh.

Cornwall and District Branch is Formed

A new member was admitted to the family circle when the Cornwall and District branch was formed at an inaugural dinner meeting held at the Cornwallis Hotel on February 8. Ninety-five were in attendance.

President of the branch is L. E. Harris, Sc. '35, with R. E. Robinson, Arts '47, as vice-president, Mrs. C. J. Menendez (Elspeth Wishart), Arts '53, secretary, and G. A. Hill, Com. '49, treasurer. On the executive committee are Mrs. M. E. Andrews (Mary Eileen Cleary), Arts '36, R. A. Findlay, Sc. '30, F. B. MacMillan, Arts '35, Dr. Howard W. Justus, Med. '28, Chesterville; and W. J. Halliwell, Sc. '53. The report of the nominating committee was brought in by F. W. Elliott, Sc. '23.

Mr. Harris was presented with a charter and a gavel from the Alumni Association by H. J. Hamilton, alumni secretary. A message of congratulations and best wishes was read from W. A. Dawson, president of the Association.

Speaker of the evening was Principal W. A. Mackintosh who told of recent developments at the University and of plans for the future. He said that he did not think that expansion at Queen's would follow the same pattern of development as in institutions in metropolitan areas or in provincial universities with their widespread professional responsibilities, or in those institutions which serve primarily a city community.

The Principal was introduced by G. B. M. Stidwill, Sc. '32, and was thanked by D. C. Johnston, Sc. '48. Mr. Hamilton was introduced by Alexander Caldwell, Arts '31.

Chairman of the first part of the programme was B. T. Yates, Sc. '17, who with N. I. Battista, Sc. '33, and W. J. Halliwell, Sc. '53, had acted as a steering committee in getting the new branch started. When the report of the nominating committee was adopted Mr. Yates turned the meeting over to the new president, Mr. Harris.

The film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was shown and was greatly enjoyed. Introduction by classes of the alumni present was also a feature of the programme.

Niagara Peninsula Branch Plans For Alumni Fund Canvass

A meeting of the executive committee of the Niagara Peninsula branch was held at the home of L. F. Barnhardt, Sc. '47, in Welland, on January 31. An organization headed by J. H. Travers, Sc. '50, St. Catharines, was set up to canvass for the Alumni Fund. Preliminary arrangements were also made for a dinner dance in Welland on May 24.

Wellington-Waterloo Branch Holds Annual Dinner Meeting

Forty-one members and guests of the Wellington-Waterloo branch were entertained at a reception at the home of the president, Dr. C. S. Wilson, Med. '29, and Mrs. Wilson, in Conestogo, in November. The reception was held prior to the annual dinner, held this year at the Old Landmark Inn, Conestogo.

Survey of World Conditions Given By Dr. A. R. M. Lower

A survey of world conditions was made the subject of an interesting address given by Dr. A. R. M. Lower, the James Douglas Professor of Canadian and Colonial History, at the dinner meeting of the Brockville branch held at the Golden Oak, Maitland, on February 22.

Taking as his subject, "The World is Out of Joint," Dr. Lower gave a summary of the forces which had disturbed the peace of the world over the centuries. In the present day the two great powers are the United States and Russia and tension mounts as they jockey for power and influence. It is in such an atmosphere that the Near East comes into prominence in the news of today.

The Queen's historian saw nationalism as the greatest force in the world at present, a much greater unifying force than religion. He did not hold out much hope for any international body's being able to hold in check the human and natural emotion of national pride.

Dr. Lower was introduced by D. A. Grant, Arts '33, and was thanked by D. M. Lever, Sc. '55.

J. R. Matheson, Arts '40, spoke briefly in describing the possibilities in the creation of a distinctive Queen's tartan. He felt that such a project was worthy of serious consideration on the part of all Queen's students and graduates and asked for ideas and assistance from those present.

H. J. Hamilton, Alumni secretary, also spoke briefly with reference to the National Fund and the Alumni Fund.

G. G. Eller, Sc. '51, president of the branch, was in the chair.

Women Graduates in Calgary Form New Branch

A local group of women graduates of Queen's University met recently to form the Calgary branch of the Queen's Alumnae Association. Receiving the group at her home was Mrs. W. C. Gussow (Margaret Robinson), Arts '36, assisted by Mrs. J. A. Noakes (Margaret Crothers), N.Sc. '48.

The new branch aims at fostering closer ties between the university and its women graduates resident in Calgary; serving as a strong supporting body to the local Alumni branch; and serving as a welcoming centre for women graduates recently arrived in the city. There will be no membership fees, and meeting will be kept informal.

The following members of the group were nominated to organize the activities of the branch during its first year: membership secretary, Miss Isobel Breckon, Com. 28, assisted by Mrs. R. N. Cole (Eva Bertram), Arts '51; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. S. McGibbon (Beatrice Sheldon), Com. '43; social conveners, Mrs. William Robson (Nancy Lewis), Arts '47, and Mrs. James Mackie (Helen Stock), Arts '47; and press reporter, Miss Dorothy Wardle, Arts '42.

The first meeting of the new branch will be held March 26 at the home of Mrs. Sidney Robbins, (Honora Dyde), Arts '22, 2114 - 7th St. S.W. at 8:15 p.m.

Those interested in joining the branch are asked to contact Miss Breckon at 62885, Mrs. Cole at 34296, or any of the above-mentioned members as soon as possible.

Hamilton Alumnae Hear Address On Interior Decoration

Interior decoration was the topic of the evening for members of the Hamilton alumnae when they met recently at the home of Mrs. G. I. Geddes (Winnifred Rorabeck), Arts '28. An address on this subject was given by Mrs. Hooker, representive of Cody's Stores Limited, who illustrated her remarks with slides. Miss Anne Smith, Arts '22, president, was in the chair, and thanked the speaker for a most entertaining address.

Refreshments were in honour of the hostess, Mrs. Geddes, who was celebrating her birthday. They were served by the past president, Mrs. H. F. McKerracher (Doreen Denyes), Arts '46, and her committee.

Films and Slides Shown To Kingston Alumni

Approximately one hundred members and friends of the Kingston branch turned out for the smorgasbord and meeting at the LaSalle Hotel on February 10.

After the dinner the group met in the ballroom to enjoy a programme of films and slides. David J. Day, Arts '49, spoke briefly in outlining the plans for future activities, including a swimming party in April.

The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was shown, after an introduction by Dr. H. W. Curran, director of the Department of Extension. Dr. Curran also showed a series of coloured slides of the University, most of which had been presented by the Kingston alumni.

Frank Tindall, head football coach, showed films of the Queen's-Varsity playoff game last year and provided the running commentary.

B. I. ENGLAND

Administrating the business of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association has developed into a major task, and because of the transition stage through which the organization is passing, it has become necessary to set up additional National Administrative Committees to cope with the many new problems.

To single out one Committee as being more essential than another would be most unfair. It is expedient that reference be made to the establishment of a National Finance Committee. Mr. M. Neil Hay agreed to chair this committee for one year only, and rendered valuable service in establishing the pattern of its current operations. It has been generally agreed that the committee function at the national level, and act as a guiding counsel, when requested by the Board of Directors, on all matters of a financial nature.

It is a pleasure for me to announce the cheerful acceptance and official appointment of Mr. Baxter I. England as the new chairman of the National Finance Committee. He is a Queen's graduate of the Arts Class of 1920 and the Commerce Class of 1923, and a member of a Kingston firm of Chartered Accountants, to wit, England, Leonard, Macpherson & Company.

Mr. England brings with him a wealth of information and experience, that will serve as a tower of strength to the professional status and prestige of his committee.

ACCEPTANCE AND APPRECIATION are among the most difficult things to win
from the public.

The skill and perseverance of trained Canada Life personnel in serving policyholders have proved to be an invaluable element of the Company's expansion programme.

The record increase during 1956
in the number of Canada Life policyholders is a testimony to the respect and to the high reputation enjoyed by the Canada Life in Canada,
the United States and the British Isles.

this season, giving Coach Frank Tindall his first football-and-basketball title combination. The scores were: Queen's, 77, Assumption, 74; Queen's, 85, Assumption, 94; Queen's, 86, Western, 72; Queen's, 54, Western, 69; Queen's, 79, Varsity, 56; Queen's, 76, Varsity, 74; Queen's, 69, McMaster, 67; Queen's, 89, McMaster, 68; Queen's, 80, McGill, 75; Queen's, 73, McGill, 61.

The only previous basketball titles won by Queen's were in 1926 and 1936. It is interesting to note that football championships were also won in those seasons.

Preparing for a lifetime of progress

He has the urge to be where "big things" are happening . . . so he is studying engineering.

Wherever you go in Canada today you can see the work of the professional engineer whose vision, initiative and orderly thinking are vital to progress in this swift-moving technological age.

When you flip a switch at home an amazingly intricate system of power equipment goes to work for you. Electricity cannot be made and stored—it is made and delivered instantly at the speed of light. In effect, you reach back from your switch through wires, meters, transformers, substations, switchgear, generators, turbines—right to the very source of power. This incredible process . . . safe, reliable and low-priced . . . has been made possible through the skills of professional engineers.

Less than 20 years ago only about one in 700 workers was a graduate engineer . . . today there is 1 to every 150 workers. At Canadian General Electric we employ nearly 1,000 engineers—approximately one to every 20 employees—and more are constantly needed to keep pace with the increasing demand for equipment to generate and transmit electric power and the many products which put it to work.

For over 50 years this Company has conducted a training programme for engineering graduates. In our plants, they acquire an intimate knowledge of the theoretical and practical principles of manufacture, design and installation. Known as the "Test Course" it has provided important postgraduate training for many of today's professional engineers in various fields of Canadian industry.

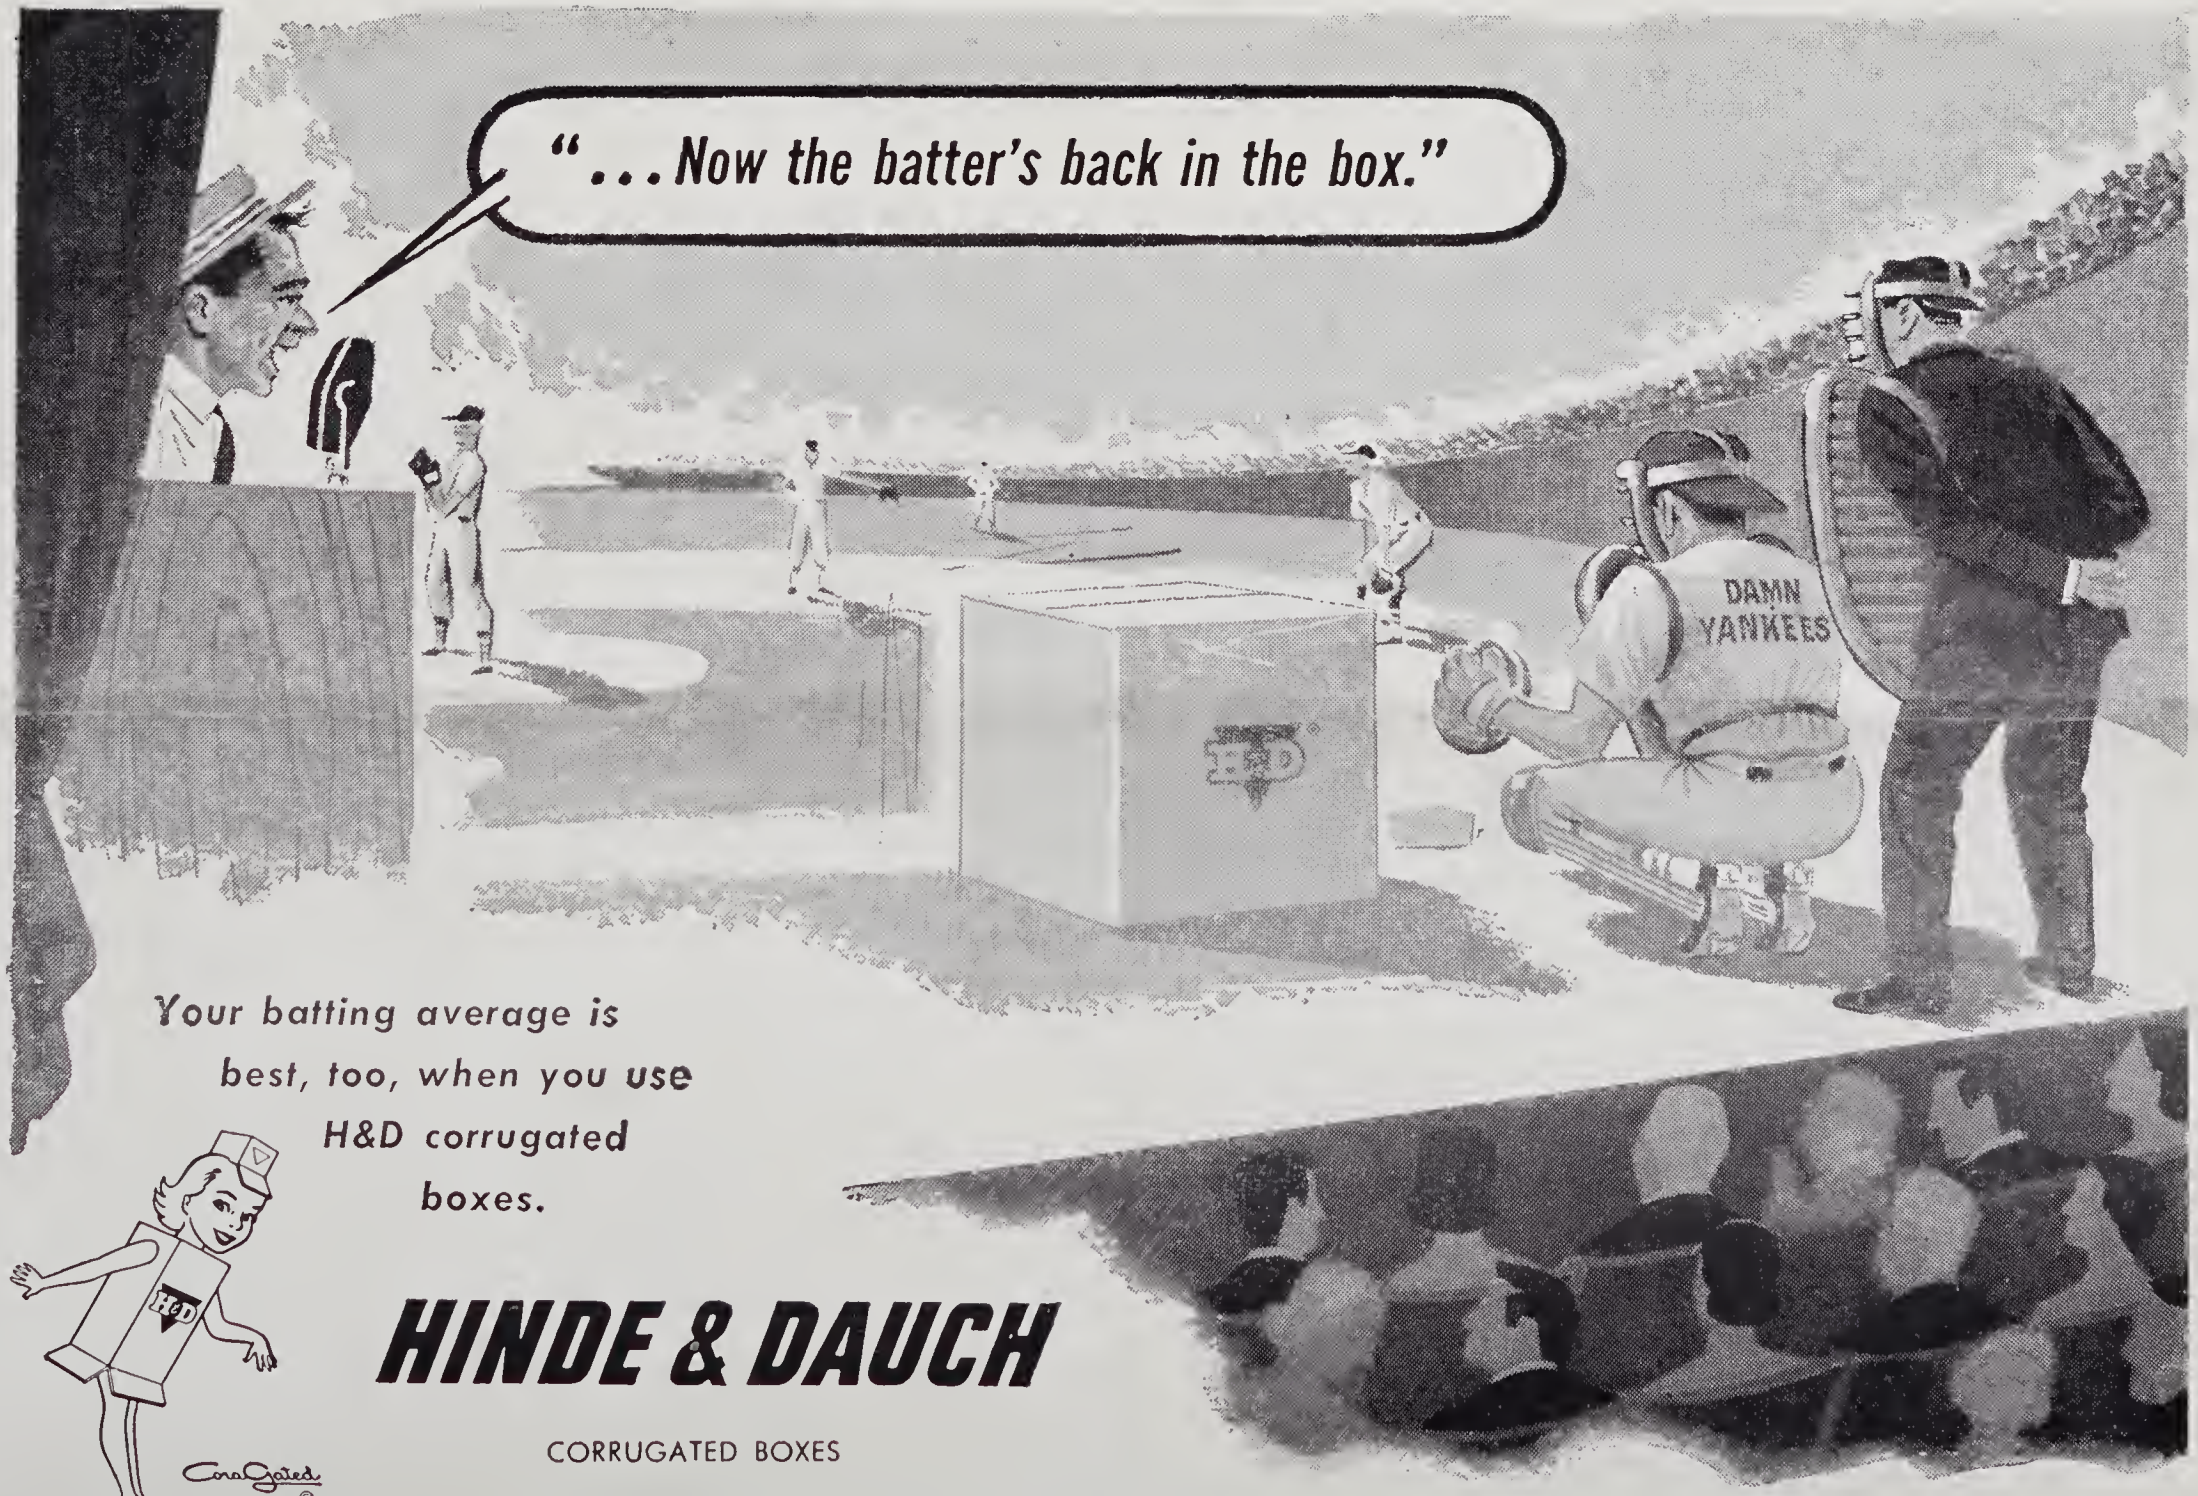

The future holds many engineering opportunities in Canada, where people are so electrically minded that the demand for power doubles every 10 years! Right now engineers are busy on products, projects and in industries that didn't even exist a few years ago, when many electrical developments, such as television, were practically unknown.

Canada's first atomic electric power plant presents one of the greatest engineering challenges of our time. It is being built by Canadian General Electric for Atomic Energy of Canada Limited and Ontario Hydro. This is just one of many great projects that exemplify the major role being played by professional engineers . . . key men in our nation's progress.

NATIONAL FUND

Nation-Wide Campaign

To Raise $4,000,000

For Expansion Programme

N. R. Crump

Is General Chairman

A $4,000,000 nation-wide campaign to raise funds for Queen's University started in mid-March in nearly thirty cities across Canada from Halifax in the east to Vancouver and Victoria in the west and from Windsor in the south to Yellowknife in the north.

The fund drive was launched to provide a part of the costs of a $9,200,000 expansion programme to be carried out by Queen's over the next five years.

N. R. Crump, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is general chairman of the National Fund for Queen's, and Graham F. Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada from 1934 to 1954, is honorary treasurer. Behind these men stand some thirty division and deputy chairmen in key cities across Canada.

Successful completion of the drive in May will allow construction to start this year on a new $1,100,000 engineering building to augment the University's present 65-year-old civil engineering structure.

Plans for the new building provide for a large auditorium, nuclear reactor room, heavy-duty laboratories for testing concrete, paving compounds, soils and engineering structures, classrooms, offices and an astronomy section.

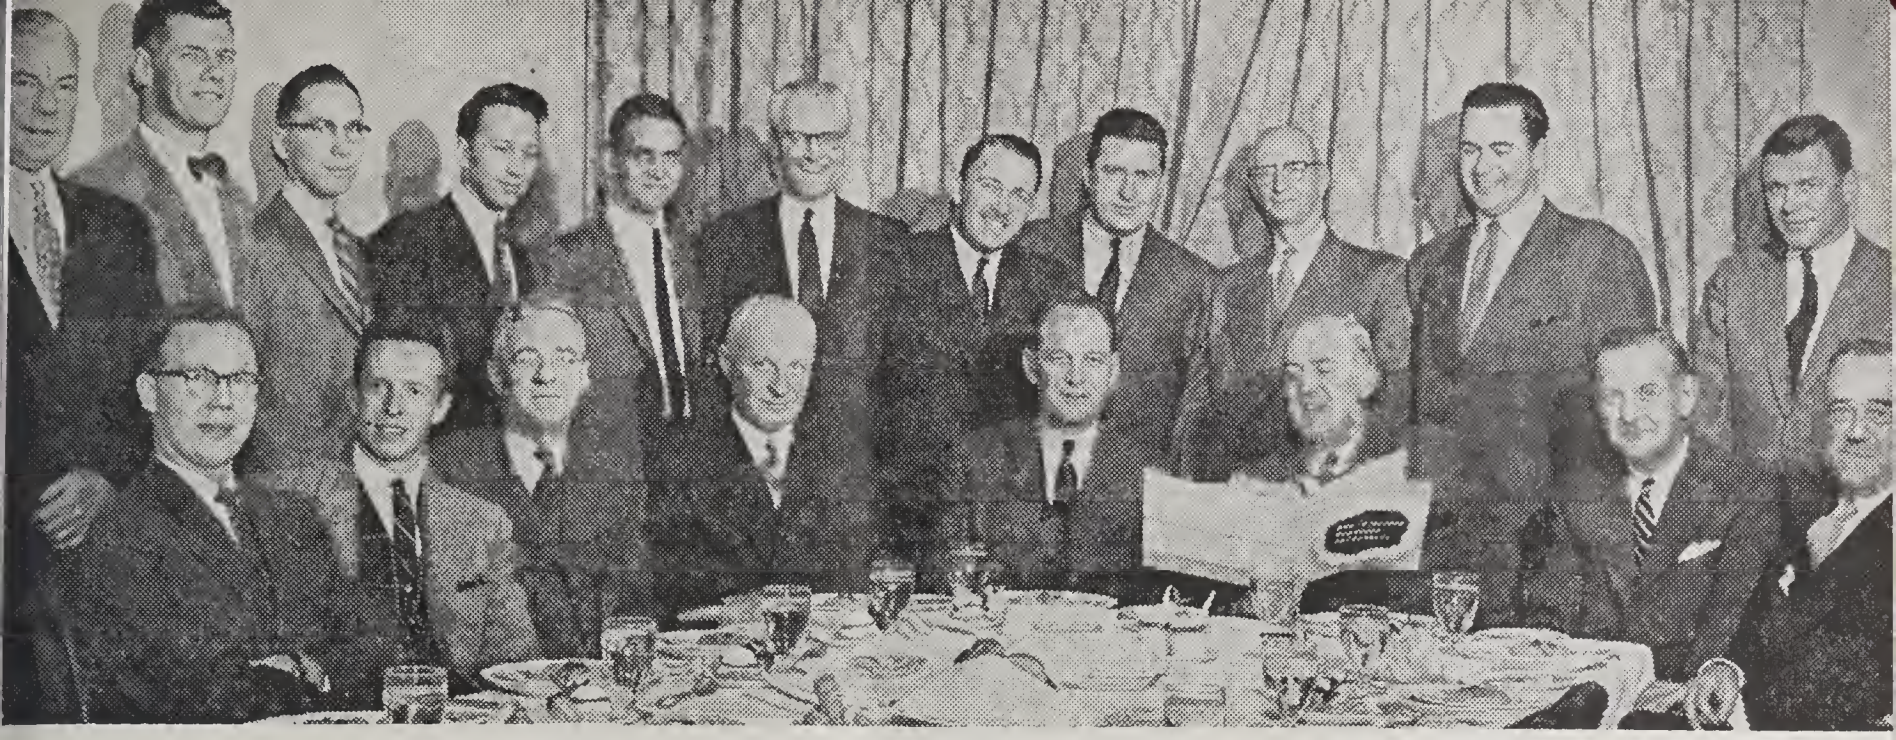

Also scheduled for construction in 1957 is a new $900,000 students' residence to house 180 men, patterned after the interior plan used by naval architects in designing ocean liners.

Other building to follow over a five year period includes a $1,000,000 structure for social sciences and the School of Commerce; $800,000 worth of additional laboratory space for physics, chemistry and metallurgy; a remodelling programme for existing buildings; two additional residences for men students and an addition to the women's residence to cost $2,000,000.

The new commerce building will bring together students and staff in commerce, economics, political science, and industrial relations and provide space for research in economics and greatly enlarged professional courses in banking and accounting.

Total costs of the expansion programme at Queen's over the next five years is $9,200,000. Of this the minimum amount sought during the fund drive from corporations, business firms, foundations and individuals is $4,000,000. The difference of $5,200,000 is expected from federal and provincial governmental capital grants and bequests.

When the five-year programme has been completed, Queen's will be able to handle a full-time student body of well over 3000 as compared to the 2500 students presently enrolled at the university. Plans call for an increase in the Arts and Commerce courses of approximately 300 students, plus an increase of 200 students in Applied Science. In Medicine and Nursing, thirty more applicants will be enrolled annually, and students taking graduate studies will be more than doubled.

"Queen's University Sets the Standard Today . . . for Canadians Tomorrow" is the slogan of the Toronto Personal Gifts Committee, Team captains and workers shown are: left to right, seated—M. Bruce Selman, Murray A. Gill, James T. Gow, E. C. Gill (Division chairman), W. H. Browne, and C. L. McCutcheon (committee co-chairmen); D. Murray Allan, Ralph W. E. Dilworth; standing—H. A. Coon, Patrick A. Courage, William S. E. Chown, Ian M. Rogers, president of Toronto alumni; R. Lang Farrand, W. H. Poole, Norman McL. Rogers, J. M. Munro, W. P. Ferguson, W. R. Richmond, D. B. Minnes.

Queen's University which draws less than 11 per cent of its present enrolment of 2500 students from the Kingston area is often referred to as the least local of Canadian universities. Its young men and women come from all of the Canadian provinces and from many other lands as well. Since 1841 the University has had nearly 20,000 graduates who have settled all across the country to engage in almost every field of business, industry, finance and government.

Queen's produces annually a larger ratio of engineering graduates—engineering degrees to total degrees—than any other Canadian university. The immediate task of the engineering faculty at Queen's is to increase the number of trained graduates to fill job openings in industry and the engineering profession. Canadian industry needs and can absorb some 2,500 to 3,000 new engineers a year. Yet only 1,800 engineering students graduated from all Canadian universities in 1956.

By improving facilities and teaching, by better student selection and guidance and by opening the doors to students from pre-engineering colleges, Queen's plans to increase its engineering graduates to nearly 300 annually, an output almost three times greater than pre-war years.

When additional classrooms, laboratories and staff are readied, Queen's will be able to increase substantially the number of students in the Faculty of Arts.

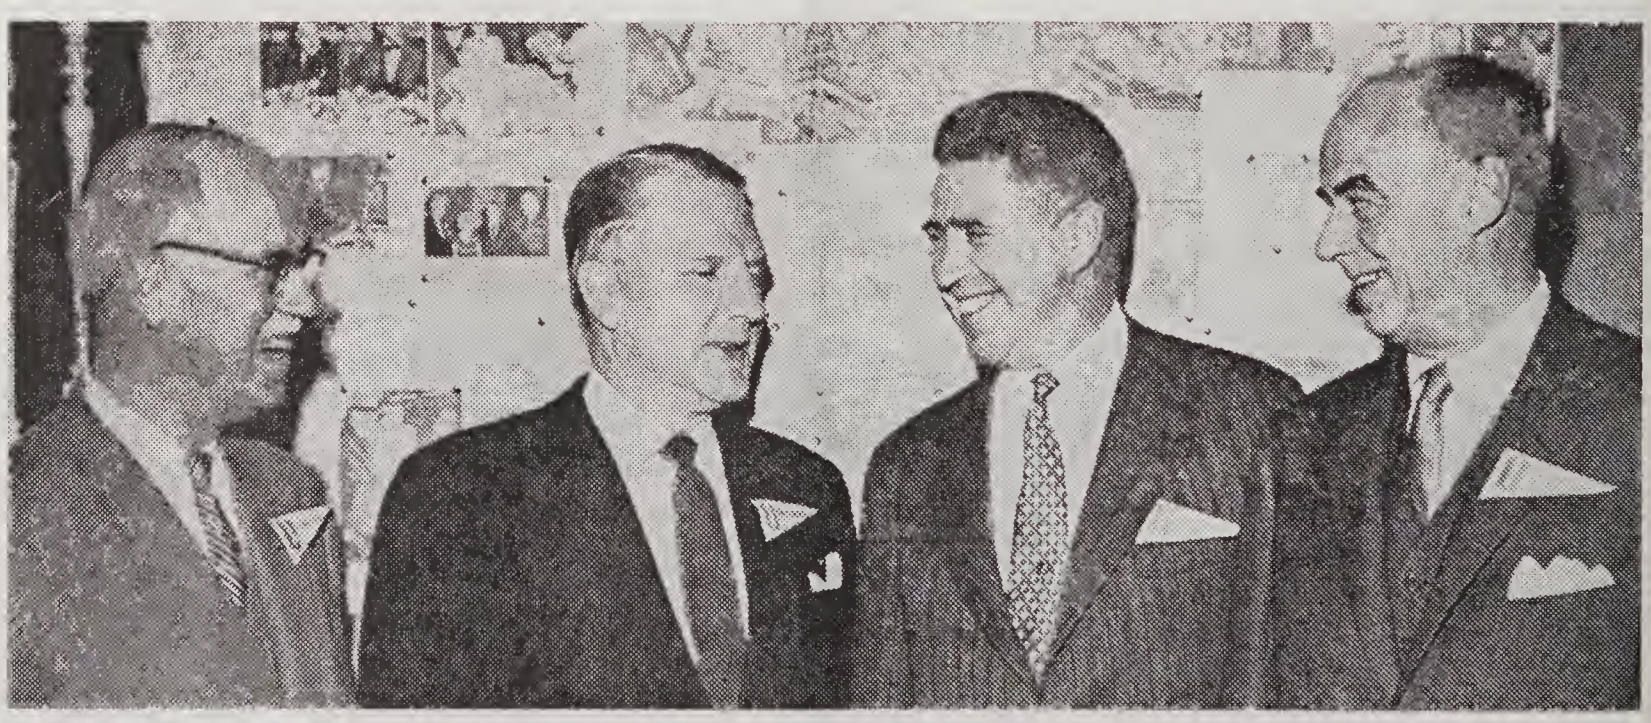

The University particularly wants to enrol larger numbers of students capable of taking honours courses, whose graduates are needed as teachers, lawyers, research scientists and business executives.

The need for such persons with advanced training and experience in the humanities and sciences is reflected in the calibre of graduates required by employment teams from Canadian businesses and industries which visit the campus each year.

Queen's will also continue the expansion of its graduate studies. This is an extension in depth which university officers feel is as necessary as expansion in numbers, if needs for teaching research and industry are to be met. The substantial progress already made in increasing staff and equipment in this field is being extended as large numbers of graduate students come forward.

These are the aims behind the five-year expansion programme upon which Queen's has embarked. In blue-printing the programme, guidance has come from advisory councils in engineering, commerce, business administration, industrial relations and medicine.

Canadian business and industry as well as individuals have been urged to back the fund drive for Queen's and many national corporations have already set a high level of giving to the campaign in the preliminary stages.

In public addresses throughout Canada, Mr. Crump, the Fund's general chairman, has termed financial support of Canada's universities by business and industry "a part of the costs of doing business," resulting in many more highly trained men and women being made available for Canadian business and industry.

Alumni Fund

Contributions from Alumni Show Increase

Hamilton Branch Leads in Two Categories

by Monica McQueen
Alumni Fund Officer

•The final count on donations from the alumni to the Alumni Fund is now complete for 1956 and gives us a total of $73,531 compared with $61,248 in 1955, an increase of $12,283, slightly better than the previous year's increase which was $9,797. Of the alumni, 19.5 per cent gave this year, and the average gift was $23.18. The figure for alumni donations to all Queen's funds is much larger than usual this year. Certain class years which were sponsoring scholarships put on drives to capitalize their funds and wound up their fund-raising activities for their special funds. Some large bequests were also received which increased the total. In all 4025 (24.7 per cent) alumni donated $1,048,892 to Queen's in 1956.

The top ten Alumni branches by percentage of donors to the Alumni Fund, by percentage of donors to all Queen's funds, and by average amounts contributed to the Alumni Fund are as follows:

District	% contributing to Alumni Fund
1. Hamilton	35.8.
2. Ottawa	33.2.
3. Montreal	30.2
4. Quebec City	29.5.
5. Peterborough	27.1.
6. St. Maurice	25.0.
7. Saguenay	24.6.
8. Belleville	24.1.
9. Kootenay	23.0.
10. N. W. Quebec	22.7.

District	% contributing to Queen's Funds

2. St. Maurice	40.4.
3. N. W. Quebec	37.9.
4. Quebec City	37.7.
5. Ottawa	37.6.
6. Saguenay	36.9.
7. Peterborough	36.1.
8. Montreal	34.9.
9. Brantford	34.9.
10. Belleville	29.7.

District	Average contribution to Alumni Fund
1. Brantford	$68.47.
2. Edmonton	61.85.
3. Foreign	49.63.
4. U.S.A.	45.40.
5. Kent County	40.00.
6. St. Maurice	36.01.
7. Calgary	35.62.
8. North Bay	35.33.
9. N. W. Quebec	35.00.
10. Quebec City	32.71.

The policy of sending an annual report on the Fund to all alumni is being followed again this year. The names of donors will be listed under the appropriate class year, and the report will also contain messages from the Principal, from the two honorary chairmen for the Alumni Fund, Hon. R. O. Campney and Dr. J. E. Hammett, and the chairman of the Alumni Fund committee, David L. Rigsby. It should be in the mail shortly.

This promises to be an important year in fund raising for Queen's. The National Fund for Queen's University started officially in mid-March. Many of the alumni are working as canvassers for this fund; others will find that their names are on a "special list" and they will be asked to give to this National Fund in 1957. This is raising a question among those who have given through the Alumni Fund for many years, and have made great efforts to build up the Fund. Hence, a word of explanation about the relationship between the National Fund and the Alumni Fund may be useful here.

The Principal's Advisory Committee on the Alumni Fund had a meeting in the fall, and subsequently recommended to the Board of Trustees, who concurred with the recommendation, that in 1957 the Alumni be given the choice of the same two objectives for their fund as they were given the previous year: (1) the Men's Residence Fund, and (2) The General Endowment Programme. These two objectives form part of the list of objectives for which the National Fund is being raised. The Trustees have stated that they did not wish the National Fund organization to interfere in any way with the development of the Alumni Fund for annual giving to Queen's. The Alumni Fund must go on long after the National Fund has been raised, and growth is essential to the successful operation of Funds as well as of human beings. Accordingly arrangements have been made for the Alumni Fund to receive a bookkeeping credit at the end of 1957 for every donation to the National Fund from an alumnus, and the branch Alumni Fund organizations will receive a similar credit on our records.

It is impossible to predict the effect of the National Fund on the Alumni Fund this year. However, we are hopeful that the additional publicity and the strong fund-raising committees set up by the National Fund in key cities across the country will in the long run benefit the local alumni branches and the Fund as a whole. Give a Queen's team a tough objective, whether it be to get a field goal in the last three minutes of play or a $4,000,000 campaign and what happens? We see:

. . . the spirit that inhabits here
Rise like a river—cool, reviving clear—
Serve the dear land she loves, water
the plain,
And sweep to the call of the urgent turbulent main—Spending her life abundantly, yet finding it again.

So we have no fears for 1957.

The President's Message

Recent issues of the Review have been carrying news of the National Fund for Queen's of which Mr. N. R. Crump is the active general chairman. On behalf of the Board of Directors your president wishes to express satisfaction with the hearty enthusiasm exhibited by the branches as they rally in support of this appeal. It is planned to increase its effectiveness by reaching more Queen's alumni and friends than any previous canvass.

We look to the officers of all branches to lend their loyal support to the 1957 campaign so that Queen's may continue to retain the distinction of having received the highest average donation from its graduates. Thus we will demonstrate that we are willing to bear part of someone else's education costs, just as someone bore part of ours. Let it be said that the support rendered by Queen's Alumni substantially aided the general chairman and his chosen leaders across Canada in their appeal to institutions, corporations and firms for funds.

The Board of Directors of the Alumni Association look with favour to the National Fund campaign, because we stand to gain many new branches and members, to say nothing of its general effect on regular annual alumni giving in the future.

A. M. S. Executive

To head the executive of the Alma Mater Society for next year, when the Society will be celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of student government at Queen's, W. R. "Herb" Harmer, Sc. '58, Southampton, Ont., has been elected as president. Mr. Harmer succeeds Rich Milne, Arts '54, Med. '58, Kingston, Ont.

Named as vice-president is R. A. Little, Arts '58, Parry Sound, Ont. Mr. Little is the son of Judge Walter Little, Arts '28, and Mrs. Little (Marjorie McDonald), Arts '28.

The complete executive is as follows:

Levana Society—president, Miss Beth Mahaffey, Arts '58, Guelph, Ont.; senior representative, Miss Anne Hayes, Arts '58, Montreal, Que.; junior, Miss Anne Davidson, Arts '59, Guelph, Ont.

Arts Society—president, J. F. Holmes, Arts '58, Fort Erie, Ont.; senior, R. A. Little; junior, H. D. Munro, Arts '59, Kingston, Ont.

Aesculapian Society – president, Al Deep, Med. '59, Windsor, Ont.; senior, Andy Wong, Med. '59, Toronto, Ont.; junior, Mort Low, Med. '60, Ottawa, Ont.

Engineering Society—president, W. R. Sexsmith, Sc. '58, Deseronto, Ont.; senior, W. R. Harmer; junior, J. E. Sexton, Sc. '59, London, Ont.

Theology representative, Al Gretsinger, Sturgeon Falls, Ont.; Journal editor, Herschel Hardin, Arts '58, Vegreville, Alta.; Athletic Stick, Dave Nowlan, Sc. '58, Toronto, Ont.

Tricolor Society

Six students were named to the Tricolor Society this year for "having rendered valuable service to the University in non-athletic, extra-curricular activities:" Miss Leonor Haw, Arts '57, Calgary, Alta.; Stu Howard, Arts '57, Brockville, Ont.; Paul Hubert, Sc. '57, St. Thomas, Ont.; Ed Korhonen, Sc. '57, Sudbury, Ont.; Bob Langford, Med. '58, Aldershot, Ont.; Rich Milne, Arts '54, Med. '58, Kingston, Ont.

Drama Festival

The Department of Drama was host to fourteen secondary schools of Eastern Ontario on the weekend of March 2. The area represented extended from Cobourg to Cornwall and north to Ottawa. In all, there were about 150 pupils in the casts and production staffs; and thirty teachers, seven of whom were graduates of Queen's, involved as directors and supervisors of the production staffs, helping with make-up, costumes, properties, and sound effects. The Department, which inaugurated this annual competition in 1948, provided the staging, properties, and lighting.

Sir Alan Herbert

The Rector, Dr. L. W. Brockington, recently received a letter from Sir Alan P. Herbert, who delivered the A. M. S. Lecture this year, written while en route back to England. Dr. Brockington reported that Sir Alan "was still glowing with the warmth of his reception at Queen's, for which he said he will ever be grateful." At the end of his letter he wrote the following couplet:

CANADA
A sense of stirring, like a wood in Spring—
Hope in the soil, and Courage on the wing.

115th Anniversary Marked

A plaque, marking the first building to house Queen's University, at 67 Colborne St., was unveiled March 7 at a colourful ceremony attended by the executive of the Alma Mater Society. Dr. J. A. Corry, vice-principal, served as chairman, and the plaque was unveiled by Prof. R. A. Preston of the Kingston Historical Society. Rich Milne, president of the A.M.S., read the proclamation announcing the opening of classes at Queen's on March 7, 1842.

Here and There

The Baccalaureate Service was held in Grant Hall on March 10. The preacher was Right Rev. Dr. K. C. Evans, Bishop of Ontario, and the service was conducted by Rev. A. M. Laverty, University Chaplain . . . The Queen's band put on a concert on February 28. In addition to the usual programme the members of the brass band played Kenton, Miller and Count Basie arrangements. The pipe band dancers performed Scottish country dancing and the Highland Fling. . . .

Appointments: editor of Who's-Where, Charles Finley, Arts '58, Oshawa, Ont.; band manager, Tom Kincaid, Sc. '59, Prescott, Ont.; Tricolor editor, Miss Patricia Switzer, Arts '59, Beamsville, Ont.; Tricolor business manager, Laird O'Brien, Arts '58, Ottawa, Ont.; Chief of Police, Jack Bawden, Sc. '58, Hamilton, Ont.; Journal business manager, Edward Koen, Arts '58, Kingston, Ont.

Athletic awards: John Evans Trophy, most valuable player on senior football team, Ron Stewart, Arts '57, Toronto, Ont.; Royal Todd Trophy, most valuable player on intermediate football team, John Turner, Sc. '60, Toronto, Ont.; Jack Powell Trophy, most valuable hockey player, Carl Nurmi, Arts '59, Sudbury, Ont.; Mike Milovick trophy, for boxing, Hugh Wood, Sc. '59, Kingston, Ont.; Jack Day trophy, for wrestling, Ken Esseltine, Sc. '60, Tillsonburg, Ont.; R.A.F. basketball trophy, most valuable player on senior basketball team, Paul Fedor, Arts '58, Niagara Falls, Ont.; Alfie Pierce trophy, outstanding first-year athlete, Miss Dorothy McLaughlin, Arts '60, Oshawa, Ont.; Bews trophy, intramural athletics, Medicine '60.

STUDENTS SUPPORT FUND

Rich Milne, president of the Alma Mater Society 1956-57, is shown presenting a cheque for $2,500 to M. N. Hay, Kingston Division chairman for the National Fund. The executive of the A.M.S. had voted the money as a donation from the student body to the Fund.

Summer School

The forty-eighth session of Summer School will open on July 2 this year and will continue until August 9. Practically all pass courses and some honours courses for the general Arts degree will be offered.

at the BRANCHES

Ernest C. Gill Receives Toronto Alumni Award

Presentation of the Toronto Award was made to Ernest C. Gill, Arts '23, at the annual dinner meeting of the Toronto branch held at the Granite Club on February 28.

Vice-chairman of the University's Board of Trustees and Toronto chairman of the National Fund campaign, Mr. Gill received the award in recognition of the honour he had brought to Queen's in his private and public life. Previous recipients of the award have been Col. E. A. Baker and J. M. Macdonnell, chairman of the Queen's Board of Trustees.

In making the presentation, Norman McL. Rogers, Arts '43, president of the Toronto branch said: "Mr. Gill matches stride with the foremost of those whose energy and vision have charted the development of Queen's."

Mr. Gill, in reply, thanked the branch for the honour and then spoke of certain exploits as a student which would have probably condemned him in the eyes of the selection committee if they had been known. In serious vein he then dealt with the relationship of industry and the universities. He pointed out that Canadian business was experiencing an acute shortage of personnel with university training, a fact which emphasizes the importance of financial support for all Canadian universities. He was happy to report that business was well aware of its responsibilities, as witnessed by the successful results of the advance National Fund canvass.

On behalf of the Toronto branch, Mrs. D. B. Toland (Edith Kent), Arts '47, thanked Mr. Gill. Mrs. Toland is president of the Toronto alumnae.

N. R. Crump, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway and chairman of the Queen's National Fund, said that Queen's alumni and friends in Toronto will be asked to contribute $1,440,000 toward a $4,000,000 national objective. Mr. Crump paid tribute to the calibre of men with whom he was associated in the Toronto canvass and also in the national picture.

Mr. Crump said last year there were more than 65,000 students in Canadian universities, and 123,000 will be enrolled in ten years. There are 5,970 teachers in university faculties and in 1967 more than 9,700 will be required. Faculty salaries total about $12,000,000. Even a 50 per cent increase is not sufficient if universities are to attract the right men. "Unless we do attract this type," he said, "we cannot hope to do the job that must be done for industry in Canada in the turning out of students."

W. A. Dawson, president of the Alumni Association, spoke with relation to the work of the Association on behalf of the University. He strongly urged all Queen's alumni to participate in the programme of the Association.

Dr. C. B. Munro Heads Renfrew County Branch

Dr. C. B. Munro, Med. '40, Pembroke, was elected president of the Renfrew County branch at the dinner meeting held in the banquet room of the Copeland Hotel, Pembroke, on March 9. Dr. Munro succeeds D. W. Stewart, Sc. '23, Renfrew.

Also elected were: secretary-treasurer, Mrs. F. I. Bailey, Com. '41, Pembroke; Deep River representative, F. G. Moote, Arts '49, Sc. '49, and J. D. Stewart, Arts '29 (alternate); Arnprior representative: Barclay C. Craig, Sc. '42, and Dr. R. W. McCreary, Arts '27, Med. '29 (alternate); Renfrew representative, J. A. MacKillican, Com. '48, and Mrs. D. W. Shaver (Melba MacLeod), Arts '49 (alternate).

W. A. Dawson Describes Work of Alumni Association

An interesting story of the work of the Alumni Association in representing the 16,000 graduates of Queen's was given by W. A. Dawson, president of the Association, at the annual dinner meeting of the Oshawa branch held in St. George's Church parish hall March 8.

Mr. Dawson gave a brief history of the Association and told of some of the plans for the future. Particular reference was made to the national committees that had been established to help the Directors carry on the work.

Seventy graduates and friends and parents of students were in attendance. The chairman was Dr. C. H. Vipond, Med. '43, retiring president of the branch.

H. J. Hamilton, alumni secretary, spoke briefly regarding the Alumni and National funds. He also referred to student life on the campus and to some of the changing customs. Stress was laid, however, on the fact that the spirit for which Queen's people are noted had not changed. Coloured slides of the University were shown, as well as the new film, "Queen's University at Kingston."

In the annual election of officers the following were returned: honorary president, Col. R. S. McLaughlin, LL.D. '46; president, F. J. Skinner, Sc. '47; vice-president, W. O. Hart, Sc. '29; secretary, G. L. Murdoch, Com. '41; treasurer, Miss Hilda Rice, Arts '34; directors—Mrs. H. Hart (Hazel Michael), Arts '19, Mrs. D. R. Cameron (Edna Spottiswood), Arts '07, Gord McMahon, Sc. National Fund Campaign Starts In Windsor Canadian university facilities must be expanded to prevent the crippling of the country's economic growth, N. R. Crump, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway and chairman of the Queen's National Fund, said at the annual meeting of the Windsor branch on March 7. The meeting was held in the Prince Edward Hotel, with 250 in attendance.

Mr. Crump called on business organizations to support universities in their drives for funds. "It is a cost and a part of doing business," he said, pointing out business's needs for university graduates.

Chairman of the Queen's campaign to raise $4,000,000 across Canada, Mr. Crump officially opened the Windsor drive. He urged his listeners to support the campaign which he said was proceeding well to date according to the advance gifts.

Mr. Crump was introduced by R. W. Todgham, president of Chrysler of Canada and a graduate of the University of Michigan who said the C.P.R. president "is one of the most distinguished business leaders in Canada." He was thanked by Miss Anne Hume,

The toast to Queen's was moved by Prof. Donald R. C. Cowan, Arts '17, of the School of Business Administration, University of Michigan. In response J. A. Edmison, assistant to the Principal at Queen's, brought greetings from the University.

The toast to sister universities was proposed by Dr. W. R. Waddell, Med. '24. This was followed by the introduction of representatives from other universities by L. C. Clarke, Arts '40.

The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was shown and was greatly enjoyed.

Arthur B. Harris, Sc. '47, chairman of the dinner, was elected president of the branch for the ensuing year. Douglas S. A. Bell, Arts '51, B.P.H.E. '52, was named as vice-president, and L. C. Clarke, Arts '40, as secretary-treasurer and chairman of the Alumni Fund.

Head Coach Frank Tindall Speaks To Hamilton Alumni

The annual sports night of the Hamilton branch was held at the Bell Telephone Service Centre on March 20, with Head Coach Frank Tindall as the guest of honour. Also present were a number of high school athletes. The guests were welcomed by the president, J. C. Hickmore, Sc. '48.

Movie highlights of the past football season were shown, Mr. Tindall providing the running commentary. In his usual witty fashion he told of some of his experiences as a football and basketball coach at Queen's. He also answered questions from the floor on athletics at Queen's.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. J. W. Charters, Med. '52, who played for Queen's football teams for several years as a centre. He was thanked by J. R. 'Tip" Logan, Arts '52, also a former player.

The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was shown and was enthusiastically received by alumni and guests alike.

H. J. Hamilton, alumni secretary, spoke briefly in complimenting the Hamilton branch on their showing in the Alumni Fund results for last year. Under the capable chairmanship of C. H. Drew, Com. '25, the committee had succeeded in putting Hamilton at the top of the district percentages of alumni contributing to the Fund, 35.8 per cent, and at the top of the percentages of alumni contributing to all Queen's funds, 44.4 per cent.

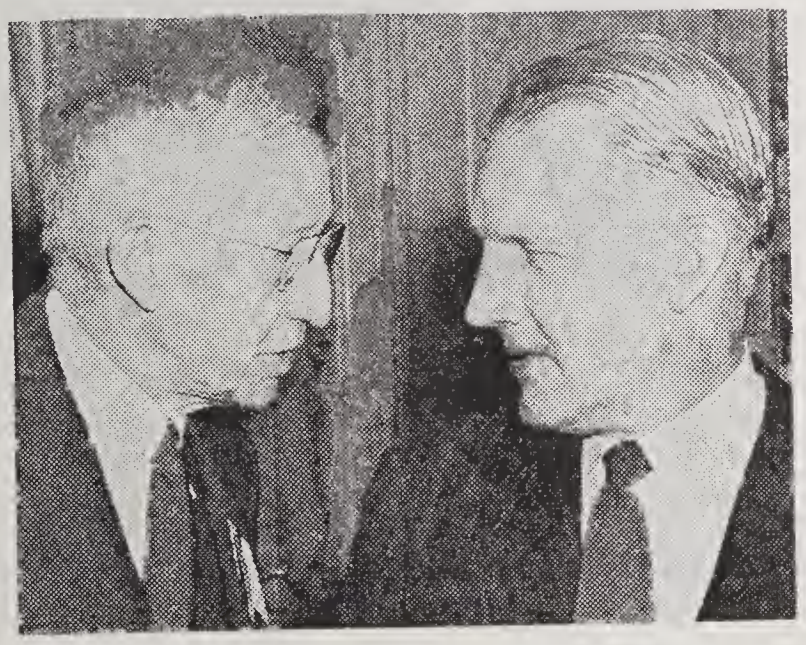

$124,000 GRANT

Queen's has been awarded a federal government grant of $124,000 towards equipment and furniture for the new $700,000 physiology building being constructed at the corner of Arch and Deacon streets. It is the policy of the government, through the Department of Health and Welfare, to encourage medical research in the various universities, partly by making available capital grants in this manner.

KENT COUNTY MEETING

Principal Mackintosh, Miss Norma Stevens, and John Gilchrist. This meeting was held at the William Pitt Hotel in Chatham on March 7 and attracted an attendance of 150 alumni and friends.

Principal Mackintosh Addresses Kent County Branch

The greatest need in Canada is not industrial resources or capital, though these are needed, but for trained, educated persons of integrity, Principal W. A. Mackintosh said at the annual dinner meeting of the Kent County branch on March 7. The meeting was held in the William Pitt Hotel in Chatham, with 150 in attendance. Miss Norma Stevens, Arts '34, president, was in the chair.

In speaking of "National Expansion and Human Resources," Dr. Mackintosh told of this remarkable era in Canadian development which nothing but catastrophe could divert from the destiny of 300 years in the making.

"What we need most is the trained, educated person of integrity," he said. "It is the individual which can be the most costly yet the most valuable asset we have. Expansion in the universities is inevitable, but there should be no substitution of quantity for quality in education."

The toast to Queen's was proposed by Dr. J. W. Edwards, Arts '19, Ridgetown, and response was made by John Gilchrist, Arts '15, Blenheim. Dr. E. R. Tiffin, Arts '26, Med. '28, Wallaceburg, proposed the toast to sister universities, to which Dr. H. E. Foex replied.

Rev. Donald MacInnes, Arts '22, Ridgetown, led a sing-song, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. MacInnes. The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was shown and greatly enjoyed.

In the election of officers Dr. P. T. Coulter, Med. '43, was elected as president for the ensuing year. He succeeds Miss Norma Stevens, Arts '34. Also appointed were: vice-president, Clayton Leach, Sc. '48; secretary, Miss Mary Claus, Arts '41; treasurer, Langford Miller, Com. '28; Alumni Fund chairman, Russell Smith, Arts '24, Com. '25; county representatives—Norman Southern, Sc. '39, Wallaceburg, and Dr. Lawrence Mallory, Med. '51, Ridgetown. The report of the nominating committee was brought in by Dr. C. D. Baird, Med. '41.

Norman C. Morris Elected President of Toronto Alumni

Norman C. Morris, Com. '48, was elected president of the Toronto branch at the annual smoker held in the Oak Room of the Union Station on March 15. Mr. Morris succeeds Norman McL. Rogers, Arts '43.

Also appointed were: honorary president, W. N. McLeod, Arts '12; first vice-president, W. R. Richmond, Com. '47; second vice-president, Graham Whidden, Com. '44; third vice-president, Ian Rogers, Arts '46; fourth vice-president, K. R. Church, Com. '42, fifth vice-president, Douglas C. Woolley, Arts '50; treasurer, George Toller, Arts '50; secretary, Bruce Selman, Sc. '50; auditor, J. W. Bavis, Com. '40.

Committee—D. B. Minnes, Arts '50, Gary Smith, Arts '53, P. A. Courage, Sc. '51, W. Q. Macnee, Sc. '50, W. L. Hayhurst, Sc. '46, F. L. Cliff, Com. '47, E. R. Quinn, Arts '55, W. J. Coke, Arts '47, G. C. Gray, Com. '50, R. W. Stevens, Arts '49, Clarke Moon, Arts '48, Dr. W. P. Ferguson, Arts '08, Lou Bruce, Arts '56, L. B. Farrand, Sc. '51, Ross McKelvey, Arts '51, P.H.E. '52, R. D. Fardell, Sc. '49, P. G. Jeffrey, Arts '47, Murray A. Gill, Sc. '47, J. C. Smith, Sc. '41, W. S. E. Chown, Sc. '50, J. A. Watt, Sc. '49.

Advisory Board—J. S. Dewar, Sc. '41, John Buss, Sc. '19, Ernie Collyer, Sc. '23, J. M. Munro, Arts '38, Dr. J. A. Hannah, Arts '26, Med. '28.

Films of highlights of the football games of last season were shown by Head Coach Frank Tindall, who provided the running commentary and also spoke briefly. The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was also shown.

Dr. L. W. Brockington, Rector, was a guest at the meeting and was prevailed upon to make a few remarks. In his usual style Dr. Brockington regaled his listeners with news of Queen's, studded with anecdotes and stories.

The toast to Queen's was proposed by H. J. Hamilton, alumni secretary. Response was made by Rev. A. M. Laverty, University Chaplain.

Creative Work with Children Described by Television Artist

Madeline Arbour, of the French television network of the C.B.C., addressed members of the Montreal branch of the Alumnae at an evening meeting on March 13 at the University Women's Club. Mme. Arbour described, in an informal and entertaining manner, her creative work with children on such programmes as "Boite à Surprises" in which she demonstrates the uses of paint, paper, cloth, and similar materials. Mme. Arbour, who began her career as a display artist, has two young children of her own and takes great pleasure in combining her chief interests through the flexible medium of television. Members of the audience showed great interest in the production details which she described, and asked many questions. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. B. M. Cormier (Ruby Cordy), Arts '34, and thanked by Mrs. F. J. Fortier (Marjorie Bishop), Arts '43. The president, Mrs. C. F. Young (Mildred Jardine), Arts '21, was in the chair.

HAMILTON ALUMNAE BRIDGE

The Hamilton alumnae recently held a successful bridge party. Shown are Miss Anne Smith, president, and Mrs. W. G. Cornett.

NEW YORK SOCIETY ANNUAL DINNER

New York Society Hears N. R. Crump Speak on Queen's Needs

The needs of universities in general and of Queen's in particular were outlined by N. R. Crump, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway and chairman of the Queen's National Fund, at a meeting of the New York Society held at the White Turkey Town House on Madison Avenue on March 12.

Mr. Crump said that expansion of the University planned for the next five years will cost approximately $9,200,000. Of this sum it is hoped that the National Fund campaign will provide $4,000,000 made up of contributions from corporations and private individuals. In addition it is expected that provincial and federal government grants will total at least $5,200,000 over the five years.

The capital needs which have been set out for the next five years are: additional capital funds for teaching and research, $3,000,000; new engineering building, $1,000,000; second unit of the men's residences, $900,000; new building for social sciences and School of Commerce, $1,000,000; remodelling and extension of existing buildings, $400,000; additional laboratory space, $800,000; additional residence accommodation for men and women students, $2,000,000.

News of Queen's was brought by Principal W. A. Mackintosh and J. A. Edmison, assistant to the Principal. The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was shown and warmly received.

Kingston Alumnae Enjoy Film Programme

Three films formed an interesting programme for the February meeting of the Kingston alumnae held in Ban Righ Hall. The films were "Queen's University at Kingston," "Paths of Learning," and "Power and Passage."

During the short business portion of the meeting, with the president, Miss Diana Blake, Arts '46, in the chair, it was announced that the branch had this year donated $250 to the Marty Memorial Scholarship Fund, $50 to the Dean of Women's Fund, and $15 to the Eliza Fitzgerald Scholarship.

The nominating committee for officers for the 1957-58 executive was appointed: Miss Melva Eagleson, Arts '25, chairman; Mrs. Douglas Murray, and Mrs. Vernon Ready (Eileen Sorenson), Arts '51.

J. F. Coop Elected President at Calgary

J. F. Coop, Arts '47, was elected president of the Calgary branch at the meeting held on March 20. Mr. Coop succeeds Dr. E. A. Johnson, Med. '38. Also elected were N. R. Iredale, Arts '50, as secretary and Dr. M. E. Hriskevich, Sc. '47, as treasurer.

A feature of the programme was the showing the new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," which was greatly enjoyed. The branch also made arrangements for the film to be shown in the local high schools and at a National Fund meeting under the chairmanship of W. B. Airth, Sc. '26.

Mrs. Norman Miller Is Guest of Honour at Montreal

Mrs. Norman Miller, president of the Alumnae Association, was guest of honour at the annual dinner held by the Montreal branch at the University Women's Club on February 6. Mrs. Miller outlined recent developments at Queen's and urged the members to begin plans now for the residence space which will be very much needed within the next few years. She also commended the Dean of Women's Emergency Fund, instituted by this branch as a means of providing a little extra financial help to deserving women students. Mrs. Miller was introduced by the branch president Mrs. C. F. Young (Mildred Jardine), Arts '21, and thanked by Miss Gay Speal, Com. '43.

A panel discussion was held to review past programmes and encourage suggestions for future programmes. Mrs. B. M. Cormier (Ruby Cordy), Arts '34 led the discussion. Other members of the panel were Mrs. G. R. Woolsey (Florence Munro), Arts '22, Mrs. Leonard Croft (Nicki Bastedo), Arts '55, and Miss Kay O'Neill, Arts '43. Mrs. W. J. Hyde (Bessie Farrell), Arts '17, thanked the members of the panel. Mrs. J. U. MacEwen (Eleanor Smith), Arts '23, announced that the International Council of Women would hold a conference in Montreal in June.

CANADIAN UNIVERSITIES CLUB

Alumni resident in the New York area are invited to attend a meeting of the Canadian Universities Club in the Reception Hall, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Plaza at 46th St., New York City, on May 1. The meeting will take the form of a reception and will be held 5 - 7 p.m.

It is the plan of the executive to sponsor two regular gatherings each year. The second event in 1957 will be a formal dinner in November, with the Hon. Mr. Lester Pearson as guest speaker.

GRANT FOR RESEARCH

A grant has been awarded to Queen's Medical School by the life insurance companies doing business in Canada, through the standing committee on public health of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association. The grant, for research in the field of medical research, is one of a number awarded to various colleges, hospitals, and associations to support a number of public health and medical research projects.

At Queen's a team composed of Dr. Sergio Bencosme, Dr. David Rosen, and Dr. D. L. Wilson is doing research into the vascular complications of diabetes melitus.

Other recipients of grants are the College of General Practice of Canada, the University of Toronto's division of dental research, the Canadian Tuberculosis Association, the Canadian Diabetic Association, the Canadian Highway Safety Conference, the Research Institute of the Hospital for Sick Children of Toronto, the Montreal General Hospital.

Alumnus of the Month

ERNEST C. GILL

•Presentation of the Toronto Alumni Award to Ernest C. Gill, Arts '23, has turned the spotlight on this prominent graduate who is president of the Canada Life Assurance Company and vice-chairman of the Queen's Board of Trustees. He is currently serving as the Toronto chairman of the Queen's National Fund.

A native of Kingston, Ontario, Mr. Gill was educated in the schools of that city. He graduated with a B.A. degree from Queen's in 1923, with the Gold Medal in Mathematics.

According to John Irwin, writing in the Saturday Night, Mr. Gill was in his second year at Queen's when a neighbour casually mentioned that life insurance companies were paying bonuses to employees who were successful in actuarial science. His reaction was said to be one of mild amusement—mathematics was always a pleasure.

Following up a letter of recommendation from a family friend, he worked for Canada Life in the summer vacations. On graduation with a gold medal in Mathematics, he entered the company's actuarial department on a full-time basis at a salary of $50 a month.

His progress was rapid. He finished his examinations in three years and at twenty-three became a Fellow of the Actuarial Society of America. In 1927 he was made assistant actuary. He organized an investment research department and was rewarded in 1930 by being appointed assistant treasurer. In 1938 he became treasurer and a year later became assistant general manager as well. In March, 1946, he was named general manager and appointed a director. The following year he advanced to vice-president and general manager. In January, 1951, a few months before his forty-eighth birthday, he became one of the youngest presidents to hold office in a major life insurance company.

Mr. Gill is described as "Six feet tall, with thinning fair hair, he weighs an even 180 pounds—'I keep a careful check on my weight; statistics show a heavy mortality rate among people who are substantially overweight.' He has a cordial and crisp manner. He conducts the affairs of the company, with its 2,200 employees in 125 offices throughout Canada, the U.S.A. and the United Kingdom, from a comfortable office in downtown Toronto. He travels extensively, logging around 10,000 miles a year visiting offices and assessing economic trends."

A one-time teacher, Mr. Black entered newspaper work in Toronto, later joining the "Financial Post" and "Financial Times," of which he was editor. He founded "Financial Counsel" and developed an international reputation as a publicist on Canadian financial affairs.

Dr. Joseph Howard Cryan, M.D. '03, at Prince Edward County Hospital, Picton, Ontario, on January 20, aged seventy-eight. A native of Williamsburg, Ontario, he graduated from Queen's with the Class of Medicine '03. After postgraduate work in New York he entered upon a medical practice, finishing up his career at Picton, where he settled in 1940. He had been a medical officer of health for twenty years.

Mother Mary St. James (Annabelle Hickey), B.A. '24, M.A. '25, (LL.D. Western) at Windsor, Ontario, on March 2, after a lengthy illness. Dean of Brescia Hall, Ursuline College of Arts in London, Ontario, until her retirement last fall, Mother St. James had taught at the college for thirty-one years. She had been a staff member since 1924, dean since 1939, and friend and guide to hundreds of students. She was originally a member of Arts 14, before entering the Ursuline Order in Chatham.

Mrs. C. R. B. Macdonald (Margaret Cunningham), Arts '19, in London, England, on March 7. Since her marriage in 1921 she had travelled extensively throughout the world with her husband, who is an engineer. Just prior to settling in England, a year ago, she had been residing in Africa. Willis Cunningham, Arts '39, is a brother.

Alfred Edward Medcalf, Arts '30, in hospital at St. Thomas on March 31, aged fifty. He had been ill about a month and had cut short a trip to Acapulco, Mexico, to return home. Mr. Medcalf was president of the Medcalf Shoe Company, one of the oldest industries in St. Thomas. Lt. Col. F. H. Medcalf, Arts '30, is a brother.

James W. Strader, B.A. '16, at Ottawa, Ontario, on March 21, in his sixty-fourth year. A veteran of World War One he joined the staff of Lisgar Collegiate Institute in Ottawa in 1924 as a specialist in mathematics. He had served as principal of the school since 1951. "In his dealings with teacher and pupil alike he was the essence of kindness and consideration throughout his long tenure at Lisgar."

J. W. STRADER

Some time ago, a distinguished Canadian, in the warm and happy sunset of his eighty-first year, spoke to me of the most satisfying years of his life, and particularly of those in which he felt that he had given most deeply from his own life to the life of others. Those, he said, were the years in which he had taught at the University.

I thought of that when I heard of Jamie Strader's death—or "Mike" as he was later known—a third-year man at Queen's when I went up in my freshman year.

He followed worthily in the line of fine Lisgar principals from old Dr. John Thorburn, first principal of Ottawa's Grammar School, to his own good service to the month almost of his death. He enriched the tradition of other strong Queen's men and women who found in Lisgar the opportunity of life's giving—Dr. Marty, Miss Muir, John Stewart Dunlop.

Tender, kind, discerning, firm and understanding, Jamie Ward Strader's life will ever endure in the lives of those whom his teaching influenced in this city and beyond.

NEW FILM AVAILABLE

The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," is now available for general distribution.

Alumni branches can have the film on application. The University would like the film to be shown as widely as possible, particularly in the high schools and collegiate institutes. It can also be shown to home and school clubs and to service clubs and other groups because although the film is about Queen's, it has an appeal for anyone interested in higher education.

Branch executives would be rendering the University a valuable service if they would explore the possibilities in their community. The film can be made available for one week or more at a time.

His business acumen has earned him several directorships in various companies, including the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the National Trust Company, the Western Assurance Company, the British American Assurance Company, Central Canada Investments, and the Toronto Savings and Loan.

He is immediate past president of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association. He is also a director of the Institute of Life Insurance, New York.

With his wife, the former Mercedes Rae, he lives on Russell Hill Road in Toronto. His only daughter, who once worked for a rival company, is now married.

the QUEEN'S REVIEW

Kingston, Ontario, April, 1957

CANADIANS, more than any other people, benefit from ELECTRIC POWER

ELECTRICITY is almost as much a part of our life today as the air we breathe. Abundant low-cost power is one of the important reasons for so many busy factories . . . greater production of goods than ever before . . . and better paying jobs. In rural areas, too, wherever the power lines run, you'll find prosperous farms and greater living comfort. And in offices and homes, everywhere, electric power makes life easier and more enjoyable.

Since 1945, the demand for electricity has almost doubled and it is expected to double again within the next ten years. Keeping pace with this ever-increasing demand reflects great credit on Canada's power companies. Their engineers have changed the age-old courses of river, have tunnelled through mountains, created immense reservoirs and built massive dams to harness the energy of rushing water.

Other sources of energy are being used increasingly

Over 90 % of Canada's output of electricity is developed by water power. In some areas however, all the usable water power resources have been put to work, or soon will be. To help meet future needs, engineers are turning attention more and more to other sources of energy to operate steam or gas-driven turbine-generators.

The gas turbine is one of the newer methods of converting heat to electrical energy. Low-grade oil or natural gas is mixed with compressed air in a combustion chamber and the force of the resulting exhaust gases turns the turbine which drives the generator. Canadian General Electric is supplying gas turbines for a new station in British Columbia, which will be one of the largest of its kind in the world.

Canada's first atomic electric power plant being built

Canada's first atomic electric power plant being built near Chalk River, Ontario, by Canadian General Electric together with Atomic Energy of Canada and Ontario Hydro, signifies new horizons in the generation of electric power. The engineering knowledge and experience gained will be freely available to the nation's power companies.

For over 60 years Canadian General Electric has built much of the vast amount of equipment needed to generate, transmit and distribute electricity . . . and the wide variety of products that put electricity to use in homes and industry. There are over three times as many C.G.E. employees today as there were in 1939. They are designing, manufacturing and supplying the largest volume of electrical products in this Company's history. These products, including many which didn't exist a few years ago, help assure that Canadians will continue to live better, electrically.

CANADA'S ECONOMIC

Universities To Play Highly Important Role In Future Development of Canada

by Walter L. Gordon

● I should like to speculate about some of the changes which seem likely to occur in the Canadian economy over the next ten, twenty, or thirty years and about the increasingly important role which the universities will be required to play. Naturally, I do not mean to suggest that it is possible to forecast accurately the future. No one in his senses would make any such claim. On the other hand, any intelligent discussion about public policy and the best way of dealing with particular problems can only take place against a background of thoughtful estimates or educated guesses of future economic trends.

In the first place, it was necessary for the Commission on Canada's Economic Prospects to make some broad assumptions. And the first of these had to be that somehow or other a global, nuclear war will be avoided. The second is that there will not be another deep depression of the kind we experienced in the 'thirties of prolonged periods of mass unemployment. A third assumption is that we shall be wise enough to continue to manage our domestic affairs intelligently. This will call for flexible policies and a willingness to change them in the light of changing conditions and circumstances.

Now let us consider some of the changes that are likely to occur in the Canadian economy over the next twenty-five years.

This article is part of the text of an address delivered by Walter L. Gordon, chairman of the Gordon Royal Commission on Canada's Economic Prospects, at the Queen's staff dinner in Wallace Hall on April 4.

1. To begin with, it seems probable that the population will increase quite considerably, perhaps by 65 per cent to 75 per cent; that the Gross National Product in 1980 may be three times as great as it was in 1955; and despite the fact that average hours of work may be reduced (this probably will not apply to the same extent in the universities or in the professions) that average per capita net incomes (after taxes) may be one-half to three-quarters as much again as they are today. (I hope and predict that the increases in university salaries will be very much greater than the average increases in per capita net incomes for the population as a whole). In other words, if we can avoid being blown up and if we manage our affairs intelligently, we should all be much better off twenty-five years from now than we are today.

2. We all know that it is increased scientific knowledge and improved technology in many fields that will make possible the increased productivity and the higher standard of living which can be foreseen. This increased productivity will result from automation and from the willingness and the ability of industry to invest huge sums of capital on new machinery and equipment as soon as present machines become obsolete. (And this means as soon as new ones have been invented or developed.) Industries which are not able and willing to invest large amounts of capital for this purpose and to keep on doing so will tend to fall behind in the race. In other words the larger and financially stronger concerns are in a strategic position to become larger and stronger still. We may not like this but it is the price which we must be prepared to pay for a higher standard of living.

PROSPECTS

The effects of increased mechanization, and an increased rate of capital investment on plant and machinery may mean that we shall have to re-examine some of our ideas about free competitions being the most effective way of reducing the costs of production. Because of the limited market for manufactured goods in Canada and the tremendous savings in costs which can be achieved through mass production, it may in some cases be advantageous to promote rather than to discourage consolidations and mergers in the business field. If this is so, different methods of controlling the operations of monopolies and of oligopolies will have to be devised.

3. The transition from a predominantly agricultural country to an industrial, urbanized society which has been going on for some time seems likely to continue. Before the war, 1,300,000 people, or 35 per cent, of the civilian labour force were engaged in agriculture. By 1955 only a little over 800,00 persons were so employed, amounting to about 15 per cent of the total labour force. It is predicted that there will be a further slight reduction in the number of people who will be needed in agriculture twenty-five years hence; and that the percentage of the people so employed may be no more than 7 per cent to 8 per cent of a considerably larger civilian labour force at that time. This will compare with about 75 per cent of the labour force who will be employed by governments at all levels and in transportation, trade, finance, in the services of all kinds, and in secondary manufacturing.

At the same time, the movement of people from the rural areas to the towns and cities is likely to continue. According to the Commission's estimates 80 per cent of the total population in 1980 will be living in centres of 1,000 persons or more, while nearly 50 per cent will be living in the so-called metropolitan areas.

These changes are bound to have important implications. In political terms the great influence which the agricultural interests have wielded in the past – and which they still wield – should tend to wane. Sooner or later the much larger number of people who dwell in our cities and towns – including the members of the trade unions – will tend to dominate the political scene. And it may be noted that the political interests, needs and aspirations of an urban population may differ considerably from those of a rural one.

In the future we shall have to spend huge sums on better housing, on highways and streets, on hospitals and schools and universities and on all kinds of recreational and cultural facilities which will be demanded by increasing numbers of townspeople–people who will have more free time on their hands in which either to enjoy life or to get into trouble. Undoubtedly such conditions will call for greater numbers of sociologists, psychologists, psychiatrists and anyone else who is competent or willing to give advice to those of us who are or will be confused and uncertain about our changed conditions and our changed fortunes. How is the average man and the average woman–I do not include university professors or their wives – going to spend his or her time to some advantage when we have machines to do most of the work? I ask this question in all seriousness. We shall have to try to find the answer or the answers if we are to be a contented people.

4. Canada has always been vitally interested in international trade and since the war has taken a leading part in international negotiations seeking a reduction in restrictions and the promotion of trade on a multilateral basis. Quite a bit was accomplished in this regard in the years immediately after the war but probably not as much as we had hoped for. Now the immediate prospects for further progress towards greater freedom of trade on a multilateral basis do not appear to be very bright. The governments of most countries are properly concerned with policies designed to maintain high levels of employment. So far such policies can be pursued only at the national level; and thus they may run counter to measures which otherwise would tend to increase trade internationally. It is true also that as any country becomes industrialized and as its national income rises, the increased costs involved in providing it with some diversification of industry and thus with a greater degree of stability in times of stress become less noticeable and in relative terms less of a burden. These circumstances may tend to modify to some extent the obvious and orthodox arguments in favour of the comparative advantages of international specialization and free trade.

Quite apart from these considerations, it seems improbable that the dollar shortage which has been a perennial problem in the United Kingdom and in many other countries since the war will be resolved in the near future. The common market plan for Europe, if successful, may tend to strengthen the economic position of the United Kingdom and Western Europe over the long term–and if so, it will be all to the good. But in the short run it is not likely to result in a further freeing of trade in a multilateral sense.

In the light of these various factors, Canadians will probably be wise to think of our foreign trade as falling into two quite separate divisions: Our exports to the United States – which at present account for some 65 per cent of all exports and which will probably account for an even higher percentage in the future–and our exports to all other countries taken together. Canada's exports to the United States which consist very largely of raw and semi-processed materials have increased considerably from $800 million in 1937 to over $3,600 million in 1955 (in current dollars). As a percentage of a greatly increased Gross National Expenditure, such exports have not changed very much; from 15 per cent in 1937 and 13 per cent in 1938 to 13½ per cent in 1955. It seems probable that the United States will continue to require increasing quantities of our principal exports – newsprint, lumber, nickel, copper, lead,

While we should continue to work towards a greater freedom of trade on a multilateral basis as an ultimate objective, we should not be unduly disappointed if substantial results are not achieved for some considerable time.

Most Canadians do wish to keep this an united and an independently separate nation.

zinc, aluminum, iron ore, asbestos, gypsum and, in the future, very substantial quantities of oil, gas and uranium. These are materials in which the United States will be deficient and which we shall have in abundance. Unless we adopt foolish policies, therefore, it seems likely that our exports to the United States will continue to increase considerably in absolute terms and that such exports may not decline very much when measured as a percentage of a much higher Gross National Expenditure. This prediction is based upon more or less detailed assessments of the probable demand in the United States for each of our principal exports to that country — and is an important justification for the Commission's optimistic forecasts of Canada's future economic prospects.

For the reasons previously cited, the Commission is less optimistic about the prospects of substantially increased exports to the United Kingdom and to all other countries. Such exports represented 15 per cent of Gross National Expenditure in 1937 and 13 per cent in 1938. (The amount of our exports to the United States and of our exports to all other countries combined were just about the same in each of these two years.) But while the total value of our exports to all countries other than the United States — which include in particular wheat, lumber, aluminum and the base metals — has increased since the war, their relative importance has declined sharply and amounted to only 8 per cent of Gross National Expenditure in 1955. (This compares with 13½ per cent in the case of our exports to the United States.) It does not seem likely that our exports of wheat will increase more than moderately. And while it seems probable that our exports of other materials to all countries other than the United States will expand in absolute terms, such increases in total will be much less than the expected increase in total exports to the United States. In other words, it seems probable that our exports to all countries other than the United States will continue to decline in relative importance over the years.

If these predictions are borne out by events, there may be less reason in future for Canada to make concessions in the realm of commercial policy than would be the case if our exports were or could reasonably be expected to be distributed more evenly over the countries of the world. While we should continue to work towards a greater freedom of trade on a multilateral basis as an ultimate objective, we should not be unduly disappointed if substantial results are not achieved for some considerable time. In the meantime, we are in a fortunate position because our exports to the United States — which may amount to two-thirds or three-quarters or more of the total—are likely to continue to increase at a fast rate.

5. In his brief to the Royal Commission on Broadcasting, Professor A. R. M. Lower had this to say about the Canadian Confederation:

"No one has ever pretended that the arrangement by which these provinces, and others subsequently added, came together into one political framework, was from the point of view of logic, geography and economics, ever more than artificial. No less an authority than Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself once said that he felt that of all unlikely sites for a nation, Canada was the most unlikely. It is true that hopes were expressed at the time that British North America would, by reason of a larger trading area, secure something of the same type of prosperity as had been experienced by the vast free-trading area known as the United States, but the major emphasis was not on the creation of another continental area of trade. Benefits in that direction were to be incidental, and it has taken us from that day to this to devise means for their realization. Confederation will never be understood unless it is viewed as the creation of a political entity based on the faith that in time this artificial entity would take on reality, that the skeleton would become clothed with flesh and nourished with blood.

"Despite the handicaps which nature has imposed on us, few people would deny today that we have, in fact, created a nation of considerable strength."

I think it is clear that most Canadians do wish to keep this a united and an independently separate nation. And by this I mean independent both in political and economic terms—and perhaps these are synonomous in the long run. I expect this means that we shall wish — or perhaps it would be better to say that we shall be prepared to put up with — a relatively strong central government; that we shall continue to accept the added costs which are involved in being economically illogical; and that we shall continue our present system of a free enterprise economy combined with a very considerable degree of public ownership in various fields. I submit these are grounds for believing that the views of those who wish this country to remain independent will prevail, even if this be contrary to economic logic. (Incidentally I expect that most Canadian economists share these views despite the fact that this may condemn them to a permanent condition of schizophrenia in their professional activities.)

In its Preliminary Report the Commission noted a potential threat to Canada's independence — if still very much of a hypothetical one — in the dominating position which a relatively few foreign-owned firms hold in a number of key industries. Canada has benefited enormously from the foreign capital which has been invested here — and we shall continue to benefit from these capital investments in the years to come. Furthermore, we shall need a lot more foreign capital if the rate of our development is not to be slowed. But having said this, we shall be only prudent if we take steps—either in the form of the suggestions which the Commission has put forward in its Preliminary Report or in some other way—to see that foreign control over certain of our basic resources and of certain of our important industries is not used to our disadvantage. There is little, if any, evidence to suggest that such control has been used to our disadvantage so far; I do not expect that it will be. Nevertheless it will be only sensible for us to take reasonable precautions to ensure that in fact this does not happen at some future time.

Now, what does all this mean in so far as the future position of the universities is concerned? I have suggested, given certain basic assumptions, that our future economic prospects are very bright. We can expect our standard of living to continue to rise on the average despite a further reduction in the hours of work per week. I have suggested also that these achievements will be the result of further scientific and technological discoveries and developments of many kinds and in many fields; that we shall become, if we have not already become, primarily an industrial, urbanized society rather than an agricultural and rural one; that our exports will be increasingly directed to the United States and that we shall become relatively less dependent upon international trade in a multilateral sense. I also mentioned some of the questions to be dealt with if we are to maintain a feeling of unity in Canada and if we are to remain independent as a nation.

It seems to me that the universities will be called upon to play an increasingly important part in all these things. In the first place in the kind of society which may be foreseen, which will continue to grow in its complexity over the years, we shall need more well-educated people who are capable of filling top administrative posts in government, in business and in many other fields. We shall also need more scientists and more professional and other trained people of all kinds – engineers, architects, geologists, foresters, lawyers, accountants, doctors, psychologists, social workers, and all the rest. We shall look to the universities to produce an increasing number of graduates in all the arts and sciences and professions. I hope that it will be possible in the future for an increasing percentage of Canadians to obtain a university education. The theory that this privilege should be restricted to a small minority will not I expect be acceptable in this country. I do not mean by this that the standards should be reduced or that the universities should plan to graduate masses of human robots who have learned by rote a variety of professional tricks and formulae. On the contrary, the objective should be to turn out young men and women who have learned to read and to write and to speak and to listen and, above all, to think for themselves. We will need more people who have acquired a questioning spirit; not people who have learned to memorize appropriate sections of their text books.

In addition to the ordinary graduates, we shall need more people who have done postgraduate work—and here I hope our Canadian universities will set their standards very high indeed. Only by so doing will they be able to attract the very best students from Canada and from other countries. And Canadian university teachers will not enjoy the greatest satisfaction to be obtained from their profession unless from time to time they are able to work with exceptionally gifted students.

Secondly, I expect that our Canadian universities will be asked to do an increasing amount of research work of all kinds. I would hope that most of this will be in the form of basic research in various fields but, in addition, I see no reason why a great deal of technological development work should not be carried out at the universities to everyone's advantage. I would hope that grants which may be offered for such research will allow the work to be carried out over a period of years. The staff concerned should have reasonable assurance of continuity not only as to their own employment but also that the work on which they are engaged will be carried through to some logical conclusion. I would suggest, with proper diffidence, that university authorities should be prepared to refuse research grants which do not provide for some measure of continuity—and that they should insist upon a reasonable proportion of such grants being allocated to the costs of administration.

I hope that it will be possible in the future for an increasing percentage of Canadians to obtain a university education.

It seems clear that the universities will be called upon to play a highly important role in the future development of Canada.

The members of the university teaching profession have a tremendous responsibility and a tremendous opportunity.

Finally, I would hope that it will become a commonplace in Canada for members of the university teaching profession to express opinions and to offer leadership on questions of public policy and of public concern. The probabilities are that we shall become increasingly prosperous as time goes by. If this turns out to be the case, we can expect many of the members of our government and of the civil service and many of our leading businessmen and trade unionists to become complacent and satisfied and conservative in their attitudes and opinions. But in Canada, as I said earlier, a continuance of prosperity may be dependent upon flexible policies and a willingness to change them as conditions change. Who will be better qualified than members of the university teaching profession in these circumstances to suggest that policies which may have served well in the past should be reconsidered in the light of changed conditions? It may be more comfortable and perhaps even safer for university professors to live their lives in ivory towers and to remain silent on the issues of the day. But I submit this will not be the way to secure public support or even perhaps public respect. If members—and by this I mean a few, not all, members of the university teaching profession — are not prepared to express opinions on current questions, the public may assume that they have no opinions about the very questions in which the public is most interested.

I do not hesitate to say these things here because as everyone knows, members of the faculty of Queen's University have an enviable reputation for the parts they have played in public affairs and for their outspokenness on public questions. I hope this is a reputation you will cherish and that it will become a tradition for Queen's to give leadership on public issues when leadership is needed. The next time a Canadian government believes it would be timely to have some kind of re-examination of basic policies, perhaps it would be a good idea to turn the whole project over to Queen's!

It seems clear that the universities will be called upon to play a highly important role in the future development of Canada. The members of the university teaching profession have a tremendous responsibility and a tremendous opportunity. With the greatest respect, may I suggest that you should continue to insist upon the maintenance of the highest standards; that you should insist (pleasantly but firmly) upon being paid reasonable salaries (you will not be able to attract the best available people to follow in your footsteps unless present salary scales are increased very considerably); that you should expect that sufficient funds will be provided for the additional buildings and other facilities that will be needed; that you should continue to keep the public informed of your needs and requirements as you have been doing in recent years; that you should make your opinions known on public questions; and that you should learn to realize that Canada simply cannot prosper without your help, leadership and guidance.

WIN SCHOLARSHIPS

Seventeen Queen's graduates were listed among 270 winners named in the 1957-58 National Research Council of Canada scholarships. Value of awards to these graduates is $23,900.

Theological Convocation

Eleven graduates of the Queen's Theological College were presented with testamurs and holy chalices entitling them to administer the sacrament, at the annual Convocation held April 24 in Chalmers United Church.

Rev. Angus J. MacQueen of St. Andrew's Church, London, Ontario, called on the graduates to bear in mind their sense of identity and mission in life. He pointed out that they must strive to be three persons in one—churchman, missionary, and man of God. As churchmen they must follow the policies laid down by the church, adhering to its rules and regulations; as missionaries they must consider the future of the church, and as men of God remember their calling and the responsibilities that come with it.

Congratulations were also offered to the graduates by various speakers, including Rev. Dr. Elias Andrews, principal of Queen's Theological College, Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, Dean H. G. Conn, and Rev. Dr. George A. Brown, chairman of the Board of Management of the Queen's Theological College.

In the presentation of scholarships, bursaries, and prizes, a travelling scholarship, the Hugh Waddell and Leitch Memorial, was awarded to Eldon Roy Hay, Marvelville, Ontario.

The President's Message

W. A. Dawson

As president of the Alumni Association I am pleased to announce that Mrs. D. B. Toland (Edith Kent), Arts '47, has accepted appointment as chairman of the National Editorial Committee. This is one of the most important of the new committees established by the Association and will operate at the policy level. Mrs. Toland has the authority to appoint her own committee members and is now in process of seeking the assistance of the various branch officers.

Mrs. Toland brings to her new post a wealth of experience in newspaper and journalistic work. As a student she was news editor of the Journal. After graduation she served for a period as women's editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard and then moved to Toronto where she was an editorial assistant on Liberty magagine. In 1948 she became a staff writer for Hydro News, company magazine published by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission.

In 1950 she married D. B. Toland of Toronto, and is at present living in Oakville. She has two children and combines homemaking with a part-time career as a feature writer with the Oakville Record-Star.

A native of Halifax, Nova Scotia, Mrs. Toland is a daughter of Dr. H. A. Kent, former Principal of Queen's Theological College. One sister and four brothers are also graduates of Queen's: Mrs. W. J. Megill (Doris Kent), Arts '32, Dr. John H. Kent, Arts '30, Dr. James R. F. Kent, Arts '33, A. Douglas Kent, Sc. '36, and Allan H. Kent, Arts '36.

1957 REUNION

Official Weekend—October 25-27

Highlights—Queen's vs. McGill University Reception
Principal's Tea
Reunion Dinner

Classes scheduled—1907, 1917-'18-'19-'20
1932, 1936-'37-'38-'39

(N.B.:—Any class may hold a reunion at any time—above schedule for convenience only. Classes of Science '19 and '22 have elected to hold their reunion on the week-end of the Varsity game, October 5.)

Dr. Manly B. Baker, Curator, is shown in a corner of his beloved Miller Hall Museum. Sixty-one years associated with Queen's University as student and staff member, Dr. Baker recently observed his eightieth birthday. He keeps the Museum open daily, except Saturday and Sunday.

Miller Hall Museum

Passage of Time Has Proved Value in Teaching of Geology and and Mineralogy

by Manly B. Baker

With the completion of Miller Hall in 1931, the whole ground floor was equipped as the museum for the teaching of geology and mineralogy. It has proved of great interest to the schools of this district and also to the general public, and especially to prospectors and miners from the northern parts of Frontenac, Leeds, Addington, Hastings and Renfrew counties. Scarcely a week passes but someone from these counties wanders in with his specimens for identification and for advice.

By 1956 the demand for additional library, teaching, and laboratory space made it necessary to convert the east wing of the museum to these new purposes. It was considered essential that the teaching value of the museum should be preserved. It is doubtful whether any more acquisitive collector of minerals ever lived than the late Prof. William Nicol. He sacrificed his time, his personal funds, and even his reputation (on occasion) to acquire specimens for the students and the museum. This has doubtless inspired many of his graduates to do likewise so that today a collection of crystals, ores, industrial minerals and rocks exists here that would adorn almost any museum in America

The museum is now therefore confined to the west wing, and the east corridor. In the corridor the paleontological fossil collections are shown, and the various uses of fossils demonstrated.

In the main hallway as one enters the building are two long cases. In the first is a rock section as if cut down vertically through the earth's crust. Here the various members of pre-Cambrian age in Eastern Ontario are shown in their relative positions, and overlying them are the first two members of the early Paleozoic series. These are all constructed from the actual rocks from this area, and are of great value to beginners in the study of geology.

In the second case in the hallway is a historical collection of stone implements and weapons presented to this museum by the late Dr. H. M. Ami of Ottawa. By the gradual improvement in workmanship one traces the evolutionary development of man from pre-Chellian to Neolithic times or about 800,000 years.

Turning to the right, one enters the west wing of the museum which has been devoted to economic phases of mineralogy and geology. On the north side of the main aisle is a very complete exhibit of minerals fully named, compositions given, and arranged to illustrate the chemical classification of minerals. This is one of the finest and most comprehensive mineral collections to be seen anywhere, and is a monument to the energy and enterprise of the late Professor Nicol.

Next on the north side of the aisle are a number of cases which illustrate the general geology of specific areas, for example, Sudbury, Eastern Ontario, Northern Ontario, S. W. Norway, Finland, Swiss Alps, New Zealand, Voges district of Germany, N. W. Highlands of Scotland, and many others.

Two exhibits in this section of the museum deserve special mention, as they are probably unique in a non-government museum. The first is a collection of rocks, some fossils, and good lignite-coal from the South Pole. It was gathered and presented to this museum by Capt. Innes Taylor, who accompanied two of Captain Byrd's expeditions to the South Pole. The second is from the opposite end of the earth, the North Polar area, and was collected and presented to this museum by D. A. Nichols, of Ottawa. These two collections are placed side by side.

Beyond these locality collections of rocks and ores, we come to a collection the like of which the writer has not seen elsewhere. The six systems of crystallography are illustrated by a large display of actual crystals. Not a wire model, nor a wooden illustration in the whole display. In this assembly Professor Nicol has left a memorial that it will be very difficult to equal.

At the west end of this wing is another unique display conceived by Professor Nicol. It consists of a number of "silent salesman" show cases in each of which is exhibited some rather popular or household product, for example, calcimine, alabastine, talc, tin-ware, aluminum ware, newspaper printer's form, salt, and the like. In each case the raw materials, their assemblage, the processing and the final products are shown. The value of such cases lies in the fact that they are self-explanatory, so that the public may enjoy them without the need of a guide or even a guide-book.

On the south side of the aisle in this same west wing is an excellent collection of ores, economic minerals, building products, rock structures, and so on, illustrating the general features of ore-deposits. In addition to this systematic collection there are special case exhibits of typical mining districts; for example a collection of great historical value shows the ores of almost every mine that existed in the Cobalt district, already largely a memory only. Two other cases show the wonderful variety and quality of products of Eastern Ontario. These are a revelation to most visitors in the variety of products that were mined in this area in the past, and are still attracting the interest of mining men, e.g. the radioactive ores of Eastern and Northern Ontario. Another case shows the radium, silver-copper ores of Great Bear Lake, and the gold-quartz ores of the Great Slave Lake area. Two more cases contain a very fine exhibit of the gold ores, rock-associations, and structures of the famous Hollinger Mine in the Porcupine district of Ontario. Another case shows typical copper ores from most parts of the world. Two long cases forming the south wall of the aisle itself contain collections of typical igneous and sedimentary rocks, and the metamorphic equivalents of both.

MONTREAL MEDAL DINNER

J. M. Macdonnell, chairman of the Board of Trustees, addresses the Montreal alumni after he had been presented with the Montreal Medal "for meritorious contribution to the honour of Queen's." In the background are W. D. Small, alumni president, J. B. Stirling, Mrs. C. F. Young, alumnae president and Honourable C. A. Dunning, Chancellor of the University.

J. M. Macdonnell Receives Montreal Medal Award

"For meritorious contribution to the honour of Queen's," the Montreal Medal was awarded to J. M. Macdonnell, chairman of the University's Board of Trustees since 1930, at the annual Medal Dinner held in the Allouette Room of the Windsor Station on April 26.

J. B. Stirling, president of E. G. M. Cape and Company and a past president of the Alumni Association, introduced Mr. Macdonnell. Mr. Stirling was a recipient of the Medal in 1955. The medal was presented by W. D. Small, Com. '47, president of the branch.

In his address Mr. Macdonnell noted that Queen's had travelled a long way since it was founded in 1941. He told how it was finally decided that in order to fulfil its destiny, the University had to go beyond Theology, Arts, and Medicine and "so we have broadened, commencing with the Faculty of Applied Science, and the process has been accentuated in our day and still continues."

"We are fortunate indeed that our present Principal will not be swept off his feet by the urge for new forms of vocational education, but will maintain a just balance between the humanities and the technical and vocational courses," he said. This is particularly fortunate at a time when we are in danger of being stampeded by the Russians into a blind worship of the technical sciences."

Touching briefly on politics, Mr. Macdonnell, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Toronto Greenwood and the party's financial critic, said that without constituency organization there could be no parties and without parties an election would end up with a lot of "bits and pieces" without cohesion or organization. Something like chaos would be the result.

"Parliament, however unworthy, is the guardian of liberty for which our race has sacrificed so much . . . . never before have we faced such a challenge, never before have politics been so important, with Russian Communism and imperialism facing us, and trying to dominate Asia and Africa as well as to continue its eroding tactics in Europe and America."

Mr. Macdonnell, who was the first Rhodes Scholar from Queen's and whose honours include a wartime Military Cross and Croix de Guerre, has been a member of the Board of Trustees since 1923. For the past twenty-seven years he has served as chairman, a post formerly held by his father, the late George M. Macdonnell, K.C.

Greetings from the University were brought by Rev. A. M. Laverty, University chaplain.

Letters of congratulations were received from Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, Dr. A. F. Cadenhead, Messrs. N. R. Crump, G. C. Bateman, J. A. Edmison, and telegrams from W. A. Dawson, president of the Alumni Association; Dr. A. J. O'Leary, New York; N. McL. Rogers, Toronto; D. J. Day, Kingston; Harold A. Quinn, Ottawa; E. C. Gill, Toronto; Hon. R. O. Campney, Ottawa.

MONTREAL MEDAL

W. D. Small, president of the Montreal branch, presents the Montreal Medal to J. M. Macdonnell, chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Hugh D. Porter Elected London Alumni President

Hugh D. Porter, Arts '47, was elected president of the London branch for the ensuing year at the annual dinner meeting held in the Hotel London on April 9. Mr. Porter succeeds Mrs. D. E. Parnell (Dorothy Matheson), Arts '40.

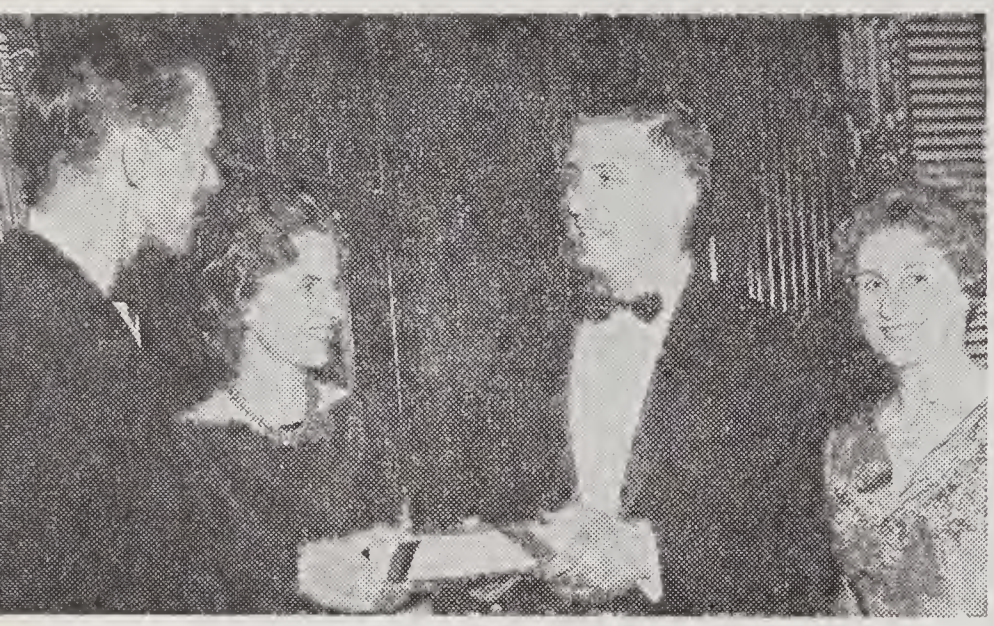

Also elected were: first vice-president, F. Stewart Brown, Sc. '46; second vice-president, Norman Brown, Com. '45, Arts '46; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. T. H. Lewis (Lois Craig), Arts '39; directors — John Stevens, Sc. '51, Michael Halliday, Sc. '51, M. S. Hatch, Com. '40, Miss Clunas McKibbon, Arts '40, Paul Burd, Arts '46, Dr. Lionel Reese, Med. '47, Thomas Latta, Arts '33, Com. '34, Morris Capreol, Sc. '52, Mrs. J. L. Wild (Elizabeth Stevens), Arts '45.

Guest speaker was Rev. A. M. Laverty, University Chaplain, who brought his listeners up to date on recent developments at the University. "Next year will see the celebration of one hundred years of student government," he said, "which I think is largely responsible for that undying spirit and loyalty for which Queen's is noted. It is a great tradition —not lightly won and not lightly held— but you have the honour to belong to it."

Queen's is still a place where wealth or lack of it does not matter at all, said the Padre. There just isn't the artificial stratification which is to be found at some other institutions.

Douglas G. Geiger, Sc. '22, first vice-president of the Alumni Association, explained innovations adopted by the national executive and the appointment of several new national committees designed to strengthen the organization. He reminded the meeting that the Fall Reunion would take place on the week-end of October 25.

One hundred alumni and friends were in attendance at the meeting. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. J. B. Slack (Kathleen Swinton), Arts '39, Miss Marjorie Graham, Arts '50, and Mrs. D. E. Parnell (Dorothy Matheson), Arts '40.

WITH THANKS

W. D. Small, retiring president of the Montreal branch, left, receives a presentation from the president-elect, L. J. Bandiera. Also shown are Mrs. Small left, and Mrs. Bandiera.

Leo J. Bandiera To Head Montreal Alumni Branch

Leo J. Bandiera, Sc. '51, was elected president of the Montreal branch for the ensuing year, at the annual meeting held in the Allouette Room of the Windsor Station on April 26. Mr. Bandiera succeeds W. D. Small, Com. '47.

Also elected were: honorary president, W. E. McLaughlin, Arts '36; vice-president, G. M. Christie, Arts '46; secretary, Howard Hart, Com. '53; treasurer, W. D. Moncur, Com. '48; program, Glen W. Crook, Sc. '53; membership, J. B. Hockman, Sc. '47; Alumni Fund chairman, W. H. Wise, Arts '54.

Kingston Alumni Hold "Splash Party"

Something new in the way of programmes was tried by the Kingston alumni who put on a "Splash Party" in the Queen's Gymnasium on April 27. The programme consisted of swimming in the pool, volleyball, ping pong, basketball, and square dancing. The latter was under the direction of Prof. and Mrs. F. L. Bartlett and proved to be a fitting climax. The alumni and friends brought their own lunches and coffee was supplied by the branch. Sixty were in attendance.

Rev. A. M. Laverty Addresses Brantford Alumni Branch

"The power and responsibility vested in student government at Queen's is unique in Canada," Rev. A. M. Laverty, University Chaplain, said at the annual dinner meeting of the Brantford branch on April 10. Student government exists in fact as well as in name, he assured his listeners.

Next year will be the one hundredth anniversary of the Alma Mater Society. Over the years a strong organization has been built up and the students take a quiet pride in their rights and privileges. One of the most powerful institutions of student government is the A. M. S. Court.

"Queen's is still the friendly place you knew," said the Padre. "It is a place where people will help out in an emergency, and not only financially. Because of my association with the students, I know of many who have needed help and received it from fellow students, not only from students of their own age and class, but former students who attended many years before. These people help without any thought of reward or recognition."

A colour film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was shown and was given an enthusiastic reception. In the closing words of the Rector, Dr. L. W. Brockington, "Queen's proposes to remain what it was established to be, not a factory of diplomas, but a forge of character and an armoury of citizenship."

John Maycock, Arts '54, who served as chairman for the dinner, was re-elected as president for the ensuing year. Also re-elected were: vice-president, Mrs. Thomas Bingle (Florence Rothwell), Arts '29; secretary, Dr. R. K. Start, Med. '28; treasurer, W. F. Billo, Arts '42; committee — D. W. E. Patterson, Sc. '48, Miss Agnes Mackintosh, Arts '16, Dr. J. S. Hazen, Med. '34; social convener, Miss Ada Rath, Arts '48.

Mrs. R. C. Wallace Addresses Kingston Alumnae

An interesting paper on "The Dead Sea Scrolls" was given by Mrs. R. C. Wallace at the annual meeting of the Kingston alumnae held in Ban Righ Hall on April 2. Mrs. Wallace described her wanderings through the literature on this comparatively recent discovery of ancient manuscripts cached in caves in the Dead Sea region, and pointed out the more readable of recently published works.

In speaking of the work done on these scrolls by many scholars, the speaker mentioned the many differences of opinion which have arisen concerning their importance and their effect on present translations of the Bible and on Christianity. The greatest effect, it is thought, will be that a thorough study of the scrolls will probably yield a much clearer picture of the origins of Christianity.

Mrs. Wallace was introduced by Mrs. R. D. Bradfield (Eva Newell), Arts '26. She was thanked for her fascinating talk by Miss Jean I. Royce, Arts '30.

The 1957-58 executive was introduced by Miss Melva Eagleson, Arts '25, as follows: president, Mrs. R. D. Bradfield (Eva Newell), Arts '26; first vice-president, Mrs. C. H. R. Campling (Laura Miller), Arts '46; second vice-president, Miss Verna Wilson, Arts '43; secretary, Mrs. W. A. J. Atack (Margaret McKenzie), Arts '55; treasurer, Miss Frances Putman, Arts '55; membership, Miss Helen McRae, Arts '40; program, Miss Belle Elliott, Arts '26; social, Mrs. F. W. Gibson (Margaret MacKay), Arts '46; press, Miss Janet McGinnis, Arts '46; councillors—Miss Rosemary Dougherty, Arts '53, Mrs. G. M. Douglas-Murray (Pat Osborough), Arts "55, Mrs. Ian Stewart (Gail Ward), Arts '54, Mrs. W. E. N. Corbett (Lois Grant), Arts '54.

The retiring president, Miss Diana Blake, Arts '46, was in the chair.

H. H. Lockwood Heads Up Newly Reorganized Saguenay Branch

Inactive for the past few years, the Saguenay branch was reorganized at a meeting held in the Aluminum Laboratories Auditorium, Arvida, Quebec, on March 28. Forty were in attendance. Dr. W. K. Gummer, Arts '37, acted as chairman.

H. H. Lockwood, Sc. '39, was elected as president for the ensuing year. Paul T. Estlick, Sc. '52, was named as vice-president, Pete Schopflocher, Sc. '47, secretary, and R. F. Gurr, Sc. '54, treasurer.

Guest speaker was Rev. A. M. Laverty, University chaplain, who gave an interesting address on present activities at Queen's and plans for the future. Two films were shown: "Queen's University at Kingston," and highlights of the past football season. The speaker was thanked by K. W. Campbell, Sc. '38.

Dr. Gummer gave a brief history of the branch. After some discussion it was agreed, on motion of H. H. Lockwood, Sc. '39, and E. N. Coulthart, Sc. '41, that a new executive be appointed and that the branch be revived.

LONDON ANNUAL MEETING

OTTAWA ALUMNI DANCE

Ottawa alumni get together at H.M.C.S. Carleton for a dance and informal reception. In the group shown above are Bob Montgomery, convener, Ken Wynkie, Miss Marian MacLachlan, Miss Lorraine Holsgrove, and Miss Marguerite MacLeod. The event was held on April 5.

Ottawa Alumni Enjoy Informal Get-Together

An "After Supper Cocktail Party" was held at the H.M.C.S. Carleton by the Ottawa branch on April 5. A hundred people were in attendance, despite poor weather, to see a showing of the film, "Queen's University at Kingston". This was followed by dancing. It was a very informal get-together and attracted a number of recent graduates who had not previously attended a Queen's function in this area.

Convener was R. A. F. Montgomery, Arts '50, Com. '51, assisted by Miss Marian MacLachlan, Arts '54, B.P.H.E. '54, and Miss Lorraine Holsgrove, Arts '55.

Quebec Executive Sees Film

The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was shown to the executive of the Quebec City branch on March 29 by Rev. A. M. Laverty, University Chaplain. The Padre brought the executive up to date on news of the University and on plans for the future.

While in Quebec Mr. Laverty spoke to the senior students of Quebec High School on "Preparation for University Life."

Hamilton Alumnae Entertain Mrs. Norman Miller

The Hamilton alumnae played host recently to the president of the Alumnae Association, Mrs. Norman Miller (Grace Jeffrey), Arts '14, of Kingston, Ontario. Prior to the meeting she was entertained at a luncheon and dinner given by Miss Anne Smith, Arts '22, president of the Hamilton branch, and Mrs. D. A. Cooper (Marion MacAlpine), Arts '24, respectively.

In a short talk Mrs. Miller outlined the workings of the scholarship committee and indicated that women's residences and scholarship funds were the needs of the moment. The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was also shown during the evening. Miss Anne Smith, Arts '22, chaired the meeting, which was held at the home of Mrs. F. B. Mowbray (Mathilde Hoeven), Arts '08.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. H. J. Taylor (Anne Boyle), Arts '51, and her committee, consisting of Mrs. H. G. Medhurst (Helen Talcott), Arts '25, Mrs. G. I. Geddes (Winnifred Rorabeck), Arts '28, Mrs. H. V. Clarke (Fawcette Elliott), Arts '24, and Mrs. J. R. Card (Jean Truscott), Arts '34.

The Power of Speech

by H. L. Tracy

Human communication is the most fascinating and mysterious thing we do. Your mind and mine, really, are terribly far apart. We are alike people, who can't swim, on two islands just in sight of each other. We have worked out a rough – very rough – system of signals for sending messages across the gap. How poor the signals are! How often we come up against the utter impossibility of really making ourselves known to one another! "I know what I mean, but I just can't put it into words." "Would that my tongue could utter the thoughts that arise in me." Speech is one thing that distinguishes man from animal. Speech is what has made man civilized. Speech, whether uttered or written, is the very basis of co-operation. By speech we give and receive knowledge, plan to do things together, organize and explain our means of life and enterprises and enjoyments. Our religion, our science, our ideals, our common pursuits are made alive through the power of communication. Without speech we would live entirely to ourselves, stunted and withered.

Speech is so common an experience that we hardly ever think how vital it is; or what wonderful advances we have made over the centuries in pooling our knowledge and ideas through the spoken word, the press, books, telephone and radio. Our way of life is daily affected by what we read and hear. In time of war, the spirit of a people is rallied and formed by the organs of communication. In times of peace we make up our minds about politics, national issues, foreign affairs and the currents of thought in literature and the arts, because opinions are always being circulated through one means and another. Our own ideas are unconsciously formed by what comes to us hour by hour through eye and ear. We choose our breakfast foods and mouth-washes and cosmetics at the suggestion of velvet voices on the radio and purple prose in the advertisements.

If you and I are not to be either handicapped by inability to use this wonderful gift of speech, or if we are not to be more guinea-pigs at the mercy of those subtle fellows who can use speech cleverly, we might do well to be aware of the importance of speech and its place in our life. We all come by our own language through imitation. If our parents are Chinese, we speak Chinese by simply copying what we hear from them. If they are English, we acquire a set of sound-symbols that English-speaking people use. But we can't be sure that we will become masters of speech if we stop short with imitating. In the same way, we learn to eat bread and ham and eggs and raisin pie because our parents eat these things. But when we learn chemistry, we gain a new insight into ham and eggs. We see how they are made up of proteins and vitamins and such like. We work out an intelligent idea of diet and nutrition, and manage things so that our own children will have a sensibly balanced meal, and have more health and happiness than they could on a hit-and-miss plan. It is a good idea to apply a similar analysis to speech, our most valuable activity. The speech we have learned from our elders we have learned without analysis. We must find out what starches, butter-fats and proteins go into its make-up. Otherwise we can hardly hope to have it under control or use it with full intelligence of effectiveness.

Time was when we were taught English grammar at school. I used to like it myself, and could never understand why the witch-doctors of education started up a campaign to have it removed. I used to like breaking up a sentence into its parts, learning the exact place and value of adjective and adverb, and drawing up a system of subordinate clauses that resembled an army on the march. Of course sentences were sentences in the rolling prose of my generation. But I still think that the sentence is one of the finest products of the human intelligence. There is nothing in the world of science to equal the wonder of words arranged in delicate articulation.

I can see, though, that you don't get the best idea of language by taking your own apart. Your want to savour your own language as an experience, not dissect it as an experiment. Analyzing your own speech is a little like asking for 3 c.c's of starch, 1 c.c. of butter fat and 2 c.c's of glucose at the breakfast table, instead of saying "Pass the pancakes and maple syrup." A very effective way of sizing up your own language, and in general giving a sharper idea of what language is, is to learn another one. It is astonishing what you can see in your own speech when you see how another language goes about the same things. You never could understand Kingston if you had never been anywhere else. You begin to see the meaning and quality of the familiar thing when you are able to compare it with something else of the same kind. "What do they know of England who only England Know?"

English is probably as complicated a language as there ever was. Built solidly on a vocabulary of Greek and Latin words, a great deal of the main structure above ground is Germanic in origin; and a great deal of the ornamental work is French. It would be foolish to ignore the Greco-Latin basis of our tongue. "These languages are dead," people say. So is Shakespeare dead. But all that matters of Shakespeare lives on, bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh. John Brown's body lies amouldering in the grave, but his soul goes marching on. This complex language of ours is built up of various elements—living and immortal—classical, Germanic and Romance. A wonderful new power comes to anyone who makes some acquaintance with one of these tongues that have been absorbed in part into our own, and yet have survived and developed by themselves as well. This is particularly true of the meaning of words. Every word is a living organism, just as much a product of the past as the tissues of your body are part of a continuous transmission of life through countless generations. A word becomes a vivid personality when you make the acquaintance of its French cousin, or its German uncle, or its Greek or Latin great-grandfather. You can see the family likeness; you can understand its peculiarities, its strength and weakness, when you learn a bit about its family history.

Here is a simple example of word-history. The Latin word cancer means crab. The crab is a voracious animal; so some imaginative fellow long ago nick-named the sore on a human body that spread and consumed the flesh around it a canker. The doctors, who have often shown themselves poets of a high order in naming things, revived the Latin spelling cancer in naming the organism that still in defiance of research consumes human tissue. Another poetic fellow gave the name "little crab" to the bars on a prison window; the bars looked like crabs legs. From this word cancellus came the name cancellor, first for the attendant who went to get the prisoner, then for an officer of the court, and later for the Chancellor of a court or of an exchequer or of a University. Another poet used the word "little crab" for the ink-marks you use to obliterate a word; so we get the verb "cancel" and the noun "cancellation" with the wider meanings of "nullify" or "obliterate." The chancel of a church was once barred off from the place where the congregation sat; so it too is called a little crab. The French use chanceler to mean stagger, waver, (presumably from the irregular gait of the crab) and by an amazing invention that only a Frenchman could devise, a hot water bottle is called a chanceliere, "the chancellor's wife." This is only a very simple example. But it may show how a word is not a mere mathematical sign for a thing or an idea, but an organism that has developed over the centuries, adapting itself, full of imagination and wit and experience.

My young friends in high school who have had even a few months of studying Latin never need to be stuck for the meaning of pessimist, ameliorate, conducive, admonition, inhibition, traditional, munitions, definite, Habeas Corpus, alienate, et cetera, etc. They need never confuse enumeration and remuneration—as so many of their elders do. In the sentence, "He asked Mary and I to go with him" there is a glaring error (I have heard even clergymen make it). A little drill in Latin sentences with their grammatical sharpness, would show how silly it is to put "I" in such a spot as that.

You are using language oftener than any other instrument you have. You surely want to have it under control. You surely want to use language as an expert bicycle-rider handles his machine —holding it to a straight, true, purposeful course; not flabby in the front wheel, and in constant danger of collapse.

It may be that you are not satisfied with so apparently unpractical an object for language as I have outlined here, or so unpractical a way of gaining control of language as learning some other tongue in order to strengthen your own.

Well, I am not going to waste your time and mine by trying to justify any educational method in terms of immediate pay-off. We in Canada are past the pioneer stage when we had to use the cash-and-carry argument to justify education. We have surely got to the point of seeing that education must be designed both to give young people the means of living a useful and a profitable life in the largest sense, and also to develop the talents and interests that are in each child so that he can enjoy living to the full. The strongest argument I can think of for language study is that there are many youngsters for whom language is a fascinating pursuit. They should have the chance to study with stimulating teachers. The real education we get is not from slogging over things we do not naturally like—though that has its place too—but from the adventure of going forward in something that fascinates us, in the company of an enthusiastic guide. The next strongest argument is the one I have been using all along; that our very civilization depends upon our unique human faculty of speech, and no effort we make to improve our channels of communication is wasted effort. And I think that we master speech best when we know something of the history, evolution and relationships of our own tongue.

And if you want a practical answer let me refer to a survey made recently in some large industries. It was discovered that of their thousands of employees, those who went on to promotion into technical and administrative responsibilities were those who had shown under tests a good "verbal factor." That is, there was a close correlation between language-skill and capacity for leadership. This is no coincidence. The thought that has no word to express it is like a picture in a darkened room. Homer used to speak of "winged words." The word is the arrow that flies from the archer straight to his mark.

This is probably sufficient detail to give the reader an insight to the intention and purpose kept in mind in the arrangement of this museum. Donations of ores, minerals, or fossils are carefully labelled and systematically placed in the proper sphere and credited to the donor, where they will remain as historical records of value when the donor and the mine are no more. The writer gets a great "kick" out of going around these cases from time to time, seeing the names of old friends and pioneers in various parts of this country; many others will get the same pleasure in the future, if their friends will just accept this invitation to send in exhibits that they think worth preserving.

Because we are growing with Canada
there are better opportunities than ever in a BANKING CAREER
with The Bank of Nova Scotia

OPPORTUNITIES for you are particularly good in The Bank of Nova Scotia because we are rapidly expanding. Canadian business and industry are growing bigger and stronger by the month, and he Bank of Nova Scotia is a front-rank partner in Canada's growth.

We are expanding, too, because every year, more and more go-ahead Canadians are taking advantage of the many services a modern bank can provide. And thy're taking advantage too, of those extra services that only The Bank of Nova Scotia offers. PSP, for instance — Personal Security Program — the new, surer way to save that guarantees your savings goal! Or take Instalment Savings Accounts — with the dramatic, new Thermometer Pass Book where you can actually see your savings grow! PSS and the Thermometer Pass Book are two important "Firsts" in Canadian banking service — but they're only two of the many reasons why now, more people than ever before, are banking with confidence at the friendly Bank of Nova Scotia . . . the Bank that is growing with Canada.

SCIENCE CONVOCATION

SPRING CONVOCATION

• Five hundred and thirty men and women received degrees at Spring Convocation on May 18. The degrees were granted in two ceremonies, which marked the close of the one hundredth and sixteenth session of the University.

Convocation for the Faculty of Applied Science was held in the morning, and in the afternoon there was a Convocation for the Queen's Theological College, the Faculty of Arts, the School of Commerce and Administration, and the Department of Physical and Health Education.

Morning Convocation

At the Convocation for Applied Science, 220 were granted degrees: M.Sc., 8; B.Sc. with honours, 28; B.Sc., 184.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Science was given to Walter Henry Zinn, Dunedin, Florida, president of the General Nuclear Engineering Corporation, and former director of the Argonne National Laboratory.

In his address Dr. Zinn spoke on "Opportunities in Engineering." He gave three reasons for engineers' being in such demand today: the drastic shortening of the time-lag between the laboratory discovery and the marketing of the derived product; the need for a steady flow of new products; and increasing productivity. Engineers were deeply involved in all three processes and, in fact, the rise in productivity could be credited to the new and improved machinery they had developed.

The process of getting products of atomic energy research from the laboratory to the sphere of general use to society was basically an engineering problem. As far as new products were concerned, only a beginning has been made. Mass radiation is still in its infancy and engineers are needed to solve the many technical problems in the field.

Dr. Zinn paid tribute to two of his former teachers at Queen's, Dr. J. K. Robertson and Dr. J. A. Gray, both now retired. "Professor Robertson's demonstration of the beauty of experimenting made a permanent impression on me—he was the finest teacher I ever had," he said. "Queen's University should be very proud to have had in Professor Gray one of the real pioneers in nuclear work—long before it was a popular subject."

In his remarks to the new graduates Principal Mackintosh said: "This is your day of recognition. . . . the conferring of degrees places the seal of the University upon your attainments . . . admit you to full membership in the community which is Queen's University."

The Governor-General's Medal, awarded to the member of the graduating class who has made the highest standing throughout the four years of his course, was presented to E. J. Woods, Haileybury, Ontario. Mr. Woods also received the Imperial Oil Graduate Research Fellowship for Research in Physics and the Medal in Physics.

Afternoon Convocation

At the afternoon Convocation 310 received degrees: Ph.D., 8; B.D., 8; M.A., 24; B.A. with honours, 49; B.A., 191; B.Com., 18; B.P.H.E., 12. Honorary degrees were granted as follows:

Doctor of Divinity — Rev. Gordon Walsh Porter, Ottawa, Ontario; Rev. James Archie Pue-Gilchrist, Smiths Falls, Ontario.

Doctor of Laws — Hon. Louis O. Breithaupt, Lieutenant - Governor of Ontario; Ernest Clark Gill, president of the Canada Life Assurance Company and vice-chairman of the Queen's Board of Trustees; Cecil Charles Goldring, director of education with the Toronto Board of Education, Toronto, Ontario; and Miss Anne Isabel Hume, librarian, Windsor, Ontario.

In his address on behalf of the recipients of honorary degrees, Dr. Breithaupt reminded the members of the graduating class of "the degree to which the well-being of our country depends on you." He noted that university graduates, a mere six per cent of the school population, are the source of supply upon which the nation must depend for most of its engineers, scientists, administrators, organizers, planners, medical, legal and commercial people, teachers, and other professional men and women.

ARTS CONVOCATION

"This is an age of conflicting philosophies," Mr. Breithaupt pointed out. "The best of these represents an earnest effort by people of good will to find a way to a well-ordered and happy society. The worst represents the exploitation by ambitious and unscrupulous individuals of humanity's desire for peace and security.

"Your training has protected you from these false prophets. It also imposed upon you the responsibility of applying your abilities in such a way that those who depend upon you for leadership in so many fields will feel no need or inclination to give serious consideration to selfish or irresponsible philosophies."

Principal Mackintosh, speaking to the new graduates, said: "You are embarked on the great adventure without assurance but bright with hope. The good wishes of your teachers, your fellow-students and of those who will be your fellow-graduates go with you. Your Alma Mater awaits your return."

The Prince of Wales Prize, awarded to the graduating student in the Faculty of Arts adjudged to have the best academic record, was presented to Miss Olga Fedorchak, Hamilton, Ontario. Miss Fedorchak also won the Medal in Psychology.

The Jenkins Trophy, awarded annually to the student who brings most honour to the University by his athletic and scholastic ability, was presented to Ronald Stewart, Toronto, Ontario.

CITATIONS

Walter Henry Zinn—distinguished graduate of this University, notable in his contributions to nuclear physics, who was one of that small group in 1942 in Chicago who, standing between two epochs, achieved "the first self-sustaining chain reaction and thereby initiated the controlled release of nuclear energy" and who, as Director of the Argonne National Laboratory, has pioneered decisive steps in the conversion of nuclear to electrical energy.

Gordon Walsh Porter—distinguished graduate of this University, faithful minister of the Gospel, wartime chaplain in the Air Force, who, as Superintendent of Missions for the United Church in Quebec and Eastern Ontario, plays an important part in the swift changes in pioneer and urban life of a vast area of this country.

James Archie Pue-Gilchrist—devoted minister of the Gospel, an athlete who regretably helped the University of Toronto to win and retain the Intercollegiate Football Championship for three years, energetic leader of the Church who has inspired and invigorated many congregations from Bracebridge to Cape Breton.

Louis Orville Breithaupt—who has maintained and extended a fine family tradition in his native community and province, distinguished in his achievements in business and in public service and who, as Her Majesty's representative in the Province of Ontario, has promoted the dignity and order of government.

Ernest Clark Gill—native of this city, distinguished graduate of this University, medallist in mathematics, who, in Churchill's phrase, bringing the magic of averages to the welfare of millions, has achieved leadership in his chosen career and, as Trustee of the University, has devoted himself with unmeasured loyalty and enthusiasm to her progress and welfare.

Cecil Charles Goldring—graduate of this University, distinguished as teacher and administrator, who, as Director of Education in the city of Toronto, has rendered devoted service to that expanding community.

Anne Hume—graduate of this University, who has achieved distinction in a notably constructive career as librarian, and, as Chief Librarian for the city of Windsor, has made unusual contributions to the literary and cultural life of that community.

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

Ron Stewart, one of the outstanding Tricolour football stars of all time, is shown in graduation habiliment, with his sister, left, Mrs. Doreen Clarke, and his mother, Mrs. Robert Stewart. Ron was awarded the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Physical and Health Education, and was also presented with the Jenkins Memorial Trophy as the student who had brought most honour to the University by his athletic and scholastic ability.

THE HOBSONS

DOCTORS ALL

MEDICAL CONVOCATION

• The medical profession was enriched by the addition of fifty-six new doctors, five of whom were women, at the Convocation of the Faculty of Medicine on May 25. Besides, there was one Doctor of Philosophy and three M.Sc. graduates and three diplomas in Medical Radiology. At the same Convocation fourteen women graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Nursing Science and six obtained diplomas in Nursing.

Honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws were conferred on two men who have made valuable contributions in their respective fields over a period of years: R. Fraser Armstrong, retiring superintendent of the Kingston General Hospital, and Dr. Wilder Penfield, world-renowned neurologist and head of the Montreal Neurological Institute.

Mr. Armstrong was cited as a "civil engineer by training and leading Canadian hospital administrator by general acclamation, who for thirty years has devoted his skilled mind and his great gifts of judgment, tact—and patience—to the service of the Kingston General Hospital with such distinction that his counsel is sought by hospital administrators far and wide."

Dr. Wilder's citation read: "distinguished scientist, great teacher and consummate neuro-surgeon, who gave up a promising career as a football coach to study medicine under the influence of Sir William Osler—a gain he has been extending for over forty years, whose work on the puzzles of the brain and in the direction of the Montreal Neurological Institute needs no recitation, and whose inquiring and fertile scientific mind has always been disciplined by a generous humanity."

Speaking on behalf of the recipients of honorary degrees, Dr. Penfield told the members of the graduating class that a fault in the training of doctors lies in

The Brackens of Brockville

When George Bruce Bracken kneeled before the Chancellor of the University at Spring Convocation on May 18 and was laureated as a Bachelor of Arts and a Bachelor of Physical and Health Education he became the sixth and last of the children of Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Bracken to graduate from Queen's.

At the head of this remarkable Queen's family is Dr. Clifford Morley Bracken, who graduated with his M.D.,C.M. degrees in 1923. His wife was the former Florence Willson, who obtained her B.A. degree in 1921 and was married the same year. Dr. Bracken carried on a practice in Athens, Ontario, from graduation until 1936. In that year he moved to Brockville, Ontario, where he has practised ever since.

First of the Bracken children to follow in their parents' footsteps was Clifford C. H. Bracken, who obtained his M.D., C.M. degrees in 1946. After internship at the Hamilton General Hospital, Dr. Bracken was with the Ontario Hospital Service from 1947 to 1955. Since December, 1955, he has been psychiatrist director, Community Guidance Centre, San Antonio, Texas.

Constance Bracken graduated with her B.A. degree in 1945. She taught at Hatfield Hall, Cobourg, for one year, at Dundalk for two years, and at Aima College, St. Thomas, from September to December 1949, when she married John T. Bradley, a B.Sc. graduate of the University of Toronto. She is now living in Kingston.

Helen Bracken obtained her B.A. degree in 1946. After attending the School of Social Work at the University of Toronto she worked in Kingston for two years with the Children's Aid Society. Married to A. T. E. Anderson, Com. '48, she is living in Ottawa.

Lawrence H. Bracken, graduated in 1951 with a B.Sc. degree in electrical engineering. He joined the staff of Phillips Electric Company in Brockville, Ontario, and remained there until the Telephone Division became the Automatic Electric Company, with which he is still associated.

SIXTH AND LAST

Dr. C. M. Bracken, Mrs. G. B. Bracken, G. B. Bracken, and Mrs. C. M. Bracken, Mr. Bracken was the sixth and last of the Bracken children to graduate from Queen's. Father and mother are also graduates. Home is in Brockville, Ont.

FACULTY OF LAW

Board of Trustees Gives Approval To Establishment of Faculty of Law

Classes To Start Next Fall

Approval of the establishment of a Faculty of Law which will give a three-year course in legal studies leading to the degree of Bachelor of Laws was given by the Board of Trustees at the meeting on May 18.

Instruction in the first year of the course will begin in September, 1957. Dr. J. A. Corry, vice-principal, has been appointed Acting Dean, and the expected enrolment for the first year will be between twenty and thirty-five students. Eventually it is hoped to have a School of Law accommodating between 150 and 175 students.

Queen's will not be embarking on an entirely new venture with the opening of a law school. In 1860 Queen's established a Faculty of Law. Instruction in the Faculty came to an end in 1864, was revived again in 1880, and ended in 1883. Stumbling blocks to success were finances and the decision of the Law Society of Upper Canada that everyone who wanted to become a lawyer had to attend Osgoode Hall in Toronto.

The present decision to return to law is the result of another and recent decision of the Law Society to allow universities to carry through the academic part of legal education on the same terms as Osgoode Hall. The Society has set up minimum requirements, and to qualify for the Ontario Bar it is necessary to graduate from "an approved law school of an approved university." The Trustees were pleased that they had been able to obtain the necessary sanction.

Establishment of the Law Faculty fulfils a long personal hope of Principal Mackintosh for a professional school leading out of the Faculty of Arts. For the first year the new Faculty will have two full-time teachers, an Acting Dean pending the appointment of a permanent Dean, and possibly a special lecturer drawn from the local bar. Equally important as staff is the founding of a law library and steps will be taken immediately to assemble such a library.

Had it not been for the wholehearted support of the Frontenac Law Association the new Faculty would not have been able to begin its course this fall. Arrangements have been made so that law students may use the library at the Court House until other facilities can be arranged. A small library and reading room will be organized on the campus in order that the students will not be totally dependent on the Frontenac Law Association.

It is hoped that eventually Queen's will be able to provide a separate building for the Faculty. However, at least for the next two years, it will use other University facilities.

As a member of the Saskatchewan Bar and a former teacher of law at the University of Saskatchewan, Dr. Corry is well qualified for directing the new Faculty. In addition to being Vice-Principal of the University, he is the Hardy Professor of Political Science.

According to D. D. Calvin in his history, Queen's University at Kingston, the Board of Trustees first became concerned with the teaching of law when they resolved, on June 1, 1847, that they would ask some influential member of the Legislature of the Province of Canada to introduce, and try to find support for, a bill to give the graduates of Queen's the "same privileges with regard to the period during which they must stand on the books of the Law Society, in order to be admitted as Barristers, as are enjoyed by the graduates of the universities of Great Britain, and the University of King's College in this Province."

An Act was passed on July 28, 1847, which extended to the graduates of Queen's and of Victoria College, and to those of any future degree-granting college in Canada West, the privileges of the Act of Parliament of Upper Canada in 1834. The chief privilege was simply that of being admitted to practice at the end of three years instead of the usual five.

DR. J. A. CORRY, ACTING DEAN

It was not until 1861 that arrangements were completed for the establishment of a Faculty of Law. Such arrangements were futile, of course, unless they were recognized by the Law Society of Upper Canada. Queen's made application for such recognition of the work done at Queen's "as a substitute for attendance at Terms in Toronto" and was refused.

In spite of this, the Law Faculty continued its work. The first LL.B.'s were graduated in 1863. The Faculty ran into financial difficulties; money could not be found to continue and the school closed in 1864.

Dormant for sixteen years the Law Faculty was revived in 1880, but soon was in difficulty again. Finally, in the December 9. 1884, issue of the Journal it was reported that the Faculty of Law was "born about 1860, lapsed into a coma in 1864, returned to partial consciousness 1880, died peacefully 1883."

Despite this demise there must have been some hope that the Faculty might one day come to life once more, for a list of examiners in Law lingered on in the University calendars for many years —even as late as 1910-11. And the University continued to grant LL.B. degrees, the requirements being satisfied by students taking their courses from Kingston lawyers.

Dr. William B. Munro, M.A. '96, LL.B. '96, LL.D. '12, was one of these. One of the most distinguished educators in the United States, Dr. Munro is widely known as an administrator, scholar, author, and lecturer. Long recognized as an authority on government, history, economics and banking, he is now retired and living in Pasadena, California. Dr. Munro is the only living graduate with an LL.B. degree from Queen's.

Alumni Directors

Graduates Contribute $73,531 to Alumni Fund

President W. A. Dawson Reports Progress

During 1956 a total of $73,531 was given to the University through the Alumni Fund, D. L. Rigsby, chairman of the Fund committee, reported at the sixtieth semi-annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association on May 17. The percentage of the alumni body contributing was 19.5.

In the first year, 1955, that the Association took over the direction of the Fund, the total contributed was $61,248, so that progress is being made, said Mr. Rigsby. The immediate objective is $150,000 contributed by 50 per cent of the alumni, and it is hoped to achieve this goal within a few years.

"Your Alumni Fund committee is convinced that the Alumni Fund can only progress when the branches set up strong fund-raising organizations which will function actively year after year," said Mr. Rigsby. "Mailed appeals can have only limited results. If we are to compare favourably with the efforts of other universities we must have an effective branch canvassing organization."

It was pointed out that experience had shown a campaign is most effective if arranged for the spring, and this policy is now being recommended to the branches. Local conditions may indicate that another time of year is preferable, of course.

Because of the National Fund campaign, the Alumni Fund this year is not sending out the first appeal by mail until June. As a consequence, the results for 1957 are currently lagging behind the record for 1956. In the final analysis, however, it is expected that the Alumni Fund will profit from interest stirred up by the National Fund.

An appeal was made to the directors to use their influence to see that strong Alumni Fund committees are established in their home areas. The assistance of head office was promised to all who needed it in setting up their local organization.

Mr. Rigsby said that there appeared to be some confusion between the Alumni Fund and the National Fund in the minds of many of the alumni. He pointed out that the Alumni Fund was a continuing effort, in which the graduates were asked to contribute according to their means on an annual basis. whereas the National Fund was largely a one-year proposition.

An analysis of class reunions and what makes them successful and what is needed to improve the program at

QUEEN'S TARTAN

Approval in principle was given at the spring meeting of the Alumni Directors to the suggestion of John R. Matheson of Brockville, Ontario, that a distinctive Queen's tartan be created. A member of the University's Board of Trustees and of the University Council, Mr. Matheson had done considerable research along these lines and was able to submit a few designs. Mr. Matheson is to take up the idea with other University bodies and the matter will receive further consideration at the fall meeting of the Board.

Queen's was given in a comprehensive eport presented by J. A. Edmison, hairman of the national program committee. Among the recommendations ut forward was the engagement of a eunion secretary who could look after he organization of class reunions on full-time basis. It was agreed that very effort should be made to ensure he welcome and the comfort of graduates who return for reunion.

Written or oral reports were also presented by the chairmen of other national committees: advisory, Dr. C. H. McCuaig; athletic, Ian MacLachlan; constitution, Dr. Wallace Troup; editorial, Mrs. D. B. Toland; finance, B. I. England; membership, W. R. Richmond; scholarships and awards, N. F. Tisdale.

A total of one hundred and twelve meetings were held by the branches during the past year, the report of the alumni secretary revealed. The visit of N. R. Crump, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway and chairman of the University's National Fund, to Western Canada had given these branches considerable impetus.

The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," had been shown at many of the branches and had been enthusiastically received. As a contribution to the public relations work of the University the branches had arranged, in many instances, to have the film shown to home and school clubs, collegiate institutes and high schools, service clubs, and other groups interested in higher education.

The demand for university-trained men and women continued to exceed the supply, the secretary reported. Approximately 160 companies sent representatives to the University for recruitment purposes, and upwards of 3600 appointments were scheduled. The average starting salary for engineers was $375.00 a month, an increase of 12 per cent over last year. Arts graduates in pure science received in the main the same financial offers as engineers. Those with a general B.A. degree were offered $300.00 to $325.00 a month. Commerce graduates were offered $350.00 to $400.00 a month, to start, with the exception of those going in for chartered accountancy, where the going rate was $275.00 a month.

The threat of invasion by employers from the United States, feared in many quarters, failed to become a problem on this campus. There were a number of enquiries from U.S. firms, but only a handful actually visited the campus and these fared poorly. Of course, there was the usual number of companies from the ALBERT COLLEGE, 1857-1957. By Waldo E. L. Smith. Published by the Ontario Intelligencer Limited, $1.50.

With a history paralleling that of Queen's in many respects, Albert College, fifty miles distant at Belleville, Ontario, is celebrating its one hundredth year.

Albert College, like Queen's, had its origins in the desire of a church group to establish a school of its own, in this case, the reconstituted Methodist Episcopal Church. Classes began on July 16, 1857, and classes were taught in ethics, belles lettres, mental philosophy, classics, natural sciences, mathematics, English, French, German, Italian, Spanish, drawing, and embroidery. The school had a Preparatory Department, but the announcement stipulated that students should be able to read and have some knowledge of arithmetic and geography. The collegiate course included algebra, geometry, trigonometry, navigation and surveying, Latin, French, Greek and Roman History, Botany, Astronomy, natural theology and moral philosophy. The enrolment the first year was one hundred and twenty.

Like Queen's, Albert College, or Belleville Seminary as it was known in the beginning, experienced stormy times, mostly financial. While the new school was still in the planning stage it ran into financial difficulties, but so determined were the founders to maintain independence that a grant from the Legislative Assembly was turned down. The year the school opened, 1857, was one of a serious business depression in which many banks failed and others suspended payments. But the men behind the new school were possessed of the same determination as those who guided the destinies of Queen's and with much personal sacrifice on the part of all concerned carried on. This was the first of many hurdles that had to be overcome, not the least of which was the depression of the 1930's, when the enrolment sank to thirty and the members of staff took a 50 per cent decrease in what was already inadequate pay.

Albert College as it stands today is a monument to the perseverance and the foresight and the sacrifices of all those who believed in the institution. The history of the College is a story of the endeavour for the spiritual ideal through material handicaps.

Many men and women prominent in Canadian life received their secondary school education at Albert College. Many of these came to Queen's. Dr. Hiram Buchanan, who died in April of this year, was the senior living graduate of Albert College and the senior living Medical graduate of Queen's at the time of his death. Guy Curtis, commemorated in the old Queen's song as "Remember Captain Curtis and the conquerors of Yale," attended Albert College before moving on to Queen's where his athletic feats are remembered after more than sixty years.

The author of this interesting history is Dr. Waldo E. L. Smith, professor of church history at Queen's Theological College and associate professor of history on the staff of Queen's University. He is a member of the Advisory Board of the College, as is also Hon. Mr. Justice C. A. Cameron, B.A. '13, Ottawa. On the Board of Governors are Mrs. R. H. Hay (Helen Lancaster), B.A. '33, Kingston, W. L. McDougall, B.Com. '28, Belleville, and Rev. A. J. Wilson, B.A. '12, B.D. '15, D.D. '40, Toronto.

• The official Reunion weekend this fall will be October 25-27, it was decided at the semi-annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association on May 17. This is the weekend of the Queen's-McGill game.

Classes scheduled to hold a reunion are those of '07, '17, '18, '19, '20, '32, '36, '37, '38, '39, '55, '56, and '57. Classes are not bound by this schedule, of course, and may hold a reunion at any time and on any weekend. For example, the classes of Science '19 and '22 are holding a reunion on the weekend of the Queen's-Varsity game on October 5.

The Alumni Office has compiled lists of names and addresses of the members in the classes in this year's schedule and these are being sent out to the permanent executives of the classes concerned. The class officers are invited to send a personal message to their classmates, urging them to attend the reunion.

Reunion headquarters will be set up in the John Orr Room on the main floor of the Students' Memorial Union. Here will be the registration desk, information as to accommodation and football tickets, and other matters of interest to the graduates and their friends. Transportation and guides will be available to alumni who might like to look around the campus and the city.

The program includes a University reception in Grant Hall on Friday night, a cafeteria-style luncheon in the Union on Saturday (or perhaps a box luncheon on the grounds outside the Stadium), the Principal's Tea in Adelaide Hall and Ban Righ Hall after the game, the Reunion Dinner in the Union on Saturday evening, and a University Church Service in Grant Hall on Sunday morning.

Many of the classes will be planning their own individual functions. The Reunion Dinner in the Union is arranged for the convenience of those not able or not wishing to hold a class dinner of their own. Tickets are sold in advance and are available at the registration desk.

A special welcome is issued to the graduates of 1907, who will be marking their fiftieth anniversary. These graduates will be the guests of the Association at the Reunion Dinner and will be given small gifts commemorating the occasion.

The national program committee of the Alumni Association has several new ideas under consideration for the benefit of graduates at the Fall Reunion and some of these will be introduced this fall.

Graduates who have not heard from their class organizers or who want any additional information are invited to write to the Alumni Office.

Future Bright for University Grads Says Prof. W. G. Leonard

There never was a better opportunity than today for University-trained men and women, Prof. W. G. Leonard, professor of Commerce and director of professional courses in the School of Commerce and Administration, told the annual meeting of the Belleville and District branch on May 15. The meeting was held in the parish hall of St. Margaret's Church.

"Canada is rapidly being transformed from an agricultural to an industrial nation," said Professor Leonard. "Foreign investors look upon Canada as a favourable place to make an investment, and as the economy expands leaders are needed more than ever before."

"Today, more than ever, knowledge is power and without knowledge there is no power," said Mr. Leonard.

The speaker was introduced by W. L. McDougall, Com. '28. He was thanked by John M. Ross, Sc. '50.

H. J. Hamilton, alumni secretary, spoke briefly in bringing the greetings of the University and the Alumni Association. He complimented the Belleville branch on the excellent results obtained by the Alumni Fund Committee headed by Mrs. J. H. Bateman (Helen Leslie), Arts '35.

Reports were presented as follows: secretary, W. M. Rankin, Arts '48; treasurer, Miss Jean Scott, Arts '52; Alumni Fund, Mrs. Bateman; member of the Alumni Board of Directors, A. S. Robb, Sc. '36.

The president, F. E. Moore, Sc. '34, as chairman for the evening welcomed the guests and alumni. He gave a brief review of the program during his term of office and thanked the members of the executive and the branch for their whole-hearted support.

R. G. Moorman, Sc. '48, was elected president of the branch for the ensuing year. Also appointed were: first vice-president, W. M. Rankin, Arts '48; second vice-president, G. A. Frost, Arts '50; treasurer, Miss Jean Scott; secretary, Dr. Joan Bronskill, Arts '53; athletic chairman, J. R. Sissons, B.P.H.E. and Arts '53; Alumni Fund chairman, Mrs. J. H. Bateman; district representatives, Miss Lamoine West, Arts '32, Dr. J. H. Walmsley, Arts '12, Med. '14.

The program also included a spirited sing-song led by John M. Ross.

Reports were presented by Dr. B. G. Ballard, Lt. Col. G. W. L. Nicholson, Dr. H. A. Quinn, E. A. Prime, and K. S. Wynkie, Arts '46, chairman of the nominating committee. A vote of thanks was given to G. E. Perrin, Arts '49, retiring permanent secretary of the branch.

Montreal Alumnae Hear Talk On Flower Arrangement

Mrs. Eric Cushing was the guest speaker at the annual spring luncheon held by the Montreal alumnae on April 6. Mrs. Cushing gave a lively talk on the subject of flower arrangements and demonstrated her methods of achieving striking results. She was introduced by Mrs. F. J. Fortier (Marjorie Bishop), Arts '36, and thanked by Miss Kay O'Neill, Arts '43.

At the business meeting following the luncheon, funds were voted to the Montreal bursary, the Marty Memorial scholarship and the Dean of Women's Emergency Fund. Mrs. G. S. Longley read a report of the Montreal Council of Women.

Mrs. C. F. Young (Mildred Jardine), Arts '21, will continue to serve as president, and Mrs. B. M. Cormier (Ruby Cordy), Arts '34, as first vice-president. The other officers will include: past president, Miss Elsie Macfarlane, Arts '30; second vice-president, Miss Winifred Midgely, Arts '52; recording secretary, Miss Muriel Barton, Arts '53; corresponding secretary, Miss Gay Speal, Com. the fact that it is too deficient on the side of the humanities. It is not too much to request of a man who is to be a spiritual counsellor as well as a healer of the body that he be learned in literature, Dr. Penfield said. He advised the graduates to read as much as possible, "since if you want to write well and think well you must read well."

"The physician must establish his own philosophy since he will be dealing often with death and black despair. He must also be prepared to relearn his philosophy in the light of new experience and develop his own faith in his own way," said Dr. Penfield.

The Medal in Medicine was awarded to Norman Ronald Aldous of Oshawa, Ontario. Mr. Aldous also won the W. W. Near and Susan Near Prize for the highest standing throughout the Medical course, the Dean Fowler Prize for the highest marks in the examinations of the sixth year, the Edgar Forrester Prize for highest number of marks in final year Medicine and Clinical Medicine, the Hannah Washburn Polson Prize for proficiency in Clinical Diagnosis in Medicine, Surgery, and Obstetrics, and the Frederick Boyd Prize for the student considered by the Faculty to be the most deserving and competent.

The Medal in Surgery was won by James Douglas Bell, Hamilton, Ontario, former member of the senior football team. Mr. Bell also won the Professor's Prize in Surgery and the Neil Currie Polson Memorial Prize as the student judged by his teachers to be the best adapted to apply his training in practice.

Ruth Bracken obtained her degrees of B.A. and B.P.H.E. in 1953. She taught for one year at Lindsay Collegiate Institute, before attending the Ontario College of Education. For the past two years she has been on the staff of Queen Elizabeth Collegiate Institute in Kingston.

Bruce Bracken fulfilled the requirements for his B.A. and B.P.H.E. degrees last fall and was laureated this spring. He has spent a year on the staff of Fisher Park Collegiate Institute in Ottawa as recreation director. He will teach next year at the Brockville Collegiate.

When the Bracken family gets together for a reunion it constitutes a regular Queen's meeting. It is little wonder that the Dr. and Mrs. Bracken, Sr., played a prominent part in the formation of an alumni branch in Brockville a few years ago. They know from past experience the enjoyment and satisfaction to be gained from such an organization.

An engineering career?

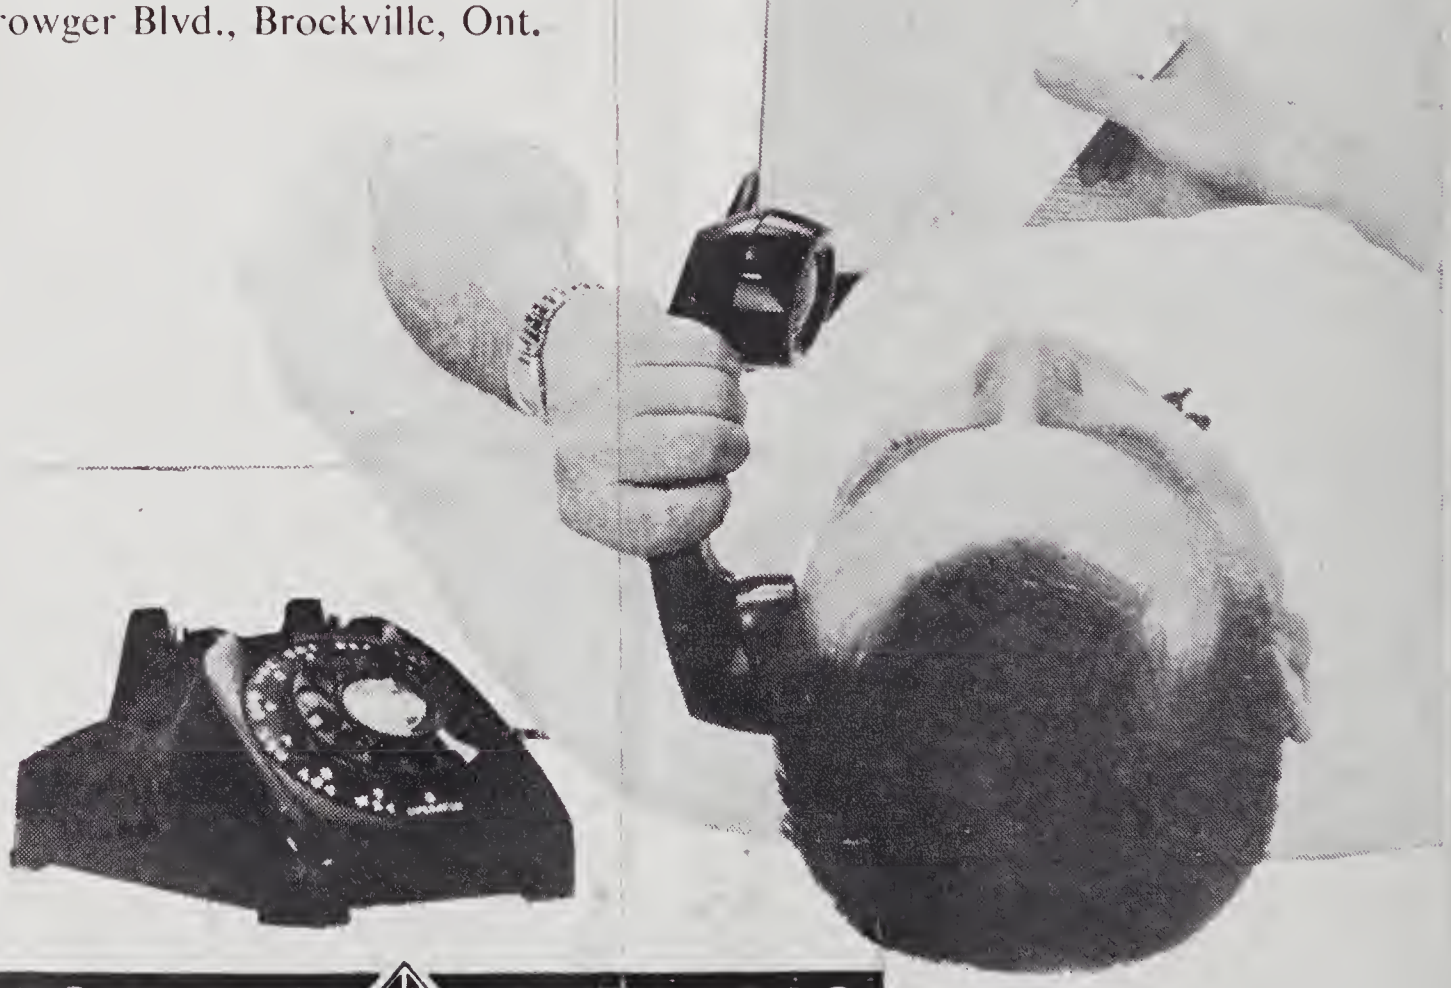

Your future is in your hands

If you like to dream big, there could be a brilliant future for you at Automatic Electric. Here's where the automatic dial telephone, long distance dialing, and many other firsts in communications and electrical controls were born. Here's where many of the important advances in automation are coming from today. Big shoes to fill, and a big job ahead.

We've a real opportunity to offer, besides all the usual incentives. Here you can rub minds with the deans of communications engineering . . . catch fire with a young team that's going places . . . work on challenging, man-sized projects that are vital to industry and our national defense. And, to give young ideas plenty of elbow room, we've built one of Canada's most modern plants in Brockville, Ontario. We'd like to tell you more.

NO DUES IS GOOI

Membership Fees in Alumni Association Are Abolished

In Future There Will Be Only One Appeal —on Behalf of the Alumni Fund

As of January 1, 1958, membership fees in the Alumni Association are abolished and, instead, there will be only one financial appeal from the Association, on behalf of the Alumni Fund. Contributors to the Fund will receive the Review and other benefits of membership in the Association.

Thus ends a policy that has existed since the formation of the Association in 1927. At that time membership fees were set at $3.00 a year, and the year end was September 30. Fees were raised to $4.00 in 1952. Now, there will no longer be any fees, but the first $5.00 of any contribution to the Fund will be credited to the Association. There will be no such deduction in the case of life members. The Association year hereafter will be the calendar year.

Last year a record number of 4,495 alumni joined the Association, and there were 3,172 contributors to the Fund. It is hoped that all graduates who have been accustomed to joining the Association will now contribute to the Fund if they have not been in the habit of so doing heretofore.

By adopting this new policy the Alumni Association is following a trend that is taking place among the major educational institutions in the United States and in Canada, a trend towards one appeal for financial support. The history of alumni organizations on this continent shows that forty to fifty years ago universities made three appeals; one for membership in the alumni association, one for subscription to the alumni magazine, and one for contributions to the alumni fund. After World War One there was a movement toward amalgamation of memberships and magazine subscriptions, and it was during this period that the Queen's organization was formed. After World War Two there was a trend toward one single appeal for financial support. The main determining factor in convincing the Alumni Board of Directors at Queen's to adopt this policy of single solicitation was the evidence that both alumni association and fund prospered under the system wherever it has been put into operation.

With this change in policy has come a change in the planning of the Alumni Fund Committee. Up to this point the Committee has been advocating to the branch fund committees that canvassing be done in the fall of the year. Experience has proved that this timing is not always effective. If, for any reason, a branch executive finds difficulty in getting organized early in the fall there is danger of the canvass running into the Christmas season, with poor results. Now the Alumni Fund Committee is recommending that the branches organize their fund-raising committees in the fall, but do their actual canvassing early in the spring unless, of course, local conditions indicate that another schedule is advisable.

It is believed that the new set-up will benefit the branches and the Association and the Fund. Those who were in the habit of collecting memberships will now be able to concentrate on the Alumni Fund canvass. The branches will continue to receive rebates of $1.00 per contributor to help defray their expenses.

It is highly important that an all-out canvass be conducted by every branch during 1958, the first year of the single solicitation. The Alumni Fund Committee will continue to send out appeals and literature relative to the appeals, and it is expected that these will elicit the usual response. But for any Fund program to be effective there must be a personal canvass some time during the year to follow up on those who have not responded to the written appeals. Work done along this line has accumulative effects in that more and more alumni are conditioned to contribute to the Fund on an annual basis.

Many of the branches are well organized for their canvasses and need only the word from head office to proceed. Others have named their Alumni Fund chairmen but lack an active organization. Still others have yet to set up any sort of organization. To these the Alumni Fund Committee directs an appeal to get under way as soon as possible. Information, literature, and other assistance is available from the Alumni Fund Office at the University.

The standings by districts in 1956 in percentage of graduates contributing to the Alumni Fund were as follows: Hamilton, 35.8; Ottawa, 33.2; Montreal, 30.2; Quebec City, 29.5; Peterborough, 27.1; St. Maurice, 25; Saguenay, 24.6; Belleville, 24.1; Kootenay, 23; Northwest Quebec, 22.7; Northern Saskatchewan, 22.5; Brantford, 22.1; Porcupine, 21.4; Stratford, 21.3; Windsor, 21.3; Cornwall, 20.9; London, 20.7; Sudbury-Copper Cliff, 20.7; North Bay, 20.5; Toronto, 18.6; Guelph, 18.6; Calgary, 18; Winnipeg, 17.6; Sarnia, 17.6; Wellington-Waterloo, 17.4; Niagara Peninsula, 17.1; Huronia, 16.1; Vancouver, 15.6; Kingston, 15.5; Kent County, 15; Edmonton, 14.9; U.S.A., 13.5; Brockville, 12.5; Foreign, 12.4; St. John, N.B., 12.4; Oshawa, 12.1; Lanark County, 11.4; Renfrew County, 11.3; Sault Ste. Four Million In Sight ● Under date of August 1, Mr. N. R. Crump, general chairman of the National Fund for Queen's University, announced that the subscriptions now total $3,705,-787.16. Mr. Crump is confident that the campaign objective of $4,000,000 will be attained before the end of the year.

"Too much praise cannot be given chairmen of many of the Divisions", said Mr. Crump. "They have worked exceedingly hard to attain their high quotas". He also approved their plans to complete the canvass as soon after the holiday season as possible.

Mr. Crump said that both the McGill and Queen's campaigns gave strong evidence of the increasing interest and generosity of Canadian industry in Canadian education, and commented: "This is most hopeful and significant".

The Campaign Headquarters have now been moved from Toronto to Kingston. W. T. Fortye continues to act as Treasurer and J. A. Edmison as University Liason Officer.

TO JOIN CABINET

Dr. Matthew B. Dymond, Med. '41, physician, Port Perry, Ont., has been appointed minister of reform institutions in the Ontario Legislature. He plans to relinquish his practice to handle the appointment.

Dr. Dymond succeeds John W. Foote, V.C., Arts '33, who was forced to resign owing to ill health.

W. A. Dawson

Continuing with the series of announcements which have been appearing in successive issues of the Review, relative to the establishment of additional Administrative Committees, it seems most timely that this article cover the recently instituted National Program Committee.

During recent years a growing conviction developed among the executive officers of the Board of Directors that the Fall Reunion was losing its appeal to the graduates. In keeping with the attention given by other universities to this important event, it was evident that the Alumni Association should streamline and modernize its reunion programs. Many alumni of yester-year make real sacrifices in coming long distances to celebrate their class reunions on the Old Ontario Strand, therefore it became apparent that more should be done on the campus to keep alive in their hearts the bond of sentiment, loyalty and tradition that gave them the proud feeling of belonging to an important segment of society and to one of the finest educational institutions in the land.

It was most fitting that Mr. Alex. Edmison, Arts '26, should accept the challenge associated with the responsibilities of being the first chairman of this important National Committee. Few graduates are better acquainted with the activities of the University and its alumni than Mr. Edmison. Without delay a strong Committee was selected and a start was made last fall to introduce a number of important innovations to the program. Based on the success of the 1956 program changes and further surveys, the National Committee have extensive plans completed for a pleasant and entertaining reunion week-end next October 25, 26, and 27.

The Board of Directors realize that the annual Fall Reunions can be built up in interest and activity to the point where they will become big business operations, and their benefits to Queen's will be considerable. To cope with the ramification of this project the Board approved the appointment of a full-time Reunion Secretary in the person of Miss Anne Corrigan, Arts '24.

It is a singular pleasure for me to report the establishment of the National Program Committee and the appointment of its capable Chairman and Secretary. The feeling exists throughout the Board that the returns from the resulting good-will and increased alumni interest will more than justify the action taken. With the support of every alumnus the National Program Committee aims to make the class reunions the outstanding event of the year at Queen's.

Dr. D. C. Matheson Retires After Long Association With Queen's

Associated with the Faculty of Medicine for forty-six years as student and teacher, Dr. D. C. Matheson, professor and head of the Department of Anatomy, is retiring this summer.

For many years Dr. Matheson was the only full-time teacher on the gross anatomy staff at Queen's, so that his teaching duties were heavy. Over the years he has taken great pains in compiling from his own observations and experience detailed dissecting instructions for his students. A portion of these dissecting instructions are in print with illustrations, and other sections are being illustrated by Miss Janet Seaton, medical artist with the Department.

Through his devotion to the task of teaching anatomy, Dr. Matheson has won the respect and affection of nearly four decades of Queen's medical graduates and undergraduates. The Aesculapian Society dedicated the spring issue of the Medical Review to Dr. Matheson, and in a tribute one of the students, Al Deep, Med. '59, wrote: "we will long remember D.C.M. as a truly great 'Queen's man,' and his name shall be highly honoured on our annals for many years to come." Other tributes were: "There was no more industrious, dedicated and kindly person than 'Matty' at Queen's or, one suspects, elsewhere."—Dr. J. L. McKelvey, Med. '26, head of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University of Minnesota; "Dr. Matheson is a man who thinks first of his obligations, and teaching to him was paramount. And through it he knew success, gained professional achievement, and certainly gave leadership in his field"—Dr. Austin Smith, Med. '38, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association; "His students have learned to admire him for his integrity, his patience, and his enthusiasm; they have been encouraged in their work by his devotion to a subject and by his personal interest in imparting his knowledge to them."—Bob Langford, Med. '58, president of the Aesculapian Society.

Queen's Botanists Included In List of Distinguished Scientists

An article in the May issue of Science on "Origins and Status of American Botanists" will be of interest to friends of Queen's. It reports on 2640 botanists listed in American Men of Science. They have graduated from 401 universities and colleges in the United States and Canada, but only fifty-one have had as many as fifteen graduates each.

These are named and Queen's is in the list with sixteen graduates in botany whose reputations warrant notice. Three other Canadian universities are included —McGill with twenty-one, Toronto with thirty, and Saskatchewan with seventeen. Among American universities Harvard has had thirty-four botanists, Chicago forty-three, while Yale and Princeton are given separately as having had eight and one respectively.

The following statement is made: "Without thorough analysis of the reasons for the significant contribution of . . . . relatively small colleges to botanical education, it is probably correct to attribute it to strong teachers and to administrative policies." It should be noted that a number of these Queen's botanists were students here in the days of the late Professor W. T. MacClement.

Dr. W. B. Munro Explains Former Law School Set-Up

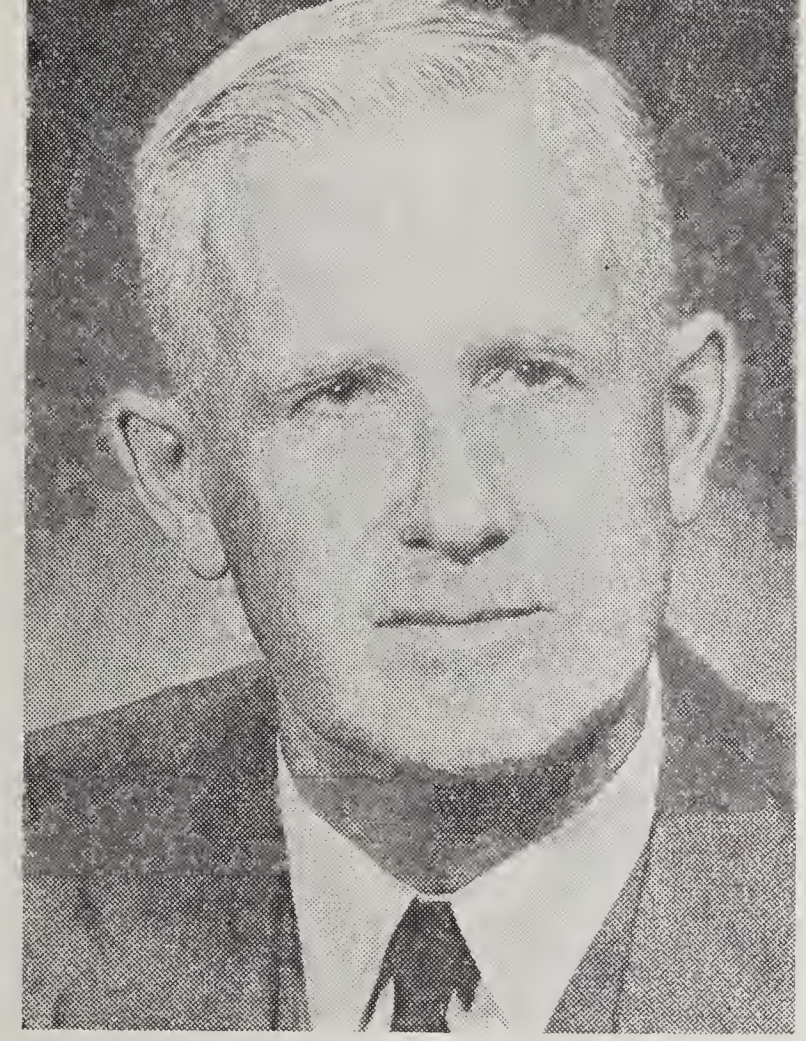

The only living graduate with an LL.B. degree from Queen's, Dr. William B. Munro, M.A., '96, LL.B. '96, LL.D. '12, has written to the Review in explanation of how the University continued to grant degrees in law for many years after the Faculty of Law was closed in 1883. Dr. Munro states that in 1896, the year he received his degree, the course was open to honour students in political science. Members of the local bar in Kingston made out a list of legal treatises to be studied and set the final examination papers and rated them.

One of the most distinguished educators in the United States, and long recognized as an authority on government, history, economics and banking, Dr. Munro is now retired and living in Pasadena, California.

School of English Had Record Enrolment

With 120 students registered, mostly from Quebec province, the School of English in Queen's Summer School has the largest enrolment this year in its fifteen-year history. Purpose of the school is to help the students improve their English conversation and idiom. In the group are teachers, who comprise the largest section, nurses, office workers, students, and about a dozen members of religious orders.

1957 REUNION

● Where, oh where has the summer gone? Here it is August again and Fall Reunion time in the offing.

The official Reunion weekend is that of October 25-27, but several of the classes, notably those of Science '19, '22, and '56, have elected to hold their reunions on the weekend of October 5. Classes officially scheduled to hold a reunion this year are those of '07, '17, '18, '19, '20, '32, '36, '37, '38, '39, '55, '56, and '57.

Many of the classes have their plans well under way. Where possible the Alumni Office has been working through the permanent class executives, and in cases where no such executives exist or are unwilling to act an invitation has been sent from the University or from interested members of the classes concerned.

A special invitation has been sent to the members of the classes of '07 who will be marking their fiftieth anniversary. These members will be guests of honour at the Reunion Dinner at the Students Memorial Union on October 26, and will be presented with mementos of the occasion. The Reunion program includes a University Reception in Grant Hall on Friday evening, the Queen's-McGill football game on Saturday afternoon, followed by a Principal's Tea in Ban Righ Hall, the General Reunion Dinner in the Union Saturday evening, and the Football dances in Grant Hall and the Gymnasium. On Sunday there will be a University Church Service in Grant Hall. Class meetings will be held as arranged.

There will be no such formal program for the Classes of Science '19, '22, and '56, who are meeting on the weekend of the Varsity game on October 5 but these classes are quite capable of arranging a program of their own. In the case of Science '19, John Buss and Norm Tisdale have been writing letters since last April and now expect an attendance of twenty-one out of a possible forty-one. They have arranged for a dinner at the British American Hotel on October 5. Jeff Comer has been the party whip for Science '22 and has special plans to mark the thirty-fifth anniversary. Gord Ringrose is looking after the arrangements for Science '56.

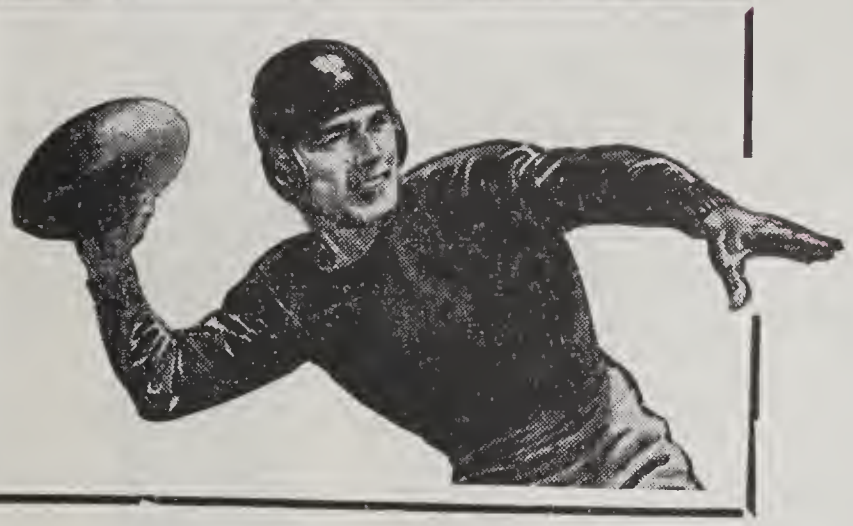

With the appointment of Miss Anne Corrigan as Reunion Secretary the Alumni Association is giving recognition to the increasing importance of the reunion program. With the aid of the Program Committee of the Association, headed by J. Alex Edmison, Miss Corrigan is putting a great deal of thought and effort into making reunions more attractive. As one who has been actively associated with the Alumni Office for many years no one is better qualified to look after the best interests of the alumni.

Graduates who have not been back to the campus since their last class reunion will note many changes during the past five years. The men's residence, McNeill House, is the first of what ultimately is expected to be five units and a start has been made on the second unit. A new physiology building is under construction, and so are a medical building on the hospital grounds and a new civil engineering building next to the administration building. The latter is itself a new addition and so is the Tech Supplies building, Clark Hall, and the new women's residence, Adelaide Hall.

Graduates who have not heard from their class organizers or who want any information about the Reunion are invited to write to the Alumni Office.

ATHLETICS

● When the Queen's senior football team takes the field this fall it will be led by co-captains for the first time in Tricolour history—Dave Wilson, guard, ineligible last year, and Karl Quinn, fullback, son of Dr. Karl Quinn, star of another era.

The Gaels, Intercollegiate champions for the past two years, face a formidable task in striving to stay at the top of the heap. Lost through graduation are Al Kocman, all-star halfback, Jim Hughes, all-star tackle, who will play with Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Big Four, Russ Thoman, tackle, who has signed with Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Western Conference, Pete Howe, halfback, Rusty Radchuck, tackle, and all-star Ron Stewart, one of the greatest players ever to represent Queen's.

Retired from further competition are Gary Lewis, all-star centre and captain for three years, and Jay McMahan, end. Lewis, son of Art "Curly" Lewis, who starred for Queen's in the twenties, recently became the proud father of a boy —look for the name of Chris Lewis in the Gaels' roster twenty years hence. McMahan, an experienced outside wing, has joined the ranks of the benedicts and like Lewis, in fifth-year Medicine, has decided to concentrate on his studies. Lost through the shuffle of examinations are quarterback Johnny Moschelle, Henry Clarke, half, and Mike Tureski, guard.

There is a chance that Ron Stewart, who holds the record for touchdowns by a Queen's player, with thirty, and who is second only to "Pep" Leadlay on the all-time Queen's scoring list, may not be lost. Under the existing pro football regulations he is the property of the Montreal Alouettes and since he has turned down an offer to play with them he may not be allowed to play for any of the pro teams. He is said to be interested in the new Queen's law school.

Head Coach Frank Tindall will have a difficult time finding adequate replacements. Some of the better prospects from last year's intermediates failed to pass their examinations, but Jerry Steinberg, guard, and Ernie Hambrook, centre, will be coming up. Don MacNay, halfback, and Ron Delisle, centre, ineligible last year, are also expected to bolster the team.

TO THE WOMEN GRADUATES

Residence Accommodation.—Ban Righ Hall, in which all Queen's women take so much pride, is yearly becoming less adequate for solving our housing problem. The relief provided by Adelaide Hall and the Annexes has now reached its limit. Sixty girls in the upper years who applied this year for admission had to be refused, and a record number of applications has been received from newcomers. The proportion of freshettes to all other years in residence is now two to one. As we hear so often, numbers will go up for more, and in a few years our first-year girls will require all the residence accommodation. Suitable rooms outside are very scarce. Quite a problem, is it not?

Among the needs of Queen's listed in the current campaign for funds is naturally more residences for women. This is a call to all of us once more to undertake the big task of helping to raise the necessary funds, making sure that the building is ready as soon as possible, taking some financial responsibility as individuals and as an Association and working on committees for the planning and furnishing of the houses. This will be one of the subjects for discussion at our October meeting.

Marty Memorial Scholarship. — Are you interested in this scholarship and the incentive it gives to our able students to undertake graduate study? Come in October to hear the report of the committee appointed by our association to award this scholarship.

Historical Record. — Another important matter for decision relates to plans for a history or record of important events in our past. Your ideas and suggestions are needed.

The stated purposes of our association are to serve as a bond of union among women graduates and to further the interests of the university and women undergraduates. We have been working towards these aims. To hold firm the bond among Queen's women we need more branches of the Alumnae Association wherever there are groups of our graduates. In our undergraduate days we needed the Levana society as well as the Alma Mater society. So now as graduates it is desirable to organize in such a way that the women's groups may meet possibly only twice a year to plan for those projects which are of special interest to them, while all Queen's men and women are included in a branch which deals with those subjects of interest to all of us. Our newly-formed Constitution Committee will be ready soon to assist groups who wish to form branches, but there is no need to wait — gather your group together, elect at least a secretary, and enjoy yourselves. Then make sure that at least one of you is at the October meeting.

FORTY YEARS ONWARD — ARTS '17

As all members of our permanent executive could not be reached in time for this issue of the Review, the undersigned survivors address this message to other reliques.

The fortieth — yes, no misprint there — anniversary of our graduation will be observed as part of the University reunions, the week end of October 25th to 27th. (You may make it as long as you like as long as you make it lost!)

So, first we suggest that as many as possible, together with such appendages or encumbrances as may have accrued to each in the years between, should foregather by Andrew Carnegie's bust in Grant Hall at the Principal's Reception on Friday evening. If the bust is no longer there, the second pillar to the left of the main entrance used to be a convenient rendezvous.

If you want tickets for the rugby game, write and ask for them in the '17 block.

After the game there will be the traditional respectable tea at Ban Righ Hall. The undersigned, however, will be hostess for the very special Spirits of '17 at this hour at the home of Mrs. D. M. Chown, 37 King Street, West. Come straight from the game, prepared to remain as long as time will allow, depending only on how long it takes you to change for the reunion dinner. Dressing rooms will not be provided.

Please write any one of us at the earliest date possible, to say you'll be here and will come to our party.

Charlotte Whitton, 236C Rideau Terrace, Ottawa, Ont.

Eva Coon, 56 Maitland Street, Toronto, Ontario.

Mary Macphail Chown, 37 King Street, West, Kingston.

THE LIFE, THE QUESTION, AND THE ANSWER

Fifteen Questions about the Life of Jesus

By Arthur James Ebbutt. There is a Life which confronts every man. And when it does, it poses a Question, the facing and answering of which will not be denied. This Life is, of course, the Life of Jesus, the one and only incomparable Life lived upon this planet. $2.50 cloth, $1.50 paper.

THIS I LEARNED

By Eldred A. Chester, B.A., B.D., author of What Are We Waiting For? A minister looks back, after forty full years, to the communities where he served, to people of all sorts whom he met, and to those experiences that helped most. This is an inspiring book, a very human book. It will appeal to young and old, minister and layman. Probable price $1.50.

BLOMIDON ROSE

By Esther Clark Wright. The story of the Blomidon countryside, Nova Scotia, its people, history and way of life. A delightful account of a community and its relationships with the world beyond. $4.00.

OFF WATCH

By Anna Young. Experiences on the Great Lakes. "The authentic voice of Ontario afloat, old Ontario, western Ontario, hard-working, God-serving Ontario."—C. H. J. Snider. Illustrated. $4.00.

Dr. James W. Charters Elected President at Hamilton

Dr. James W. Charters, Med. '52, was elected president of the Hamilton branch for the ensuing year at the annual dinner dance held at Robert's Restaurant, Hamilton, on June 12. Dr. Charters succeeded J. C. Hickmore, Sc. '48.

Also elected were: vice-president, G. R. MacCougan, Com. '50; secretary, R. R. Spence, Sc. '49; treasurer, W. A. Darby, Com. '49; Arts representatives, H. D. Pringle, Arts '48, A. N. Jenkins, Arts '49; Science representatives, N. D. Simmons, Sc. '49, S. E. Pearce, Sc. '48; Medical representatives, Dr. V. L. Politi, Med. '50, Dr. J. A. Roberts, Med. '54. The report of the nominating committee was brought in by A. N. Moore, Com. '50.

Presentation of an engraved desk clock was made to C. H. Drew, Com '25, in recognition of his outstanding services as chairman of the Alumni Fund for several years. Last year the Hamilton branch led all districts in percentage of alumni contributing to the Alumni Fund and also in percentage contributing to all Queen's funds. The presentation was made by Mr. Hickmore and was accepted by Mrs. Drew, in the absence of her husband.

A toast to the University was proposed by Mr. Hickmore. Response was made by Dr. Charters. The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was shown and was greatly enjoyed. A presentation of a silver mug was made to the retiring president, Mr. Hickmore, by Dr. Charters. The programme concluded with dancing.

Niagara Peninsula Branch Holds Dinner-Dance

A delightful dinner-dance was held by the Niagara Peninsula branch at the Rose Villa Inn, Welland, on May 24. The guests were received by the president, L. F. Barnhardt, Sc. '47, and Mrs. Barnhardt. About eighty people from Welland, Niagara Falls, St. Catharines, Fort Erie, and Port Colborne enjoyed a delicious dinner, with an interlude of college songs, followed by bridge and dancing to Stu Hunter's orchestra. The head table was decorated with carnations in the Queen's colours.

Students and Parents Attend Parry Sound Alumni Meeting

Students now in attendance and potential students at Queen's and their parents were guests at the annual dinner meeting of the Parry Sound branch on May 24. Alan Hamilton, Com. '59, gave a highly informative address on the activities on the campus during the past academic year.

Judge Walter Little, Arts '28, gave an interesting account of the proceedings of the University Council, of which he is a member. Particular reference was made to the establishment of the new Faculty of Law and the construction of new buildings at Queen's.

The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was shown and was given an enthusiastic reception.

FOR GREATER COMFORT AND CONVENIENCE

plan to LIVE BETTER . . . ELECTRICALLY

Work to a plan and sooner than you think every room in your home will become more livable, more enjoyable. Your rooms gain new charm through the planned use of good lighting. Television, radios and record players add greatly to leisure moments. The kitchen and laundry become bright happy rooms where modern appliances save countless hours of time and toil.

The air in your home can be made more enjoyable with the healthful comfort of modern air conditioning. The automatic furnace abolishes stoking chores . . . gives Dad more time for his workshop power tools . . . leaves Mother more space for her automatic laundry equipment.

With a remote-control wiring system, a master switch, in any location you desire, can turn lights and appliances on or off.

A properly wired home is your assurance of greater safety, economy, and comfort. Before you buy or build, make sure the electrical system in your home will serve your needs now and in future. Have an electrical contractor check your present home. He can remedy any inadequacies and arrange convenient payment terms.

What about the cost of living electrically? For new homes, adequate wiring, planned lighting, automatic heating and air conditioning, can be covered by the mortgage. And your dealer offers all electrical appliances on convenient budget terms.

Plan now to give your family all the advantages and comforts of living better, electrically . . . with new, modern General Electric products.

"Mr. Sam and His Lady"

In Maclean's Magazine Colonel R. S. McLaughlin, affectionately and respectfully known to thousands as "Mr. Sam," referring to the fact that one of his race-horses won a gold teacup, which, by additional presentations, had been enlarged into a gold tea service, wrote these words:

> The things I cherish are harder-wearing than gold: the solid worth of lifelong friendships with men of good faith; the worth of a lifetime spent working at a job that drew the best from me and the men I worked beside—an association with a great industry and a great enterprise; a long life of good health, and sport in the outdoors. Above all these, I treasure the love of my wife and the affection of my family. Those are the things of real worth in my life. I own a gold teacup, but I don't drink out of it.

It is the custom in many ancient universities on that day in each year, when their pious founders are recalled in immortal memory, for some worthy to read in public that great chapter in Ecclesiasticus, which begins with these words – "Let us now praise famous men." For the most gracious communities of learning (of which Queen's University is one), have long memories, especially where there is a debt to repay. Amongst our own founders, ancient and modern, no names will be more sincerely and more often held in honour than those of Mr. Sam and his lady, who have shared together gladness and sorrow, struggles and triumphs, interests and generosities, side by side for over sixty years. They will be forever praised amongst the latter day founders and great-hearted benefactors of this University, which is the kindly mother of us all. It is, therefore, fitting that the students of Queen's, in this publication which records the unforgettable and happy youth of so many of them, should make a dedication to a man and woman of Canada, who, throughout the relentless and swiftly moving years of their long lives, determined to keep their hearts and their minds young, and have found joy and benediction in good works. Colonel R. S. McLaughlin is four years younger than Confederation and his wife is a few years younger than that. They have both been almost, as it were, contemporaries of this land of Canada since its far beginning and are still happily our own contemporaries. Throughout their lives they have been one and undivided and each the complement of the other. They are both honorary graduates of this University, and those who have heard them speak will not forget the eloquent simplicity, the clarity, and the vigour of the words they utter. Mrs. McLaughlin before her marriage was a school teacher, and, no doubt, her own continuing interest in education has helped to direct many of their joint benefactions to that noble cause. This University owes to them McLaughlin Hall, Adelaide Hall, the Students' Union, the John Buchan Library and many other contributions, known and unknown, from thoughtful and generous foundations and trusts. The story of Mr. Sam's career is a part of the history of Canada. He has carried with him into these surging days the romance of our early frontier, the austerity, and the hard work of the pioneers who built this country, the deep unspoken certainties of a Christian home, and always the resilience and optimism of adventurous youth. Mrs. McLaughlin has been the perfect Wendy to her husband's irrepressible Peter Pan.

When first he began to earn his living, he toiled in his father's workshop, where perfect things perfectly made by skilled hands brought honour to master and man and to the community which sheltered them. When the world moved into what is called the "automobile age," Colonel McLaughlin and his brothers, with their fine ancestral tradition in the making of the best wagons in the world, with vigour and imagination started to build the new revolutionary machines. The rest of that story is a memorable chapter in the industrial history of our country.

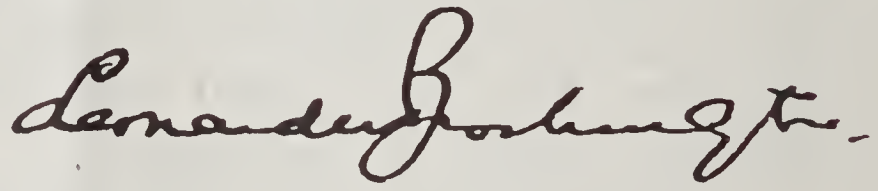

Most of us if we were asked to choose the man and woman who in their lives and characters typified those qualities which we are proud (and I think humble) to claim as Canadian virtues, would name the subjects of this little article.

A few months ago, the writer of these words was present at the 85th anniversary of Mr. Sam's birthday. The guest of honour spoke better than anyone else and long after midnight was still the "life of the party." It was remarked that he was the only man of eighty-five with a voice like a Sergeant-Major and an arm like a blacksmith.

But, we who are the beneficiaries of their generosity, honour Mr. Sam and his lady not because they are rich, not because they are old and yet young, but because they have been in very truth

Written by the Rector, Dr. L. W. Brockington, this article originally appeared in the Tricolor, students' yearbook, as a tribute to the McLaughlins, to whom the book was dedicated. Because it said so many things that needed to be said and said them in the style for which the Rector is noted the editors of the Review felt it deserved a wider audience and was fortunate in securing the permission of the author and the Tricolor editor to reprint it.

good citizens of a good land. In a generous country they have been generous people. They have not only been great givers but they have given graciously, willingly and wisely. Their numerous charities, which would take a long time to record, have been imaginative in their concept and fruitful in their application. Their home is a shrine of domestic happiness, of shining eyes, of strong handiclasps of welcome, of thoughtful courtesy and abounding hospitality. In a democratic land, Colonel McLaughlin has remained a man of the people, simple, forthright, vital and honourable. He has been unspoiled by success and has never lost what is called the common touch. Amongst his joys must be the knowledge that in his honest and straightforward simplicity he is as much at home in the companionship of the lowly as he is the presence of the great and that the thousands who have looked up to him as their employer have respected and revered him as a fellow worker and as a fellow man. All these fine qualities are shared in equal measure by his devoted lady. They have both been good neighbours in a country of good neighbourhood and every student who comes to this place will find his life in this University richer and happier because Colonel and Mrs. McLaughlin are in very truth faithful friends of Queen's.

Two New Directors Elected To Alumni Board

In the annual election of directors of the Alumni Association, which was conducted by letter ballot and ended on September 30, the following were elected to the Board for a three-year term: Miss Bessie Billings, Toronto, Ont.; H. I. Marshall, Ottawa, Ont.; H. B. Megill, Hazel Crest, Illinois; W. E. Soles, Quebec, P.Q.; Dr. Wallace Troup, Ottawa, Ont.

Mr. Megill and Mr. Soles are newcomers to the Board. Mr. Megill is executive vice-president and general manager of Chromium Mining and Smelting Corporation, and Mr. Soles is vice-president and general manager of Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper.

Participated in Programme Of Congress of Accountants

Of three Canadians who participated in the programme of the Seventh International Congress of Accountants, held at Amsterdam during September, two were from Queen's: L. G. Macpherson, professor of Commerce, and W. L. McDonald, Arts '24, Com. '25, of Price, Waterhouse and Company, Toronto, Ontario, and a member of the Advisory Council for Commerce at Queen's. Professor Macpherson contributed a paper and participated in a panel discussion on the subject and Mr. McDonald was also a panellist.

Registration 1957

There are 2626 students registered at Queen's this year, as compared to 2524 in 1956-57.

Oliver Master

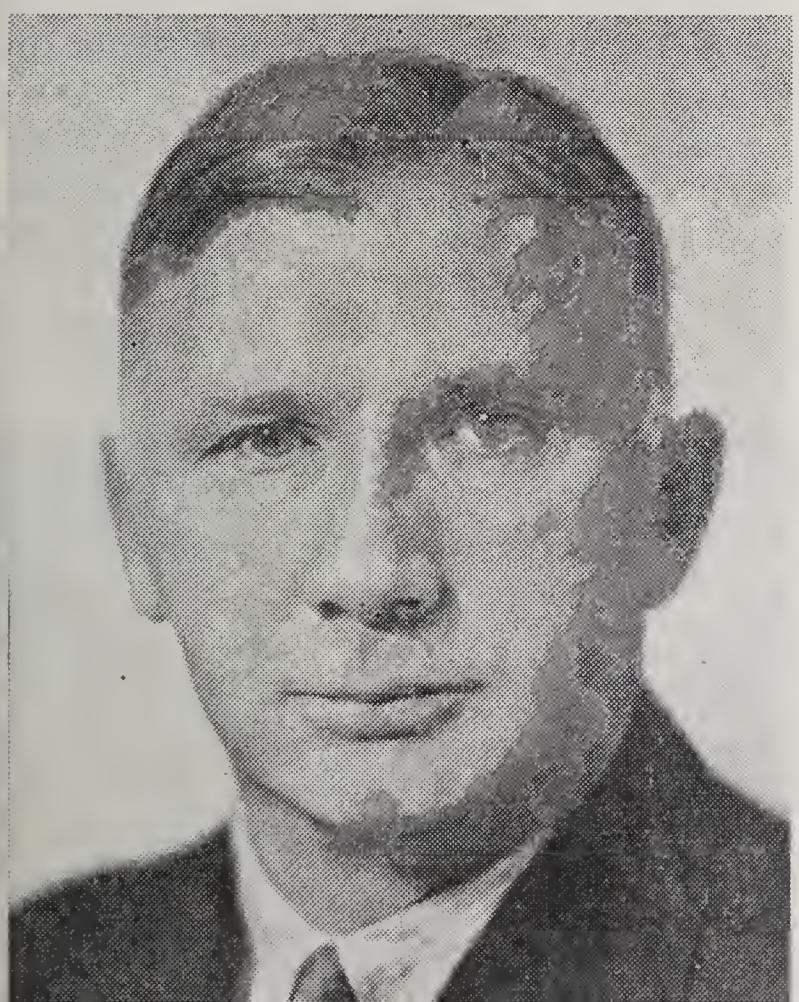

A Great Canadian Civil Servant

by J. W. Eggleston

● Oliver Master (M.A. Queen's '14) recently retired from the post of Assistant Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce after a distinguished career as public servant. At the time of his retirement, his Minister, the Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, described him as "a fine public servant and a tower of strength to the department." Mr. Howe added: "He leaves the service knowing that he performed his duties over a long period of years and for a time as head of the department (1942-45) with devotion and great distinction."

Oliver Master is a native of Grand Valley, Ontario. Following his graduation he joined the Civil Service as assistant secretary to the Royal Commission on Conservation. After service in the First World War (38th Battalion, C.E.F.) he became, in 1921, Economic Adviser to the Department of the Interior. He went to the Department of Trade of Commerce as Chief of the Economics Division of the Commercial Intelligence Service. He moved up to Assistant Deputy Minister in 1940 and held that post until his retirement, serving as Acting Deputy Minister 1942-45. Between 1928 and 1935 he served as the Secretary of three successive Royal Commissions on the transfer of natural resources from the Dominion to the provinces.

OLIVER MASTER

A long-time colleague in the department wrote of him at his retirement in these terms: "Oliver Master is one of those sound and competent people who came into the civil service from Queen's University as former students of the great Dr. O. D. Skelton, and they have made their mark in every branch of the civil service. He may rightly be described as a great Canadian civil servant, and there are hundreds of people in Canada and all over the world who remember their association with him and who will want to continue to keep in touch with him."

Oliver Master is married to the former Sarah Powell Hutton and has a daughter Laura, Arts '45, who was married last year to John David Keenan and lives now in New York. Mr. Master is a charter member of the Canadian Geographical Society, former chairman of the editorial board, and contributor of articles on commercial subjects. His interests include the study of history, gardening, curling and golf.

One Hundred Years of Student Government

by H. J. Hamilton

Student government at Queen's is entering upon its hundredth year this session.

The minutes of the University Senate for January 12, 1858, read: . . . . "The Secretary then read a Memorial signed by several of the students craving the countenance and support of the Senatus in favour of a Society about to be formed by them in connection with Queen's College, the objects of which Society are — maintenance and defence of the Students' rights, the interchange of friendly intercourse, the promotion and encouragement of learning, and the furtherance of the general interests of the University. The Senatus expressed their willingness to assist the students by every means in their power in carrying the same into effect. The Secretary was instructed to communicate notice of the above to the Students." The Board of Trustees also approved of the Society, and granted the use of a room for its meetings.

The original Constitution and by-laws of the Society listed the aims and objectives as follows:

1. To preserve the attachment of the alumni to the University, and their interest in it after immediate connection has ceased.
2. To serve as a bond of union between the students and the ex-students of the various faculties.
3. To cultivate a literary and scientific taste among the students.
4. To promote the general interest of the University.
5. To serve as medium of communication between the students and the governing bodies of the University.

It will be seen that the ambitious new organization was designed to function as a combination alumni association and student government. The desire to serve as a link between students and alumni was soon forgotten, however. The guarantee for this, as provided in the Constitution, was eliminated as soon as the organizers ceased to be active in the Society. Gradually it became a students' society in fact, although the provision that the President must be a graduate continued in effect for more than half the history of the organization, and the Journal for many years carried, as a regular feature, news of the graduates.

In one hundred years, the Constitution has grown from a few pages to more than sixty. The last four of the original five objectives are still listed. The Constitution now covers a wide range of student activities and behaviour, as the original document was expanded to meet changing conditions, but succeeding generations of students display ingenuity in discovering loopholes. One University official has said: "I have nothing but admiration for the genius of undergraduates in finding ways and means to circumvent regulations."

The main line of defence for the Constitution is the A.M.S. Court. The constitution itself provides:

> The Supreme Court of the Alma Mater Society shall be the supreme tribunal of the student body, and its decisions cannot be over-ruled by the A.M.S. executive. This court shall be responsible for the punishment of offences by students of the University except those involving academic standing. These offences shall include all violations of the regulations, resolutions, orders and all governing laws of the Alma Mater Society, whether committed by a member or members of the A.M.S. or by any organization, subject to the jurisdiction of the A.M.S.

Once known as the Concursus Iniquitatis et Virtutis, the court is reported to have had its birthplace in a vacant lot behind a brewery, where the students were wont to assemble on fine afternoons. A judge would be selected, a student haled before him on trumped-up charges, fined, and from the proceeds refreshments would be purchased for the court—a happy arrangement which could be readily repeated as often as need be.

From this humble beginning evolved eventually a Court which exercised control over student behaviour and which was of value not only to the student government, but to the University as well. Principal Grant was lukewarm towards the institution and once or twice suspended it for brief intervals, but later recognized its potentialities and give it his support. Successive administrations have depended on the court to preserve law and order and while not always in agreement with the decisions handed down have almost invariably supported it.

Two factors contribute to the success of the A.M.S. Court. One is the backing of the University administration without which the Court would not be able to make many of its decisions stand up. Second is the fact that the Court is a serious organization and does not take its duties lightly. The students are careful to select the most promising of their numbers to serve as judiciary and, give them their support.

Court proceedings are informal, but dignified. It is a court of common sense. The judges and officers of the court seldom have had any legal training or knowledge and little time is wasted in legal procedure. The Constitution says: "The A.M.S. Court is an undergraduate court and essentially a court of justice. It cannot observe technicalities of law, British or otherwise." With such liberal terms of reference, the bench can sweep aside any attempt to confuse the issue with legal folderol and, surprisingly enough, usually arrives at a reasonable solution of the problems on which it sits in judgment.

The administration permits the Court to have wide powers. In most cases the University interests overlap those of the students. There are few areas of student interest and activity that do not impinge at some point on some college responsibility or some faculty rule. For example, a few years ago a group of male students invaded the women's residences. The administration could have regarded this incident as their concern because University property was involved, but preferred to turn the matter over to the student court. This is the prevailing attitude.

As an aid to maintenance of law and order on the campus, the A.M.S. appoints a chief of police and provides him with a squad of constables. But the biggest weapon is public opinion. Student behaviour swings like a pendulum from one extreme to another and just when affairs appear to be getting completely out of hand, such as vandalism and hooliganism on a football train, the tide of campus opinion turns in support of the student legislators toiling to bring order out of chaos.

Mark Gayn, writing in the Toronto Star Weekly, said:

> When its "cops" fail, the A.M.S. can get very rough indeed. It may give the miscreant a tongue-lashing he will not easily forget; it may fine him; or it may even recommend his expulsion to the principal. When a few students imbibed too well at a football game a couple of years ago, and became rowdy, the A.M.S. promptly banned liquor from the football stadium and, what is more important, made its ruling stick. (More or less that is, for one genius at the medical school quickly found an antidote to the ban: He proposed to inject vodka into an orange with a hypodermic.) And, of course, when all else fails, there are the student courts, which may meet in the gym or the large red-pillared Grant Hall. At such sessions, the black-robed "justices" are prepared to make mincemeat of the mischief-makers.

The most spectacular incident in the history of the A.M.S. Court occurred twenty-three years ago in connection with the ban of fraternities. Opposition to "frats" was not new, fraternal organizations had never been welcome on the campus, but there was always an element in favour. D. D. Calvin in Queen's University at Kingston wrote: "Fraternities were only beginning to be a subject of debate; though there seems to have been a secret Chapter of one of them, at Queen's, in 1906." Fraternities on the campus did not become a problem, however, until the 1930's, when two groups were formed. Campus opinion was sharply split, the pro-fraternity group being a small but determined minority. A spirited warfare culminated with a session of the A.M.S. Court—M.A. Leishman was the chief justice — on October 16, 1934, when twenty-four men were found guilty and all were forbidden to participate in student political, athletic, and social activities for not less than one academic year. Included in the ouster were four members of the senior football team—in the middle of a campaign for the first Intercollegiate championship in four years – but the Court did not relent and the team finished out the season without them. Incidentally, the "Fearless Fourteen" as the team became popularly known (Coach Ted Reeve had not brought up replacements) won the championship anyway. But the important fact was that student government had taken a strong stand, handed down a tough decision and had made it stick. Later the University Senate buttressed the ban on fraternities for all time by incorporating in the admission regulations a rule forbidding students to form or become members of any externally affiliated fraternity in Kingston.

Never was student government in higher favour. The alumni were quick to make known their commendation. Letters poured in to the University, all in praise of the A.M.S. The Review reported Vice-Principal W. E. McNeill as saying: "We have had from coast to coast the most favourable publicity that we have had in my day at Queen's – and that goes back twenty-five years." J. M. Macdonnell, chairman of the Board of Trustees, said: "The recent dramatic assertion of the vitality of student self-government at Queen's has made a notable impression upon the public mind . . . . We old-timers feel that this recent action of the Alma Mater Society is in the very best tradition of Queen's University, whose 'peculiar grace and testimonial' (to use the words of John McNaughton) is that vehement, almost fanatical, loyalty with which she has always been able to imbue those who have come under her influence."

While the business of the Court is apt to be of a spectacular or colourful nature, the day-to-day business of the Alma Mater Society tends to be routine, which is the probable reason why the meetings are attended usually only by members of the executive. In the early years of the organization, there was little business to transact and the Society functioned more as a debating club in which all the students more or less participated. Later the various classes took turns on putting on entertainment. Nevertheless attendance was rarely satisfactory judging from the complaints registered at frequent intervals in the Journal. Sometimes the Society was hard pressed to find a quorum and the name of John Baker, the janitor, may be found registered among those present at some of the meetings.

With the growth of the importance of athletics at Queen's this item became the main business of the Society. Eventually it became too big for the Society to handle comfortably and in 1920 the Athletic Board of Control, consisting of members of staff and representatives of the students and alumni, was formed as a sub-committee of the Society. The Board operates with a free hand, although nominally under the control of the A.M.S.

Over the years the Society has concerned itself mainly with such matters as finances, publication of the Journal, freshmen regulations, social functions, lectures, health insurance, and various publications such as a year-book, directory, freshmen's handbook, and the like. A major achievement was the transform-ance of the band from a rag-tag and bobtailed outfit into a pipe band and a brass band resplendent in the Royal Stewart tartan and a delight to the eye. Once policy has been established the business of administration becomes routine and there is little to attract the student to the business sessions. For many years the transactions have been left to an executive consisting of the presidents of the faculty societies of Arts, Science, Medicine, and Levana, an elected representative from Theology, and a Senior and Junior representative from each of the faculty societies of Arts, Science, Medicine, and Levana. In addition, the A.M.S. Athletic Stick and the Editor of the Journal sit as non-voting members.

The students at large are welcome to attend all meetings of the executive, but few avail themselves of the opportunity and then only to obtain some favour, usually financial. There have been exceptions. Whenever the students feel that their rights and privileges are endangered in any way, they are quick to run to the defence of the constitution. A few years ago some extensive changes were proposed and a special meeting of the Alma Mater Society was held in Grant Hall with upwards of a thousand in attendance. The proceedings were lively and entertaining, the oratory was sustained and at times scintillating, and in the end the reactionaries emerged triumphant.

In between such rare skirmishes, the Alma Mater Society functions so quietly that the student body takes it mostly for granted, and then critics arise to accuse student government of being dead. The A.M.S. has been publicly buried on more than one occasion, but the executive continues to do its work as efficiently as the conditions permit. Usually the charges arise because some of the students feel that the administration should have been challenged on some point or other. It is easy to lose sight of the fact that the authority by which the Alma Mater Society operates is delegated and not sovereign power. Every now and then a new member of the executive, urged on, no doubt, by brave supporters in the obscurity of the background, wants to flex the executive muscles and urges mortal combat with the administration as a test of strength. The outcome of such an uneven struggle is a foregone conclusion, but fortunately the battle is seldom joined.

It is significant that the student body, while only intermittently concerned with the operations of the A.M.S., nevertheless exercises great care in the selection of their representatives on the executive. They never knowingly choose a buffoon to serve their interests and the result is that the best men and women available are elected to office. Then, mission accomplished, the students are content to sit back and wash their hands of the whole affair.

With the growth of the student body and the increase of routine business, the executive in 1930 appointed a permanent secretary-treasurer to provide some measure of continuity to its proceedings. As provided in the constitution, this person who must be a member of staff but who does not have a vote, keeps accounts for the A.M.S., Journal, Tricolor, and the bands, keeps minutes of the executive meetings, and in general performs the thousand-and-one detailed duties connected with the student enterprises. The Alma Mater Society now has an office in the Students' Union and employs a clerk-stenographer as an assistant to the Permanent Secretary-Treasurer.

When women were admitted as students in 1878 the male students did not quite know how to react and there was considerable hostility and opposition at first. It was decided that the women could pay fees in the A.M.S. and vote, but not to take part in the affairs of the Society. This attitude was not long in changing, and eventually the women students were elected to offices on the executive. It was not until 1941, however, that the first woman, Miss Dorothy Wardle, was elected as president. Since then there have been two others, Miss Rosemary Bartlett, in 1951, and Miss Gail Ward, now Mrs. Ian Stewart, in 1954.

For eighty-four years the medium of expression for student government has been the Journal, and never in that period has there been a single representative of the University administration on the staff, although there has been many an occasion when the administration must have wished that the free-wheeling critics on the Journal could be throttled or hushed up. The editors have been free to formulate their own policy and sometimes they have shown a tendency to forget that their paper circulates off the campus and what might be said in the intimacy of the family circle may have repercussions if repeated outside.

Although the student body is frequently critical of the Journal — the Aesculapian and Engineering societies have some merit in their complaint that their activities are not adequately covered — they are fiercely determined that the freedom of the press, or their interpretation of it, not be hobbled in any way. This was vividly illustrated a few years ago at an annual meeting of the Alma Mater Society when a constitutional amendment providing for considerable control over the editorial policy of the Journal was introduced and was promptly thrown out.

In its infancy the Journal was a magazine and appeared fortnightly. The prospectus stated that its objects were to foster a literary taste among the students and to serve as a bond of union between the University and her alumni. Over the years these objectives have disappeared and now the Journal is more in the newspaper tradition and appears twice weekly. Until recent years the Journal staff rarely had any professional newspaper training, but on the whole performed their duties capably and with a considerable sense of responsibility. In 1956, the paper won the Southam Trophy "for excellence among the papers of the Canadian University Press," under the editorship of Miss Frances Code who had had considerable experience in newspaper work.

The office of Rector gives the students representation on the University Board of Trustees. The position was created in 1912, and a succession of prominent men have been appointed by the students. Then Leonard W. Brockington, noted lawyer, raconteur and orator, in the spring of 1947 came to Queen's to deliver an Alma Mater Society Lecture. It was love at first sight. Mr. Brockington obviously liked young people, and the students liked him. That fall he was the unanimous choice of the A.M.S. executive for the post of Rector and has served in that position ever since. Now Mr. Brockington is in his fourth three-year term.

That little band of ex-students and undergraduates who conceived the idea of student government and the Senate that gave the institution their blessing one hundred years ago builded better than they knew. Student government, Queen's style, has been a successful venture. There are many imperfections, at times the machinery has broken down or creaked in alarming fashion, but on the whole the Alma Mater Society has performed its duties and has achieved its aims and purposes in creditable fashion. The determination to maintain independence that has always characterized the University is reflected in the student government and has contributed in no small measure to that elusive and intangible but none the less indestructible thing known as the Queen's spirit. Now on the threshold of its second century the Alma Mater Society has reason to face the future with confidence, secure in the knowledge that it has the experience and the ability and the authority to cope with almost any given situation that may develop.

Mrs. Margaret Angus Appointed As CFRC Programme Director

In order that more careful thought and better organized administration be given to the programmes of the University Radio Station CFRC, a committee has been formed with Mrs. Margaret Angus as programme director. Appointed to serve with Mrs. Angus are: Arts — Dr. A. R. M. Lower, Prof. John Meisel; Science—Dr. H. M. Love, Prof. H. H. Stewart; Medicine—Dr. G. Malcolm Brown, Dr. D. L. Wilson; Theology — Rev. D. M. Mathers; students — Ralfe Clench, David McNaughton; ex-officio— Principal W. A. Mackintosh, Vice-Principal J. A. Corry, M. C. Tillotson.

The policy of the committee is to build their programme up gradually with careful regard to the amount of time which they can use well and in a manner which is worthy of the University. Quality rather than quantity is the objective.

Brockville Branch Plans Used Book Sale

The Brockville and District alumni branch is conducting a used book collection with the intention of holding a sale this winter. This project is under the direction of Miss Vivian O'Neil, Arts '40, who plans to organize a group of teams for the collection. Miss O'Neill has announced that any type of book will be acceptable to the committee.

The next meeting of the branch is planned for Wednesday, November 6th. The speaker will be Prof. W. G. Leonard, and his subject, "A Brief Analysis of the Canadian Scene."

Senior Football Team Faces Rebuilding Job

On the basis of pre-season performances the Queen's Golden Gael's are faced with a formidable task in defending their hard-won Intercollegiate championship of the past two years. Against Ontario Agricultural College, an intermediate club, the Tricolour won by 29-6, but were shut out 23-0 by McGill the following week.

In both games it was apparent that the Queen's line was light and inexperienced and would need a lot of seasoning in order to hold their own in college competition. Greatly missed were such stalwarts of the past few years as all-stars Gary Lewis and Jim Hughes and such workhorses as Rusty Radchuck and Russ Thoman. Among the veterans back are Dave Wilson, Graydon Harrison, Mitch Waskik, Stan Trzop, and Bill Halverson.

At the quarterback slot Coach Frank Tindall unveiled four new men of considerable promise, but making their first start in college ball. These men—Bob Campbell, Bob McAleese, Dave Bradley, and Dave Richards—will be heard from as they gain in experience.

The team seems to be fairly well fortified at the end positions and with halfbacks. The Queen's stock took a rise when Ron Stewart, one of the greatest players ever to wear a Queen's uniform, turned down a chance to play with the Montreal Allouettes and came back to school to enrol in the new law course. Ron will have help from such experienced players as Terry Dolan, Karl Quinn, Chuck Safrance, Ron Young, and Bob Pow. Among the ends are Paul Fedor, who promises to have his best year, and John Redfern, as well as several good prospects.

The other teams in the league appear to have strengthened considerably. Western and McGill looked powerful in pre-season play, while Toronto always fields a dangerous contender.

NOMINATIONS SOLICITED

● As provided in the by-laws of the University Council that govern the elections of the administrative bodies of Queen's, graduates and graduate-benefactors of the University are hereby notified that nominations of candidates for election to these bodies are not sent out, except to the elected members of the University Council and to the non-graduate benefactors in the case of the Trustee elections.

Nominations to the Board by Graduates

Graduates of the University (except those who are elected members of the University Council from whom nominations are solicited as stated above) may nominate two candidates for election to the Board of Trustees to succeed D. D. Findlay, B.Sc., Carleton Place, Ontario, and Wallace Troup, M.D.,C.M., Ottawa, Ontario, whose terms expire on March 31, 1958.

Mr. Findlay and Dr. Troup are eligible for re-election. No other member of the Board should be nominated, and no member of the University staff is eligible.

Nominations of Trustees by the Benefactors

Benefactors who have contributed $100 or more to the University may nominate two candidates for election to the Board of Trustees as follows:

(a) Under the Act of 1912 (General) —one trustee to serve until April 5, 1962, in succession to Hon. J. M. Macdonnell, M.C., Q.C., M.A., LL.D., M.P., Toronto, Ontario. Mr. Macdonnell is eligible for re-election.

(b) Under the Act of 1916, providing for representation of the "School of Mining" (Special Science)—one Trustee to serve until April 5, 1961, in succession to A. E. MacRae, B.Sc., LL.D., Ottawa, Ontario. Mr. MacRae is eligible for re-election.

No present member of the Board, other than Mr. Macdonnell and Mr. MacRae, should be nominated, and no member of the University staff is eligible. Candidates must be nominated by five or more electors in order to qualify. Nominations must be written, signed, and received by the Registrar of the University on or before December 31, 1957.

Nominations to the Council by Graduates

W. A. Dawson

W. A. DAWSON

In this the last issue of the Queen's Review during my term as your National President, I hasten to announce the appointment of the National Constitution and By-Laws Committee as the last of five new units added to the Administrative Department of the of Directors.

As the Association extends its horizons and assumes new responsibilities commensurate with its rapidly increasing membership roll, it becomes imperative that the Constitution and By-Laws be kept abreast of the Association's progress. This Committee of itself does not initiate any changes to the Constitution and By-Laws, unless requested or directed to do so by the proper authorities, but rather its chief function is to review petitions and direct policy at the Board level.

The Board of Directors approved the appointment of Dr. Wallace Troup, Med. '26, as the new Committee Chairman, because of his broad knowledge of the principles and tenets upon which the Association is founded. The continuous growth and influence of the Association is contingent largely upon a well founded and up-to-date version of its principles as set forth in its Constitution and By-Laws.

As I review the events of 1956 and '57, I wish to express my warm appreciation of the loyalty and untiring support rendered by the Executive Officers, the members of the Board of Directors, the members of the Administrative Committees, the members of the permanent staff, and the membership at large. With such co-operation it has been possible to introduce a number of important innovations for the betterment of the Alumni Association.

In relinquishing this honourable post it is my earnest desire that my successor be afforded the same generous co-operation as was my priviledge to enjoy.

—W. A. Dawson.

Class of Arts '96 sets up Scholarship in History

At the time of the sixtieth reunion of the Class of Arts '96 last fall arrangements were made to set up the Dr. W. B. Munro Scholarship in History. The award was named in honour of the most distinguished member of the Class, Dr. W. B. Munro, whose death occurred on September 4, 1957, and is reported on page 180 of this issue.

The Scholarship is currently valued at $100.00, and is awarded to "the most eligible of the candidates applying for admission to Honours work." This fine project was originally inspired by A. M. Robertson of Goderich, Ontario, who sent in a substantial contribution. The indefatigable permanent secretary of the Class, A. H. Brown, of Ottawa, Ontario, reports that to date nine of the thirteen members of '96 have contributed a total of $2,636.50.

The honour roll of those who have helped to set up the Scholarship are: A. M. Robertson, A. E. Attwood, R. W. Anglin, Dr. J. Y. Baker, A. H. Brown, Mrs. W. L. McFarland, Rev. Stuart Woods, Col. W. M. O. Lochead, and Miss J. H. Carswell.

Appointed Visiting Professor

Under the Skelton-Clark Memorial Foundation, Dr. L. A. Skeoch of the combines investigating branch of the Department of Justice, Ottawa, has been appointed visiting professor of economics for 1957-58. Dr. Skeoch will be engaged in research while at the University.

Because we are growing with Canada
there are better opportunities than ever
in a BANKING CAREER
with The Bank of Nova Scotia

OPPORTUNITIES for you are particularly good in The Bank of Nova Scotia because we are rapidly expanding. Canadian business and industry are growing bigger and stronger by the month, and the Bank of Nova Scotia is a front-rank partner in Canada's growth.

We are expanding, too, because every year more and more go-ahead Canadians are taking advantage of the many services a modern bank can provide. And they're taking advantage too, of those extra services that only The Bank of Nova Scotia offers. PSP, for instance — Personal Security Program — the new, surer way to save that guarantees your savings goal! Or take Instalment Savings Accounts — with the dramatic, new Thermometer Pass Book where you can actually see your savings grow! PSP and the Thermometer Pass Book are two important "Firsts" in Canadian banking service — but they're only two of the many reasons why now more people than ever before are banking with confidence at the friendly Bank of Nova Scotia . . . the Bank that is growing with Canada.

Twenty-five Members of Classes of 1907 Hold Memorable Get-together

Testimonial Dinner To Dr. D. C. Matheson Is Special Feature

From far and wide the graduates converged on the Queen's campus for the Reunion Weekend, October 25-27, and it was estimated that upwards of five hundred were on hand for the festivities.

Spearheading the invasion was a contingent of members of the Classes of '07 who turned up twenty-five strong, a remarkable record for the graduates of fifty years out. Included in this group were Dr. Robert Wightman, Med. '07, who came with his daughter from Seattle, Wash., and Dr. R. F. Nicholls, Med. '07, from Edmonton, Alberta. From the moment they arrived in Kingston, and four were on the scene twenty-four hours before the programme started, this group took in all the sights, renewed acquaintances, reminisced, and visited around the campus with an enthusiasm that was contagious.

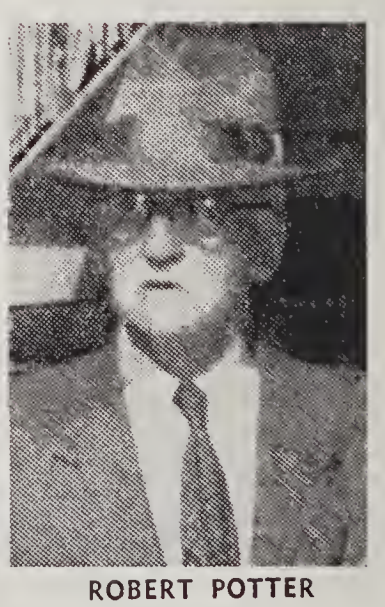

The palm for the oldest graduate went to Dr. Alexander L. Maclennan, of the Class of Arts '97, who came all the way from Pasadena, California, for the occasion. If everyone got as much fun out of the proceedings as Dr. Maclennan they got their money's worth indeed.

The '07 group had their own headquarters in the John Orr Room of the Students Union. Here they met, and rested, before setting out on their rounds. Here they had their picture taken. And here they lined up for the procession to the head table at the General Reunion Dinner on Saturday night.

In addition to those named above the following senior graduates were in attendance: S. A. Wallace, Arts '07, Windsor, Ont.; Hugh Matheson, Sc. '07, Iroquois, Ont.; Rev. J. R. Urquhart, Arts '07, Ottawa, Ont.; J. R. Akins, Sc. '07, Ottawa, Ont.; F. T. McArthur, Sc. '07, Streetsville, Ont.; K. S. Twitchell, Sc. '07, Byram, Conn.; Mrs. W. H. Penwarden (May Hiscock), Arts '07, Kingston, Ont.; Rev. Andrew Laing, Arts '07, Galt, Ont.; Dr. A. E. R. Boak, Arts '07, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Dr. R. M. Mills, Med. '07, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Mrs. H. Drinkwater (Constance Low), Arts '07, Orillia, Ont.; Rev. J. M. Macgillivray, Arts '07, Sarnia, Ont.; R. F. Downey, Arts '07, Peterborough, Ont.; Dr. F. A. Cays, Med. '07, Kingston, Ont.; Rev. W. A. Beecroft, Arts '07, Ottawa, Ont.; J. A. S. King, Sc. '07, Brantford, Ont.; Mrs. A. F. Pirie (Jean Bertram), Arts '07, Dundas, Ont.; C. W. Livingston, Arts '07, Toronto, Ont.; F. S. Lazier, Sc. Rev. G. A. Brown, Arts '07, Kingston; Mrs. G. A. Brown (Lilly Stewart), Arts '07, J. D. Calvin, Sc. '07, Kingston; and Dr. J. R. Tuck, Arts '07, Toronto.

Some of these senior graduates came with their wives or husbands, some came with relatives, some came with friends, and some made the pilgrimage on their own. For a surprising number it marked the first visit to Queen's since graduation, and their comments on the campus scene were illuminating. All marvelled at the physical changes and all were impressed with the University of today, but most of all they were affected by the fact that the Queen's spirit is still much in evidence. Rev. Mr. Laing of Sarnia made it a point to talk to individual undergraduates on a sort of personal survey and he told the Review that it was plainly evident that the students are as enthusiastic about their Alma Mater as they ever were in his day, which he inferred set a standard that was a considerable challenge. W. J. Feasby, Arts '07, who had planned on attending from the start and who had done a good deal of work in arousing interest in the event, was prevented from coming at the last minute on account of 'flu. It was a great disappointment to him as well as to his classmates. Other messages of regret were received from graduates who could not attend their class reunions. From Vancouver there was one from Robert Potter, permanent secretary of Sc. '07, who had been left off the invitation lists for the reason that his address was lacking in the alumni files for some time. His letter read in part: "Through Dan Kilburn I learned only today (October 22) of our reunion and also that I was listed among the Lost Legion . . . I hasten to assure you that I am very much alive . . . As your secretary this is just a line to suggest that you have regard for your advancing years and go easy on your celebrations."

Reunion Headquarters were set up in the Lower Common Room of the Students Union. To all intents and purposes the Union was taken over in its entirety by the returning graduates, and the students were happy to have it this way. In the Headquarters an able staff, headed by Miss Anne Corrigan, Reunion Secretary, registered the graduates, answered questions, arranged for tours, and in general served the many needs of the visitors.

On Friday afternoon the graduates were guests of the Alumni Association at an informal tea in McLaughlin Room, in the Union. Many took advantage of the opportunity to meet old friends in the pleasant surroundings. Mrs. Ian MacLachlan (Sybil Spencer) was in charge. Pouring tea were Miss Mary Anglin, Mrs. J. E. Hawley (Gladys May), Mrs. H. J. Hamilton (Norine Smith), Miss Hilda Laird, and Mrs. J. W. Brooks (Shirley Ayres).

On Friday evening the graduates and their friends were guests of the University at a Reception in Grant Hall. Several hundred turned up and were greeted by Mrs. W. A. Mackintosh, wife of the Principal, and Dr. J. A. Corry, Vice-Principal of the University (Dr. Mackintosh was in Vancouver, B.C., where he was given an honorary LL.D. degree by the University of British Columbia, but he flew back in time to participate in the programme Saturday). During the evening the guests were served refreshments by the members of the Kingston alumnae branch under the direction of Miss Diana Blake.

One of the feature attractions of the weekend was the football game on Saturday afternoon and despite the fact that Queen's lost to McGill the graduates thoroughly enjoyed it, judging from the comments. There were many present who graduated from Queen's in one of the long championship droughts of the 'teens or the 'forties and they professed to be conditioned to the spectacle of a Tricolour team going down to defeat. But several took the trouble to write back to the University after their visit was over, praising not only the arrangements in general, but the football team in particular. In any case the weather was beautiful for the game and the bands, and the enthusiastic supporters, and the colourful presentation combined to present a picture that was memorable.

After the game, two hundred attended the Principal's Tea in Ban Righ and Adelaide halls. Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Mackintosh greeted the guests at the door. Refreshments were served by the Faculty Women's Club.

In the evening there were two big dinners, as well as several individual class affairs. At the Students Union there was a dinner for the graduates at large, while at the LaSalle Hotel there was a special dinner given by the Aesculapian Society, the Faculty of Medicine, and the Medical alumni for Dr. D. C. Matheson who retired this year after forty-two years at Queen's.

J. Alex Edmison, Assistant to the Principal, who is chairman of the Alumni Association's national programme committee, was chairman of the General Reunion Dinner, appropriately enough, for it was his committee which was responsible for the many innovations. More than anything else Mr. Edmison and his committee strived to give the alumni a warm and friendly welcome on all occasions.

After the members of the Class of '07 had been piped into the head table by a co-ed of the Queen's pipe band, Miss Ann Crawford, Arts '59, Mr. Edmison kept the affairs running smoothly throughout the short but lively programme.

Dr. W. A. Mackintosh paid a visit during the Dinner and was given a warm welcome. In his remarks he welcomed the graduates to the University and spoke of the many changes that had taken place since their day and of the plans for the future. But most of all he stressed the human qualities that go to make up the picture of Queen's that every graduate carries in his mind.

Mr. Edmison presented the graduates of fifty years ago individually to the gathering, adding personal comments. These senior statesmen were then presented with a memento of the occasion by D. G. Geiger, president of the Alumni Association. The other graduates present were introduced by classes.

During the Dinner, music was provided by James Rini and his string ensemble. A spirited sing-song was led by N. G. Stewart, Arts '11, Sc. '15, accompanied at the piano by Dr. C. H. McCuaig, Med. '21.

At the LaSalle Hotel the Medical graduates and their friends paid homage to "Matty," Dr. D. C. Matheson, in a testimonial dinner. Chairman of the occasion was Dr. G. H. Ettinger, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine. Tributes to Dr. Matheson were paid by Principal Mackintosh, Dean Ettinger, Dr. G. C. Lindsay, Med. '23, Dr. R. C. Burr, Med. '32, Dr. W. J. S. Melvin, Med. '44, and Al Deep, Med. '59, president of the Aesculapian Society. Dr. Eldon Boyd, Arts '28, Med. '32, introduced Andy Wong, Med. '59, as the individual who had done more than anyone else to initiate the testimonial to Dr. Matheson. Mr. Wong, speaking on behalf of the Aesculapian Society, announced that a room in the new University-Hospital building on Stuart Street would be named the "D. C. Matheson Room," which will be used as a clubroom by Medical students of the senior years taking classes in the Hospital. A portrait of Dr. Matheson and a bronze plaque will be placed in the room.

After the dinners many of the graduates went their separate ways to private gatherings in Kingston homes. Some went to the Football Dances in the Gymnasium and Grant Hall and some to a special Reunion Dance at the LaSalle Hotel.

The Reunion programme came to a fitting close with a University Church Service in Grant Hall on Sunday morning. The service was conducted by Rev. A. M. Laverty, University Chaplain, whose sermon was based on the text "in returning and rest shall ye be saved; in quietness and confidence shall be your strength." A graduate of Arts '17, Rev. Kenneth Taylor, formerly senior chaplain of the Canadian Army overseas and now rector of St. George's, Goderich, Ontario, said the prayers. Principal Sprinkled throughout the Reunion programme and available as extra dividends to be enjoyed at one's leisure were such added attractions as a Memory Room which contained pictures and historical documents and yearbooks and other mementoes of the past. This collection was housed in the Graduates' Common Room on the third floor of the Union and attracted many visitors. The project had been set up by Ian MacLachlan, Arts '23, Sc. '25, and Mrs. MacLachlan (Sybil Spencer), Arts '26. In its first general appearance "Memory Lane" (introduced at the '26 reunion last year), proved to be such a success as to warrant more ambitious proportions in the future.

The new Agnes Etherington Art Centre, under the direction of the University Artist, Andre Bieler, was open for the graduates and many took advantage of the opportunity to visit this handsome addition to the University's holdings. On view was a special exhibition of Canadian paintings from Kingston collections.

The new film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was shown on two occasions to interested audiences in the McLaughlin Room in the Students Union. Dr. H. W. Curran, director of the Department of Extension, introduced the film, and told something of the background and preparation that had gone into its making.

Reunion Notes:

A feature of the Reunion Dinner at the Union was the rousing address of Dr. Charlotte Whitton, of the Class of Arts '17. In her inimitable style she spoke on behalf of the '17 years, and no one could have spoken more eloquently.

Dr. A. L. MacLennan, a member of Arts '97, was the elder statesman of the homecoming graduates. He expressed keen interest in the W. B. Munro Scholarship of Arts '96, and signified his intention of contributing to it. . . . S. A. Wallace, Q.C., Arts '07, writes: "I enjoyed the wonderful banquet and get-together, meeting some old friends I haven't seen since I left Queen's. I missed some old friends who are deceased." Mr. Wallace, a star football player of yesteryear thought "the Queen's line played a wonderful defensive game," but that the offence was weak.

Some of the best times were had by those who took part in private gatherings. The Class of Arts '17 met at the home of Mrs. D. M. Chown (Mary Macphail). . . . Some of the Medical years, notably those in the thirties, held a number of social gatherings in Kingston homes, Medicine '36 at the homes of Drs. Ferg. O'Connor, G. W. Blenkinsop and Tom Tweddell; Medicine '38 at Dr. Rog Billings, Dr. Malcolm Brown's and Dr. Arnold Kelly's; Medicine '39 at Dr. Maurice James', Dr. George Scott's and Dr. George Kipkie's. . . . Arts '52 had a rousing time at the home of Dr. Peter Macklem. . . . Organized by Dr. Cliff Samis, the Class of Medicine '32 made a round of such Kingston homes as those of Dr. R. C. Burr, Dr. E. M. Boyd, and Dr. H. L. Batstone. . . . With G. B. McGillivray as the organizer, Arts '37 held a coffee party and later a cocktail party at the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club. For the latter event the Class was joined by members of Arts '36, '38, and '39. . . . The Class of Science '39 held a memorable reunion at the home of Prof. J. W. Brooks, Sc. '39, and Mrs. Brooks (Shirley Ayres), Arts '41, with forty in attendance. . . . Science '32 held their twenty-fifth anniversary dinner at the Kingston Yacht Club with about forty attending. Included in this number as special guests were staff members who had taught in the Science faculty when Science '32 were undergraduates. . . . Members of Medicine '29, held an unofficial but enthusiastic reunion, with an open house at the home of Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Mylks.

Members of Arts '18 met for a special business session in the Music Room of Students' Union on Saturday morning when a new president and secretary were elected: Dr. J. E. Hawley is the new president and Viola Davidson, secretary.

Reunion Dinner: George Marshall of Windsor received a warm round of applause when it was announced that he had recently retired as a Collegiate Principal and was described as one of the best Queen's workers in that area. . . . The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Brown were roundly applauded when pointed out as one of the "real romances" of the '07 graduating year. Dr. Brown delivered a very moving invocation at the Dinner. . . . Dr. R. M. Mills, Med. '07, was remembered by many as the "demon goal-keeper" of Queen's hockey teams at the turn of the century, and he looked trim enough to do a turn in the Jock Harty Arena even today. . . . A special welcome was given to the two valedictorians, Charles W. Livington, Q.C., Arts '07, Toronto, and J. D. Calvin, Sc. '07, Kingston. . . .

Mrs. A. F. Pirie (Jean Bertram), Arts '07, spent a good deal of time in Memory Lane Room. She was especially interested in items concerning her brothers-in-law, the famous Pirie football players, and also references to her late brother, Dr. H. G. Bertram of Dundas, former member of the Queen's Board of Trustees. Incidentally Mrs. Pirie now has a grandson at Queen's, "Chuck" Lewis, of the 1956 Intercollegiate champions. . . .

A fine feature of the Reunion Weekend was the attendance of some retired staff members and older graduates who were on hand to welcome the returning graduates. Among those who formed a welcoming committee were Dr. M. B. Baker, Dr. P. G. C. Campbell, Dr. G. F. Dalton, Dr. Wilhelmina B. Gordon, Prof. Arthur Jackson, Dr. F. J. O'Connor, Dr. S. M. Polson, and Rev. C. A. Shaver. . . .

Members of the Classes of Arts and Science '26, etc., held their Annual Reunion Breakfast on Sunday morning. Among those present were Earl Patton, Bud Thomas, Alex Edmison, "Bleek" Bleeker, Orrin Carson, Bill Holdcroft, Ian MacLachlan, Mel Thurling, and Bud Roney. The wives of all these gentry were on hand to watch and participate in the proceedings.

An additional '17 reunion was held in a private Pullman compartment on the west-bound train out of Kingston on Sunday. Involved were William Mars of Niagara Falls, Ont., Dr. Donald Cowan, Ann Arbor, Mich., Herb Cliffe, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and P. A. MacDougall, Hamilton, Ont. Every mile of the journey to Toronto seemed to revive another memory. Bill Mars, who now practices law in Niagara Falls, and before that at Prince Albert, Sask., had not been back to Queen's since graduation. The quartet kept bringing up names and incidents and the trip became one of a return to youth. They liked Queen's in the old days and were full of praise for what they saw on the campus today. Dr. Cowan had been to the Reunion Church Service and praised the Padre's sermon. As the train arrived at Toronto it was moved, seconded and agreed unanimously that all would be back for the Fiftieth Reunion of Arts '17. . . .

Three classes, Science '19, '22, and '48, beat the gun as far as reunions were concerned and met on the weekend of the Queen's-Varsity game on October 5. The Science '19 group held a dinner at the British American Hotel. Among those present were Skipper McLeod, Ozzie Luney, Charlie Poynton, Joe Stauffer, Roy Gordon, Bill Embury, Pat Young, Treff Imbleau, Monty Montrose, Jim Gratton, John Buss, Bill Ringlesben, Ches Moore, Norman Tisdale, Arnold Sims, Maurice Fleming, Ibri Sills. Among the guests were Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Mackintosh, Dean H. and Mrs. H. G. Conn, Prof. and Mrs. D. M. Jemmet, Dr. M. B. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hamilton. . . .

Science '22 celebrated its thirty-fifth reunion with a dinner at the LaSalle Hotel, organized by Jeff Comer in the absence of the president, Doug Findlay, who was in process of settling down in Nova Scotia. Among those present were Jeff Comer, Archie Wallace, Eddie McDonough, Ben Budgeon, Sc. '23, Tim Lord, Jack Tully, Grant MacLachlan, Hank Fair, Perce Devenny, Red Wilson, Test-tube Saunders, Bill Greenwood, Joe Hanlon, Louis O'Brian, Ham Henderson, Ray Myers, Shorty Mott, Nelson Cooper, Frank Deamude, Colin Campbell, Gerry Gerow, Bert Corlett, Allan Hamilton, Tip Roughton and Pat Young. Most of the gang brought their wives who met at luncheon with Mrs. A. V. Corlett. The men were on their own until game time. The reunion ended with a dinner attended by Principal and Mrs. W. A. Mackintosh. The Principal spoke briefly, recalling his early association with Science '22. Red Wilson, who at some time had been elected class orator, justified his appointment and with the help of two old class pictures ran a "who's where" on all the members. The men appeared to have weathered the years well until they were identified as freshmen or sophomores in the picture.

PHYSIOLOGY BUILDING OPENED

A new chapter of opportunities in the field of medical science was the expression used by Principal W. A. Mackintosh at the official opening of the new Physiology Building on October 12.

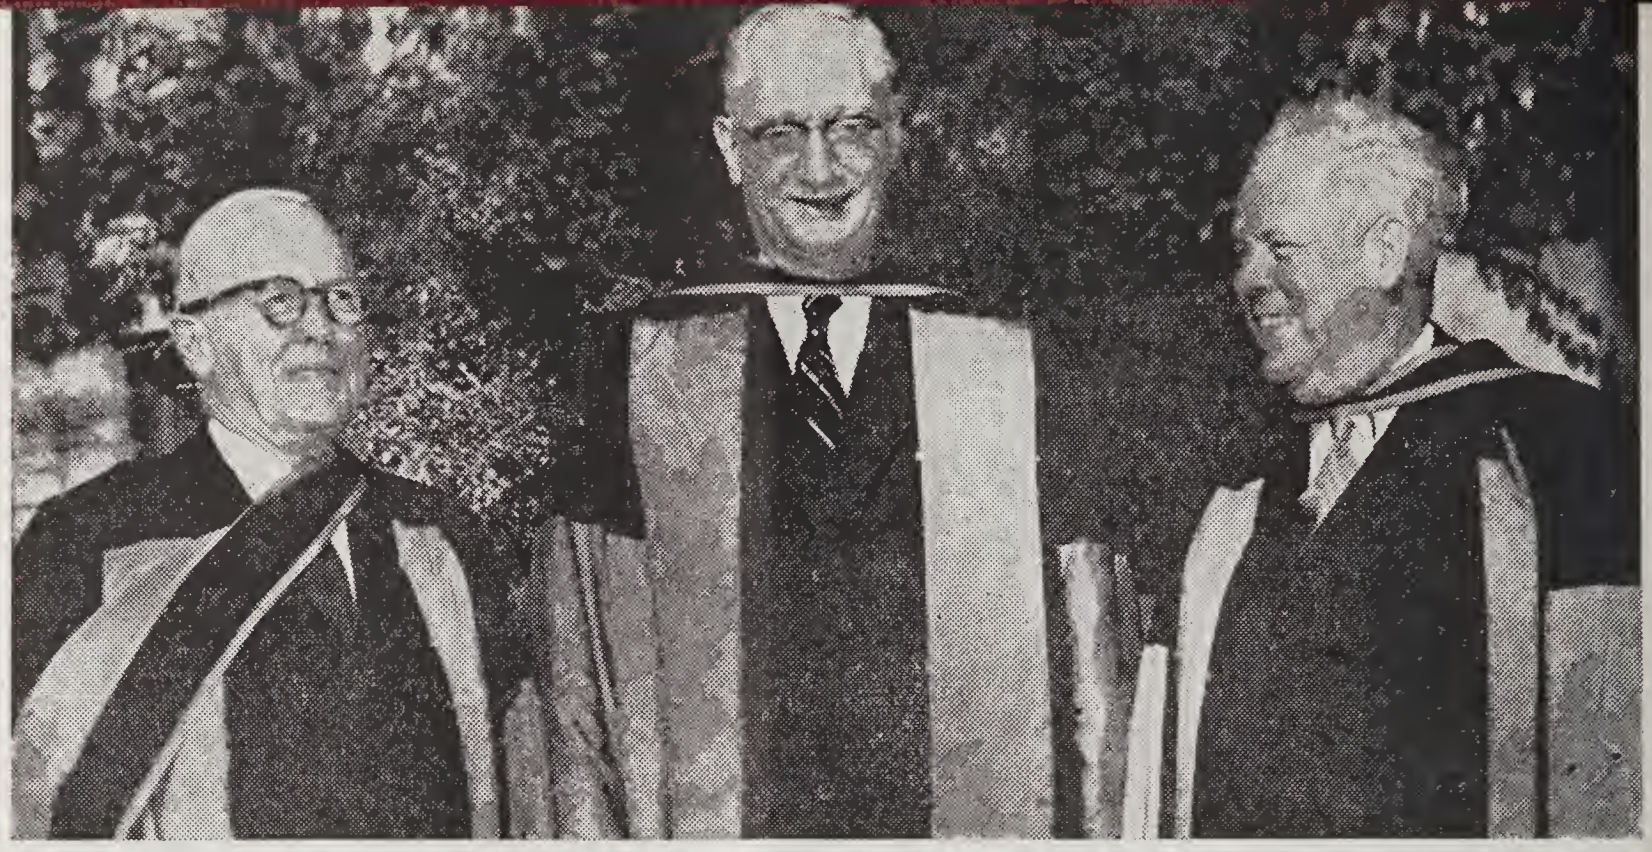

Dr. Mackintosh said that the building reflects the faith and foresight of the graduates of the medical school and all who are responsible for its erection. Singled out was one of the men who made this project possible, Harry Abramsky, prominent Kingston merchant, who donated $200,000.

Representing the federal government at the opening was the deputy minister of national Health, Dr. G. D. W. Cameron. Dr. G. H. Ettinger, dean of the Faculty of Medicine, also participated in the opening ceremonies.

Among the honoured guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Abramsky, Dr. L. W. Brockington, Rector of Queen's, T. A. Andre, contractor, T. A. McGinnis, chairman of the University's building committee, and David Shennan, architect.

Shown in the picture are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Abramsky, standing beneath the plaque that bears their name.

The building is located on Arch Street, across the street from that portion of the campus which lies between the Principal's Residence and the Kingston General Hospital.

FALL CONVOCATION

● Conferring of honorary degrees on three distinguished members of the legal profession at Fall Convocation on October 12 marked the occasion of the reopening of the Faculty of Law at Queen's after a lapse of more than sixty years.

Those honoured were C. F. H. Carson, Q.C., treasurer of the Law Society of Upper Canada, E. C. Leslie, Q.C., past president of the Canadian Bar Association, and F. P. Varcoe, Q.C., recently retired deputy minister of justice.

Vice-Chancellor and Principal W. A. Mackintosh presented the recipients for honorary degrees to the Chancellor, Hon. C. A. Dunning, with these citations:

Cyril Frederick Harshaw Carson — distinguished counsel, learned in the law, whose power to make the worse appear the better reason has been used with restraint and integrity, and whose zeal for the best interests of his profession has brought him the highest honour the Law Society of Upper Canada can give.

Everett Clayton Leslie — able advocate, learned lawyer, distinguished leader in his profession, wise in the councils of the university of his province, whose wit and felicity in address lift every occasion out of the commonplace.

Frederick Percy Varcoe — a man learned in the law, who has achieved distinction in a distinguished public service, and by his devoted work has improved Canadian legislation, strengthened Canadian courts and given informed guidance to the law officers of the Crown.

In his Convocation address, Dr. Leslie stressed the value of a broad education for a lawyer. He said that a sound training in the fundamental principles of law and in the methods of its technical application were essential, but he felt that the education of a lawyer should go far beyond this point.

"Law is the instrument by and through which men and women living together in a society regulate their relations to each other" he said. "The law student should know that the object of law is to see that justice is done between man and man." Training outside the field of law is also essential Dr. Leslie maintained, as "no profession is called upon so often to take part in the public affairs of the country."

In conclusion Dr. Leslie said law schools should be centres of legal research, bearing in mind that law is capable of change and growth to meet changing conditions.

An Important Addition

Agnes Etherington Art Centre

The Agnes Etherington Art Centre, which was officially opened on October 12, is an important and beautiful addition to the Queen's campus.

Located on University Avenue, opposite Grant Hall, this Georgian-style house was the home of the late Mrs. Frederick Etherington, a member of the Richardson family, and was bequeathed by her "for the furthering of art and music at the University."

Extensive alterations and additions have been made. There are an exhibition and lecture room, a print room, a large studio and graphic arts room, a library and a small museum. University students will have art lectures and classes in the Centre, and evening courses are to be held for Kingston residents.

For the opening there was an exhibition of Canadian paintings from Kingston collections, ranging from Kreighoff to contemporaries. Frequent and varied exhibitions have been planned, which are to be open to the public, as well as to members of the University.

"This new Centre is seen in art circles as a merited home for the interest that has been built in both the City and the University by Andre Bieler, first as resident artist at Queen's and later as professor of art since 1942," Pearl Bailey, art critic of the Toronto Globe and Mail.

Alumni Directors Meet

● D. G. Geiger, Sc. '22, Toronto, Ont., was elected president of the Alumni Association for the ensuing year, at the sixtieth semi-annual meeting of the Board of Directors held in the Students' Memorial Union on October 25. Mr. Geiger succeeds W. A. Dawson, Sc. '23, Hamilton, Ont.

Also elected were Dr. John E. Hammett, Med. '19, New York, N.Y., as first vice-president, and H. I. Marshall, Sc. '41, Ottawa, Ont., as second vice-president.

Appointed as additional directors for a one-year period were B. W. Burgess, Sc. '44, Montreal, Que., D. G. Geiger, Sc. '22, Toronto, Ont., and H. E. Searle, Sc. 22, New York, N.Y.

The report of the chairman of the Alumni Fund, D. L. Rigsby, Sc. '40, showed that contributions to the end of September amounted to $70,668, as compared to $73,531 for the complete year 1956. Of this sum, $29,668 was from actual contributions from alumni, while $41,000 was a bookkeeping credit from the National Fund. New donors numbered 252, showing a healthy increase over last year's 157.

Mr. Rigsby said that the immediate objective of his committee was to increase substantially the percentage of participation from the 20.3 average registered in 1956. It was hoped to do this through the decision to eliminate membership dues in the Alumni Association in favour of one appeal for financial support, on behalf of the Alumni Fund; wider publicity, continued efforts keep the interest of the new graduates, and more comprehensive canvassing. Particular stress was laid on the importance of appointing active Alumni Fund chairmen in the various districts. Branch executives were urged to look after such appointments and to take steps to see that the chairmen are given whole-hearted support. All branches were asked to see that a canvass is conducted some time during 1958.

B. I. England, Arts '20, Com. '23, chairman of the national finance committee, presented the financial statement for the year ending September 30, which showed a deficit of $382.82. A budget was submitted for the last three months of 1957, and for the full year of 1958. It was estimated that there would be 4,000 alumni who would be contributing to the Alumni Fund next year.

A report of a Montreal firm, Systems Equipment Limited, was presented by the Secretary-Treasurer as the first step in the modernization of mailing room procedures, alumni office records, Alumni Fund records, and the integration of office routines. The suggested system would cost $15,000.00 to put into operation, but it was felt it would pay for itself in increased efficiency, improved services, elimination of complaints, faster interchange of information, and accuracy. The Board approved of the recommendations in principle, and provided for the setting up of a committee to investigate the plan further and to explore ways and means of financing the venture.

A highly profitable discussion arose out of an innovation of the retiring president, W. A. Dawson, Sc. '23, Hamilton, in which the presidents of branches and branch representatives were invited to speak on their programmes and problems. Some of the most serious difficulties presented were those of finances, particularly in the field of branch activities. Provision was made for a more complete study of the problems outlined.

In his remarks, Mr. Dawson gave an account of his stewardship during his two years as president of the Alumni Association, which he described as "a thrilling and satisfying experience." He felt that the Alumni Association would benefit from the additional administrative committees that had been formed during his incumbency, and predicted that they would make a highly important contribution to the work of the Association.

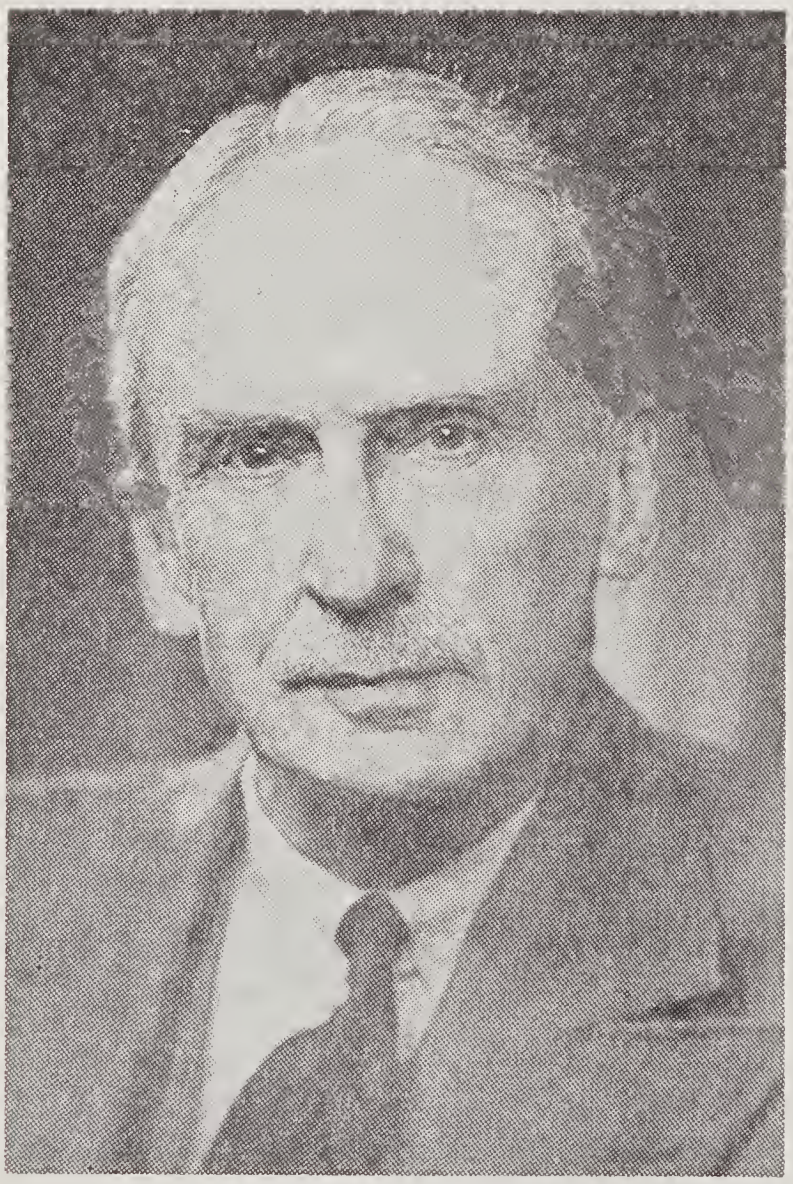

In stepping out of office, Mr. Dawson said that he had always found inspiration and comfort in the quotation from the pen of the late Principal R. C. Wallace: "No conscious effort towards betterment, whether individual or collective, is ever lost, it is held on the lap of time."

Around the CAMPUS

E. C. Gill Succeeds J. M. Macdonnell As Chairman

Hon. J. M. Macdonnell has resigned as chairman of the Board of Trustees, a position which he has filled since 1930, and his resignation was accepted with regret at the Fall meeting of the Board. E. C. Gill, president of the Canadian Life Assurance Company, Toronto, Ont., was elected as Mr. Macdonnell's successor.

J. M. MACDONNELL

Mr. Macdonnell, who feels that his duties as minister in the Government of Canada and as member of the House of Commons prevent him from performing fully the duties as chairman, has agreed to continue as a member of the Board. Queen's first Rhodes Scholar, he has been a trustee of the University for many years. Financial critic of the Progressive-Conservative party when the party formed the Opposition, he is now Minister without portfolio in the Government's cabinet.

Mr. Gill graduated from Queen's with the medal in mathematics and began his service with the Canada Life in the actuarial department. He has served for several years as the vice-chairman of Queen's Board of Trustees and has been chairman for the Toronto district of the Queen's National Fund in 1957.

In announcing these changes Principal W. A. Mackintosh paid warm tribute to Mr. Macdonnell's wisdom and devotion as chairman, and said that Queen's was indeed fortunate in having a man of the quality of E. C. Gill to succeed him.

Rev. Dr. Wilhelm Pauck Is Chancellor's Lecturer

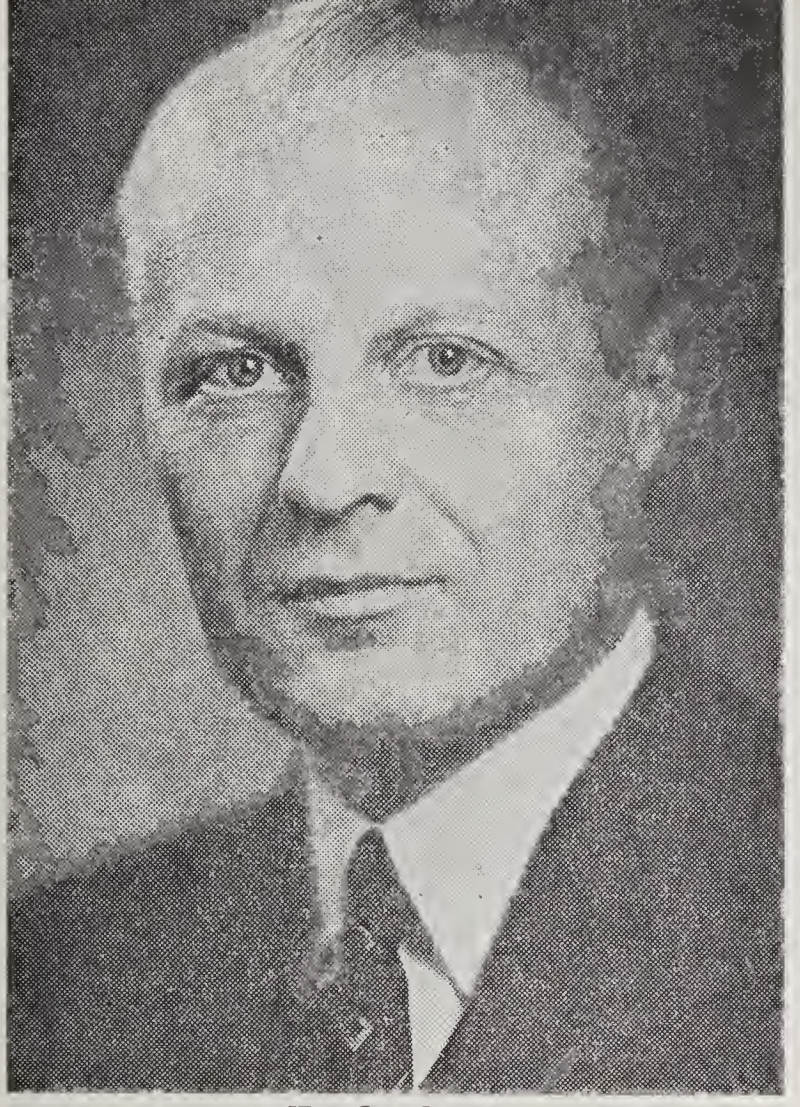

The Rev. Dr. Wilhelm Pauck, professor of church history at the Union Theological Seminary, New York, was the Chancellor's Lecturer at the sixty-fifth annual conference of the Theological Alumni Association October 21-24. The general subject of his lecture series was "The Religion of the Protestant Reformers."

Rev. J. A. Lyttle, North Bay, Ont., was re-elected president of the Theological Alumni Association. Also re-elected were Rev. Albert Gray, Ottawa, Ont., as vice-president, and Prof. W. E. L. Smith, Kingston, Ont., as secretary-treasurer.

FLIGHT INTO POETRY

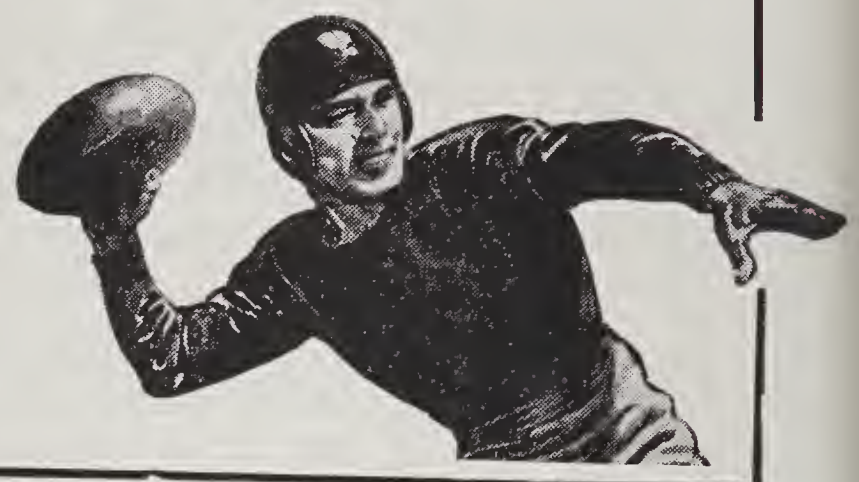

When Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, was appointed minister of external affairs, Sir William Hamilton Fyfe, principal of Queen's 1930-36, and now resident in London, England, was moved to write:

LINES WRITTEN IN DEJECTION AFTER READING THE TIMES OF THE 13TH SEPTEMBER

Said President Smith of Toronto
Now what is there next to go onto?
I can't here aspire
To anything higher
I must go into politics pronto!

This limerick, with the typical Fyfeian touch, was included in a letter received recently by Dr. W. E. McNeill, vice-principal emeritus.

ATHLETICS

After two years as Intercollegiate champions Queen's got a changed perspective on the league this year, winding up at the bottom of the standings without a win.

Some one, removed far from the campus and out of touch with the news from the University, would be completely baffled on learning the results of the past football season. Such a one was Roy Hurd, Sc. '48½, now living in South Africa. On Reunion Weekend the Alumni Office received a telegram from Roy, wanting the scores cabled weekly. What a shock it must have been for him to get these results:

Varsity	16	Queen's 8
Western	34	Queen's 6
McGill	33	Queen's 6
McGill	15	Queen's 0
Western	21	Queen's 8
Toronto	18	Queen's 2

A tip-off of what the future held in store was the 23-0 lacing administered to the Golden Gaels by McGill in an exhibition tilt before the regular season started. However, McGill were generally conceded to be the class of the league and it was felt that the Tricolour, with a green and inexperienced team, would improve. And improve it did, but so did every other team in the loop, and Queen's could not break into the win column.

While the Queen's fortunes were waning those of Western were on the upsurge. After winding up with a winless season last year the Purple and White proved to be the class of the league, and never lost a game. Meanwhile the power-packed McGill team turned in uneven performances and finished tied with Varsity and a three-three record.

For Queen's the pattern was set in the season's opener at Richardson Stadium when the Gaels went down to a 16-8 defeat. Outplayed and outgunned, the Tricolour actually had more scoring opportunities than did the Blue and White, but the visitors made more capital out of theirs. Ron Stewart scored one touchdown in this game, on a spectacular catch of a pass in the end zone while well covered by defenders, and scored another on an end sweep, only to have this one wiped out by the officials on a new ruling introduced this year.

In the first game against Western, Queen's scored the first touchdown of the game and maintained this lead until the end of the first quarter, then the Western power asserted itself and turned the game into a rout. The return game against Western found Queen's in the best offensive form of the season as they made twenty-one first downs.

Against McGill, the Tricolour took a 33-6 licking in Montreal and lost 15-0 in the return game played in Kingston on Reunion Weekend. In the latter, the Gaels held the vaunted power of the Redmen in check except for a few costly defensive lapses, but were inept when they had the ball themselves.

1-0 at the half and another single in the third quarter before the roof fell in. The third quarter proved to be a nemesis for the Tricolour in almost every game. They would compete on fairly even terms for the first half, and then as the players tired they began to make defensive mistakes of which their opponents were quick to take advantage.

The team that Coach Frank Tindall fielded proved to be eager, full of promise, but green. The boys tried hard all the way and with about three more veterans on the line could have won at least half their games. It would be comforting to be able to predict that the team gained enough experience to be heard from next year, but unfortunately some of the best players on the 1957 squad will be missing when the next season rolls around. Unless Coach Tindall can come up with some sturdy replacements not at present visible on the horizon then the outlook may be said to be somewhat less than roseate.

And where was all-time all-star Ronnie Stewart while Queen's was having its most disastrous season since 1951? Well, Ronnie was at the bottom of practically every pile-up on the field, he was in on most of the tackles, he was in many instances the last man between the attackers and the Queen's goal-line. Without his services the Queen's team would have been racked up a lot worse.

To the thinking of many fans, Ronnie really came into his own as a football player this year. He started the season as the second highest scorer in Queen's history, with 160 to Pep Leadlay's 169. He wound up still in second place on the scoring list, with 166 points, but he had proved himself to be a really great team player, who gave his best at all times. For four years Ronnie had been the glamour boy of the Queen's team—he was the man who carried the ball on the crucial plays and carried it so well that he managed to score thirty touchdowns, twenty-two more than anyone in Queen's history. This year he just didn't get the number of opportunities to score, and when he did get a chance he was so all in from playing all-out that he lacked that extra kick that was a patented part of his performances. At that, he managed to pile up impressive yardage running back kicks—in every game he managed to pull off several spectacular runs that brought the fans to their feet.

GRIDIRON STRATEGY

All of which is intended as a tribute to an outstanding player, and not as a slight to all those others who contributed so much to a losing cause and who never gave up trying. Paul Fedor played a whale of a game every time out. On the line Co-Captain Dave Wilson, Graydon Harrison, and Stan Trzop were standouts. On the backfield Co-Captain Karl Quinn, Dave Harshaw, and Terry Dolan had their moments of glory. Four new quarterbacks, all high school graduates of last year, were tried out during the season and acquitted themselves creditably behind a line that was at times less than impregnable: Bob Campbell, Bob McAleese, Dave Bradley, and Dave Richards.

It was a frustrating and disappointing season and for no one more so than for Coach Frank Tindall. Fortunately, he'll have the memories of 1955 and 1956 to help him through the long winter months.

BEWITCHED!

Witches, goblins and spooks were on the loose at the Ottawa Country Supper and and Square Dance, but there was sufficient pulchitrude on hand as an antidote. Clockwise, from bottom left, are Janet Dowd, Ann Green, Lorraine Balchler, Kathryn Walsh, Marian Agnew, Agnes Smith and Vivienne Sterns.

Three Hundred Attend Country Supper and Square Dance

Three hundred hungry members and friends of the Ottawa branch journeyed to Navan Memorial Community Centre on October 22 for their annual Country Supper and Square Dance. The ladies of Navan Women's Institute upheld their high reputation by providing a sumptuous turkey supper with all the trimmings (One grad was seen reaching for his fourth piece of pie!).

President of the branch, Lt. Col. G. W. L. Nicholson, Arts '31, welcomed the guests and led a sing-song featuring a "Chinese song sung to Italian music". Highlights of the programme were Swiss yodelling by W. Binggeli, guitar and accordion music and vocals by Bob Petrie, and a pantomine of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew", acted during the reading of this poem by Ted Nicholson, Arts '31. After the tables and chairs were cleared away Jack Zoubie called off for the square dance.

Convener of this perennially popular event was Dr. Harold A. Quinn, Sc. '41, ably assisted by Kathryn Walsh, Arts '54, Lorraine Holsgrove, Arts '55, Marian MacLachlan, Arts '54, B.P.H.E. '54, Ruth Cairns, Arts '46, and Frank Macintyre, Sc. '49.

Decorations included eight Hallowe'en drawings very kindly made for the occasion by Dr. Carter B. Storr, Arts '30, Principal of Broadview Public School, Ottawa.

TRAVELS OVER HUGE AREA

In his capacity as the first Supreme Court judge of the Northwest Territories, Mr. Justice John Howard Sissons Arts '17, flies a 25,000-mile circuit twice a year, with shorter trips in between, as necessary. His territory covers 1,100,000 square miles, extending from the Alaska border to the farthest east Arctic islands.

Adoption and citizenship applications are the major part of Mr. Justice Sissons' work, but the court this year has also conducted two murder trials, heard two attempted murder charges, and tried one case of criminal negligence.

The Benefits of Electronics are everywhere...

helping us to live better electrically

From early radio to TV and today's computers, electronics has speeded progress in industry, defence, communications, safety, and home comfort.

Remember those early radios? They were a far cry from the streamlined models of today; yet they helped to change our lives because they were one of the beginnings of electronics. Today, though radio and television are still its most widely known applications, electronics affects almost every phase of our lives.

Electronics has reduced the size of our world through microwave, flashing words and pictures across the country at the speed of light. Two-way radio serves us in many useful ways. Electronic computers speed research and industrial processes. Radar guards our frontiers and brings new safety to our shipping lanes and airlines. And industrial applications such as closed circuit TV, electronic sorters, and quality control speed and improve manufacturing processes.

In all these ways and many more, electronics benefits us all.

This Company was the first in Canada to build TV receivers and transmitters, two-way mobile radio, microwave communication equipment, and electronic tubes. Today it is developing and producing a growing list of electronic products for defence, industry and home use . . . to help us live better.

Parliamentary Freedom

. . . . Parliament represents, as it should represent, and so often does, the nation at its best. It is a place where good citizens labour for all citizens. There laws are made and the rights of the people are protected. Parliament means ordered liberty, the duty and the right of men to live by the laws they themselves helped to make, the right of the majority to govern and the duty of the minority to accept the will of the majority without violence. It stands, as it has often been said, for the force of argument against the argument of force, for the rule of law against the rule of the sword, for popular consent against the will of a tyrant or a military dictator masquerading as the State. Men go there to express with independent thought or word what they believe to be the best faith and interest of the people whom they represent. They are entrusted with the defence of our civil liberties. Their free discussion is the sign-manual and symbol of our freedom. Their duty is to make living laws and to put life into them. No legislation can be passed and no taxes levied without their consent and all are subject to the rule of law. If the rule of law is broken in the name of the Queen, then her advisers and agents are accountable for its breach. And so parliamentary freedom crystallizes our faith in the sanctity of human life, in the rights of the individual, in the necessity of moulding the state to the service of its citizens, in making the conscience of the honest upright individual the conscience of the nation and in all those concrete traditional blessings which we sometimes vaguely define as the benediction of freedom."

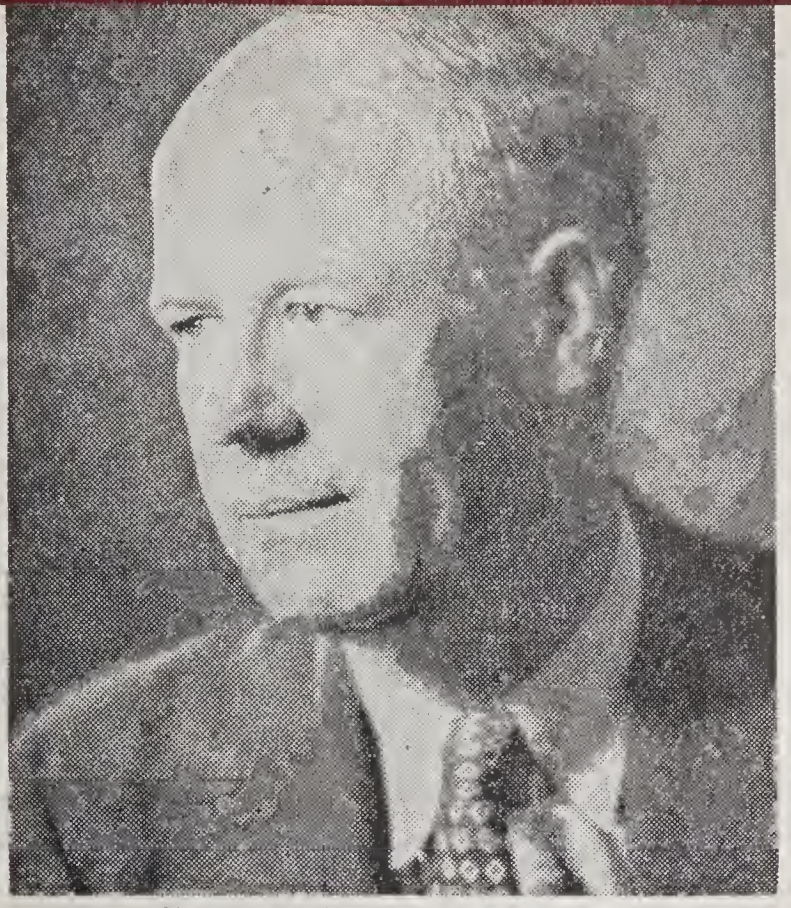

—from a radio address by Leonard W. Brockington, Rector of the University, preceding the appearance in the Canadian Parliament of Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth.

Alumni Fund

. . . . Please don't let me convey the impression that we at the universities are looking solely to industry to help bridge our wide gap between operating revenues and operating expenses. We look first of all to our graduates, and this is as it should be. If I were a dispenser of corporation donations, I would feel I had every right to say, "Before my firm donates to your university I want to know what your own graduates are contributing." This is a very good question and it can usually be answered. Many Canadian universities, like most American ones, now have an annual giving programme for their graduates. McGill and Queen's, for instance, can both point with some pride to the number of their graduates who repay the cost of their education by making regular yearly contributions. Last year McGill led all Canadian universities with the highest alumni givings ($185,000), while Queen's led in the highest per capita donations ($28.00). It is not quite fair to compare our Alumni Funds in Canada with those in the United States. Our oldest is not ten years old, while the leading ones below the border, like those of Yale and Dartmouth, have been building up for over sixty years. However, we are making commendable progress in alumni givings in Canada. In many of our universities the graduating students go forth into their careers realizing their responsibilities to their Alma Mater and planning to make annual donations to it in the same way as to their church, their local community chest, and their golf or social club."

—from an address on "Education" given by J. Alex Edmison, assistant to the Principal at Queen's, at the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, at Victoria, B.C.

DR. W. A. MACKINTOSH

Private Enterprise

. . . . Most of us believe in a system of economic organization, predominantly of private enterprise. Sometimes it is suggested that this adherence is justified by the supposed sanctity of something which is called profit motive. In fact, of course, there is no profit motive which differs significantly from a wage motive or an interest motive or a capital gains motive. There is, of course, an economic motive which may, in reprehensible cases, spring from mere acquisitiveness, but which in most of us arises from a very complex amalgam of family responsibility, desire for larger and more challenging fields of activity, or is merely a reassuring index of our own effectiveness.

The justification of a system of private enterprise is to be found in the amazing facility which it has given for the large and complex organization required by modern life to be combined with the decentralization of decisions in ways that make freedom compatible with order. This must be understood equally by those who add enterprise to enterprise or labour organization to labour organization, not because of genuine economies inherent in the change, but only because of the increased power which comes with increased mass. Unless we can understand that the justification of private enterprise lies in its facility for the decentralization of decisions, we may fail to preserve it in the years of greater complexity ahead. The business world deals to a degree with things but its more important functions concern persons.

—from an address by Principal W. A. Mackintosh at the Fall Convocation of the University of British Columbia.

Opportunities for All

. . . . If this nation is to aspire to greatness—if it is to pour into the mainstream of civilized life a richness of idea and accomplishment that was not there before—then we must seek out and develop the qualities of greatness in our young people. I know of no institutions better fitted to do this than universities. . . . To each of us is given the opportunity to make a contribution to the greatness of Canada. Such contributions are not always made by doing extraordinary things—it is more often by doing ordinary things extraordinarily well.

I tried to make the same point in a few words of advice which I addressed a few years ago to a group of C.N.R. employees who were just concluding a two-month period of rather intensive work at our Staff Training Course, conducted annually by the C.N.R. as part of its programme for developing executive talent. It had been pointed out to the group that the importance of logical and systematic thinking, painstaking analysis and clear expression had been emphasized during the course and that, no doubt, some of the personnel taking the course would welcome opportunities to demonstrate their proficiency along those lines.

But I said to them: "You will be making a mistake if you follow the example of those individuals who are always waiting and hoping for some spectacular occasion for such demonstrations. These individuals tend to have 'dreams of glory' in which some ideal crisis arises wherein they can figure as the leader who assumes command and rescues everything from complete chaos. Life, however, just isn't like that. For most of us it is a humdrum business of routine tasks which must be disposed of regularly and conscientiously, and the spectacular often occurs and disappears without our having realized we were personally involved. So I say to you—look to the daily work-a-day chores for the opportunities to demonstrate your abilities. That is where reputations are made and that is the field out of which promotions spring."

—from the Convocation Address given at the University of Saskatchewan by Donald M. Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways and a member of the Queen's Board of Trustees.

Support for Education

. . . . If industry and commerce in Canada and the general public could be brought to realize that their future, their earning power and the standard of living of our nation are in no small degree dependent upon our educational system, and could they be brought to support it on a basis similar to that practised across the border, a surprisingly large proportion of the total capital expenditure anticipated over the next twenty-five years could be financed from this source.

—from an address by James S. Duncan, C.M.G., chairman of the Duncan Educational Survey Committee and chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, before a joint luncheon of the Canadian Club of Toronto and the Empire Club of Canada.

SCIENCE '19 REUNION

The Class of Science '19 had a highly successful reunion this fall, thanks in large measure to the efforts of N. F. Tisdale and John Buss. Shown below are Mr. and Mrs. Tisdale, Mrs. Buss, and Mr. Buss.

An Appreciation

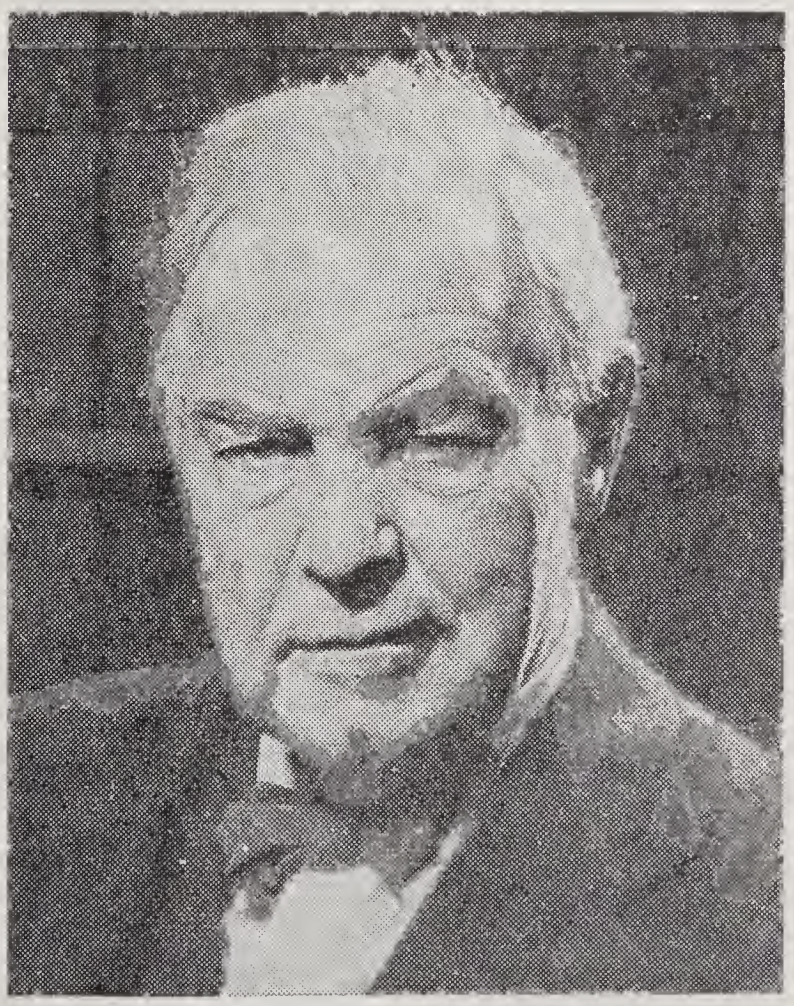

Dr. Robert Chambers

In the death of Dr. Robert Chambers, M.A. '02 LL.D. '44, Ph.D. (Munich), last summer, Queen's lost one of her most distinguished graduates and the scientific world one of its most illustrious names.

Dr. Chambers was best known for his fundamental and enduring work on the biophysics of protoplasm, according to W. R. Duryee of the George Washington School of Medicine, writing in a current issue of Science. Many special problems and characteristics of plant and animal cells were resolved and made understandable by the use of micro-instruments which he devised, improved, and logically exploited. To scholars of cellular physiology, his work on the structure of living membranes, capillary physiology, mesonephros function, fertilization problems in marine eggs, and adhesiveness of cancer cells in tissue culture remains classical. His astonishing development of the micromanipulator, along with the essential glass needles, micropipettes, electrodes, and microgages, stands as a landmark in the progress of science.

A contemporary and close friend of men like T. H. Morgan, E. B. Wilson, E. G. Conklin, and G. H. Parker, Dr. Chambers was nevertheless a modern man, says Dr. Duryee. It is to his credit that more than half of the programme for the forthcoming International Congress for Cell Biology, in Scotland, is, almost prophetically, directly related to cellular studies in which he was at one time or another actively engaged. He furnished basic ideas for others to follow. His superlative services to biology and to science are, unfortunately, not well known. Dr. Walter R. Bloor of the School of Medicine and Dentistry at the University of Rochester writes: "In my opinion he was one of the most brilliant scholars and investigators in biology in North America. He was, however, the quiet kind who did not advertise and so missed out on a good deal of recognition which should have come his way."

The prime quality of Dr. Chambers throughout his long life was his warm, human sympathy for his family, his students, and his host of friends in many lands. At his home, he and Mrs. Chambers entertained prince and pauper. No one was turned away. His hospitality knew no bounds. His long associations with New York University, where he was research professor of biology, and with the Marine Biological Laboratory of Woods Hole, of which he was a trustee, enriched both institutions immeasurably.

Biography Acclaimed

Life of

Arthur Stanley Eddington

Dean A. Vibert Douglas

Evokes Warm Praise

Widely acclaimed, the biography of Arthur Stanley Eddington, O.M., written by Dr. A. Vibert Douglas, Dean of Women and Professor of Astronomy at Queen's, continues to evoke warm praise from scientists, scholars and the reviewers of learned journals. The book was published by Thomas Nelson and Sons of Edinburgh last year.

Dr. Douglas had studied at Cambridge under Eddington, generally regarded as the leading astronomer of his generation. Eddington lived an outwardly calm and unspectacular life, but as a man of science he was one of the super-giants in an age of giants, whose life as a thinker was filled with adventure, excitement, suspense, achievement. How well Dr. Douglas succeeded in capturing the essential character of the man and the significance of his contribution to the world of science may be gathered from the following sample excerpts from the reviews of her book:

Endeavour, London (Sir H. Spencer Jones, formerly Astronomer Royal at Greenwich)—"An excellent account is given of the course of Eddington's scientific work on stellar movements, stellar structure, and stellar physics, on relativity and on fundamental theory."

The Times Literary Supplement—"A very complete record of the most modest of all scientific luminaries of the age."

The Scotsman, Edinburgh — "The author had to be equipped with knowledge, understanding, literary skill, and appreciation of the man in the astronomer. Eddington has indeed been very fortunate in his biographer, who does not fall short in any way."

The Manchester Guardian (This review was written by Professor Herbert Dingle, Professor of the History and Philosophy of Science, University of London, himself a distinguished astrophysicist) — "Dr. Douglas is to be congratulated on success in this very difficult task. Memorable scenes are faithfully and excitingly presented, no one who is interested in the wider aspects of science and its philosophy will fail to find stimulation and enlightenment from this account of one of the great original spirits of our age."

The New Scientist (Professor F. J. M. Stratton, F.R.S., Cambridge, former Director of the Solar Physics Observatory)—"It can have been no easy task to make an interesting story of the unspectacular life of Eddington . . . But Dr. Douglas has successfully done so . . . a full account of the many battles with Jeans and later Milne . . . a full account of Eddington's work on relativity."

Nature (L.A. Pars, Cambridge) — "The author of this excellent book . . . has achieved a nice balance between the story of the man and the story of his scientific work."

The Observatory, London (W. M. Smart, Regius Professor of Astronomy, University of Glasgow, for eighteen years Eddington's Chief Assistant) — "The writing of the biography of such a man as Eddington required great courage and deep understanding of his scientific works, for his mind and pen ranged over the whole expanse of astronomy and atomic physics in a measure unequalled by any of his contemporaries. Professor Douglas has combined these qualities in a notably high degree; moreover she reveals a literary skill befitting the eminence of the subject of her book . . . Professor Douglas has rendered a signal service in the realms of scientific biography; her book will bring delight and profit to all classes of readers."

Archives Internationales d'Histoire des Sciènces, Paris (Dr. N.B. Slater, Leeds) —"This biography brings together so much enlightenment on the development of Eddington's scientific and philosophical outlook that all students of his work will thank Dr. Douglas."

Montreal Gazette, (Garran Patterson) —"One of the finest books to be published this year."

Queen's Quarterly, (Dr. C.S. Beals, F.R.S., Dominion Astronomer)—"A book packed with information which no one interested in the history of science should miss reading."

Dalhousie Review, (M. W. Burke-Gaffney, S.J.)—"A piece of literature and a work of art. It is highly commended."

Sky and Telescope (T.K. Menon, Harvard College Observatory)—". . . an integrated view of the activities of a truly great scientist . . . an interesting account of his early studies of star motions, through stellar structure, relativity, and cosmology . . . a lively narrative of his controversies with his fellow astronomers . . . a lucid outline of Eddington's personal philosophy . . . No review can be complete without commenting on the literary excellence of the biography . . . fascinating reading for both the professional and amateur astronomer."

* * *

Many of the reviewers have praised the beauty of Dr. Douglas's writing. But none has specifically mentioned the appropriateness of the quotations used in connection with the chapter headings. Here are a few:

CHAPTER 1 EARLY YEARS 1882-1902

The childhood shows the man
As morning shows the day.

—Milton

CHAPTER 2 CAMBRIDGE 1902-1906

Each day grew older and learned something new.

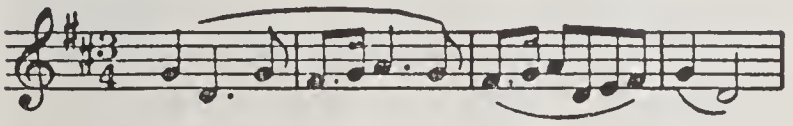

—Plutarch

CHAPTER 7 STELLAR PHYSICS

Courage, my mind, and press on mightily,
Press on where Truth begins to dawn

—St. Augustine

CHAPTER 11 FUNDAMENTAL THEORY

Unfinished Symphony.

—Schubert

In Eddington's final years he worked upon the idea of a great synthesis to be called Fundamental Theory. It was never finished, but in part was published posthumously. With fine poetic feeling Dr. Douglas placed beneath her Chapter 11 heading, not a quotation but four bars of Schubert's Unfinished Symphony.

CHAPTER 12 VALE ET SALVE

Let us now praise famous men . . .
Leaders of the people by their counsels, and by their knowledge of learning . . .
wise and eloquent in their instructions. . . .
men furnished with ability living peaceably in their habitations:
all these were honoured in their generations and were the glory of their times.

Alumnae Annual Meeting

Mrs. W. J. Hyde

Succeeds Mrs. Norman Miller

as President

More Residence Accommodation

for Women Students

Is Stressed

● Queen's University Alumnae Association held its forty-sixth annual meeting on October 27, 1957, in Ban Righ Hall common room, with the president, Mrs. Norman Miller, in the chair and approximately fifty members present.

The following are the elected officers for the year 1957-1958: Past President, Mrs. Norman Miller, Kingston; President, Mrs. W. J. Hyde, Montreal; First Vice-President, Miss Kathleen Elliott, Toronto; Second Vice-President, Miss Esther Harrop, Vancouver; Third Vice-President, Mrs. R. H. Bissell, Hamilton; Secretary, Mrs. F. W. Benn, Montreal; Treasurer, Mrs. E. M. Van Koughnet, Montreal; Councillors — Mrs. Norman McLeod, Toronto, Mrs. Walter Little, Parry Sound, Mrs. Charles O'Reilly, Smiths Falls, Mrs. R. W. McLean, Ottawa, Mrs. R. G. Davidson, Ottawa, Mrs. G. R. Woolsey, Montreal, Mrs. Frank Fortune, Ottawa.

The following appointments were made at the annual meeting or at the post-annual executive meeting: Liaison with N.C.W. and C.F.U.W., Miss Mora Guthrie; Representative to Alumni Board, Mrs. T. K. Waddell; Membership Committee, Mrs. B. M. Cormier; Nominations to Ban Righ Board, Mrs. W. S. Brooke, Miss Mary White; Delegates to Canadian Conference on Education, Mrs. W. J. Hyde, Miss Mora Guthrie; Nominating Committee, Mrs. A. R. Foster (convener), Mrs. Frank Fortune, Mrs. A. W. Brodie; Convener of Residence Accommodation Committee, Mrs. D. W. Boucher; Marty Memorial Scholarship Committee, Miss Ellen Thibaudeau (convener); New Member, Dr. Arliss Denyes; History Committee, Mrs. D. M. Chown to continue; Constitution Committee, Mrs. J. W. McEwan to continue.

The keynote of the meeting was: "More residence accommodation for women is urgent." Reports from the Dean of Women, the Ban Righ Board and the President stressed this. Already the pressure of numbers means:

(1) Many applications for rooms from girls in their second, third or fourth year were refused.

(2) The proportion of first-year girls in residence to all other years is now over two to one.

(3) This year for the first time some new girls had to find rooms outside of residence.

(4) Annexes will before long be removed to make way for other structures and it is increasingly difficult to find large houses to convert to this use.

It was moved by Miss Mary Macdonnell and seconded by Miss Mary White that the incoming executive appoint a committee on planning for further residence accommodation. At the post-annual executive meeting Mrs. D. W. Boucher was appointed.

Considerable discussion took place. This included the suggestion that additional units should be built with single rooms only, and that buildings should be so planned that they may share such facilities as plumbing and heating but be in small units of about fifty rooms for administration.

It is expected that the Alumni Fund will include Women's residences as one of its objectives. When this is done it is hoped that all women graduates will work towards increasing our giving for this purpose.

The treasurer reported a balance on hand of about $700 in addition to the special fund of $1000 from the Marion Redden bequest. Over eleven hundred dollars was reported from the branches to scholarship funds and the Dean of Women's fund.

Routine expenses were voted, also money for the president, or anyone she may designate, to use for visiting alumnae groups.

The Marion Redden bequest is to be held intact until it is known next year how much will be required for the "History." Mrs. Chown reported for this committee that some material was now in hand, some being prepared and more requested. This material will be edited and typed and presented to the meeting next October, with estimates of printing costs. All branch members present were asked to carry back to their groups requests for articles on aspects of branch history.

The scholarship committee reported the choice of Miss Germaine L'Abbé as holder for this year. She will be studying at the Sorbonne, continuing her work in contemporary French writing, with a special emphasis on women writers.

Dr. Arliss Denyes was nominated as new member to this committee. Because of the resignation of Mrs. Tanner who would normally have had the chair this year, Miss Thibaudeau was to be asked to convene the committee for a second year.

Mrs. Sproul reported on the meetings of the Canadian Federation of University Women, and the National Council of Women. The important event of the year was to the triennial meetings of the International Council of Women, held this year in Montreal. Several Queen's graduates attended these meetings.

It was decided to make the president a Triennial Member of the Council of Women at a cost of $5.00 per year in addition to the membership fee of $10.00.

Mrs. McEwan reported for the committee on constitution. Final decisions must await changes in the Alumni Constitution following the changes now being made on the basis of fees. She gave the probable form that changes will take. These will be presented to the members before next year's meeting. The committee will also review the terms of reference of our committees and will suggest a type of constitution for new branches.

Mrs. J. W. Brooks reported on the work of the house committee of the Ban Righ Hall Board, telling of improvements in furnishings and other details. This committee by a series of teas promoted contacts between undergraduates and board members and other graduates.

All branches except London reported social activities, lectures and money-raising events.

A copy of the full minutes of the annual meeting and the reports will be sent to all branch presidents and to all members of the Alumnae Executive. If any other members wish a copy it may be obtained on application to the secretary or to the president of a branch.

OPEN HOUSE

The students are planning to hold "Open House" again in 1958. The date is Saturday, February 8, and the time 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. The event is planned and carried through by the students themselves with the support and assistance of the administrative and teaching staff.

Plans are well under way for displays and demonstrations which will be of interest to the parents, high school students, and teachers who will be visiting Queen's. Morton Low, Med. '60, Ottawa, Ont., is the general chairman.

Around the CAMPUS

●Handwriting on the wall, 103 years old—discovered recently by a tenant of Avonmore Apartments, 207 William street—recalls the days when Queen's University was in its infancy.

E. H. Wakeling took over an apartment in the historic building recently and on cleaning one of the walls preparatory to having it painted, he noticed writing in pencil with the date 1854 repeated several times. Friends advised him to ask Dr. W. E. McNeill, vice-principal emeritus of Queen's, who has an intimate knowledge of the University's history.

Dr. McNeill investigated and found from the marks on the wall of Mr. Wakeling's apartment that the room had been used by Queen's students more than a century ago. In several places the students had recorded their names and heights and had written the word "Kingston" in graceful, scroll-like writing.

One of these pencilled measurements was dated February 9, 1854, and recorded the names Squire, A. Hamilton, Evans and a fourth that was not decipherable. Squire was the tallest at five feet six and one-half inches.

Dated March 10, 1854, other measurements recorded the names of Andrew Hamilton, C. Macdonald, George Rose and Colin Macdonald.

Dr. McNeill explained that the first location of Queen's University was at 67 Colborne street, where the college opened its doors on March 7, 1842. There it remained for the first session of three months.

In the autumn Queen's College moved to a stone building on Princess street, near St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Classes were held here for two years.

The third location was at 207 William street which was used by staff and students from 1844 to the spring of 1854.

Queen's first twelve years, because of poverty and uncertainty were thus spent in three different rented properties. In 1853, however, Queen's trustees in rising hope bought "Summerhill," the spacious residence of Archdeacon George Okill Stuart, whose name, broken into five portions, survives in the names of five adjacent streets. It is now the residence of the Principal of the University and of the Principal of the Theological College, with the medical library between.

"Summerhill" became the nucleus of the expanding college. From 1854 to 1870 it accommodated all the classes in Arts and Theology and from 1855 to 1859 in Medicine as well.

"So some of the young men who wrote their names and heights in the winter of 1854 on the walls of a room at 207 William Street were among the last to be taught there, and among the first to be taught at Summerhill. Their names are recorded in the Doomsday Book of the university," said Dr. McNeill.

Ayala and Samuel Zacks Collection Shown at Art Centre

Described as one of the finest groups of modern pictures in the world today, and valued at $600,000, the Ayala and Samuel Zacks exhibition in the Agnes Etherington Art Centre during November attracted widespread interest.

After a lecture in Convocation Hall on new developments in abstract art by Sir Herbert Read a public opening was attended by a large number of art lovers. Sir Herbert said that the Zacks collection was one of those rare groups which had been chosen lovingly and with great care so that each picture was a gem.

The exhibition was opened by Mr. Zacks who said that he and his wife were delighted that the collection could be shown in Kingston. This city was the home of his birth, where he had obtained the degree of B.A. from Queen's in 1924 and the Lochead scholarship in economics.

Mr. Zacks took postgraduate work at Harvard and then joined the editorial staff of the Financial Post. After a period on the staff of the National Bureau of Economic Research, New York, he commenced a business career. He became president of textile and other companies, director of several other Canadian business organizations, and he was active in the development of the state of Israel.

Mrs. Zacks is a third generation Israeli, born in Jerusalem. She is a graduate in social science and social work of the London School of Economics, 1935. She was in Paris when World War Two started and then joined the French Underground, worked in France for a time, and later was smuggled to England where she joined the Free French. For her wartime activities she received the Croix de Guerre and the Medaille de la Resistance.

Faculty of Law Receives Valuable Law Library

A gift of unusual value and interest was received recently with the acquisition of the law library of the late Hon. W. F. Nickle, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the University from 1921 to 1931. Mr. Nickle died on November 15.

The gift was made by Hon. W. M. Nickle of Kingston, A. Gordon Nickle of Arvida, Que., Mrs. Donald McLean of

At the opening of the Zacks collection of modern pictures at the Agnes Etherington Art Centre are: Andre Bieler, professor of art, Mr. Zacks, Sir Herbert Read, and Mrs. Zacks.

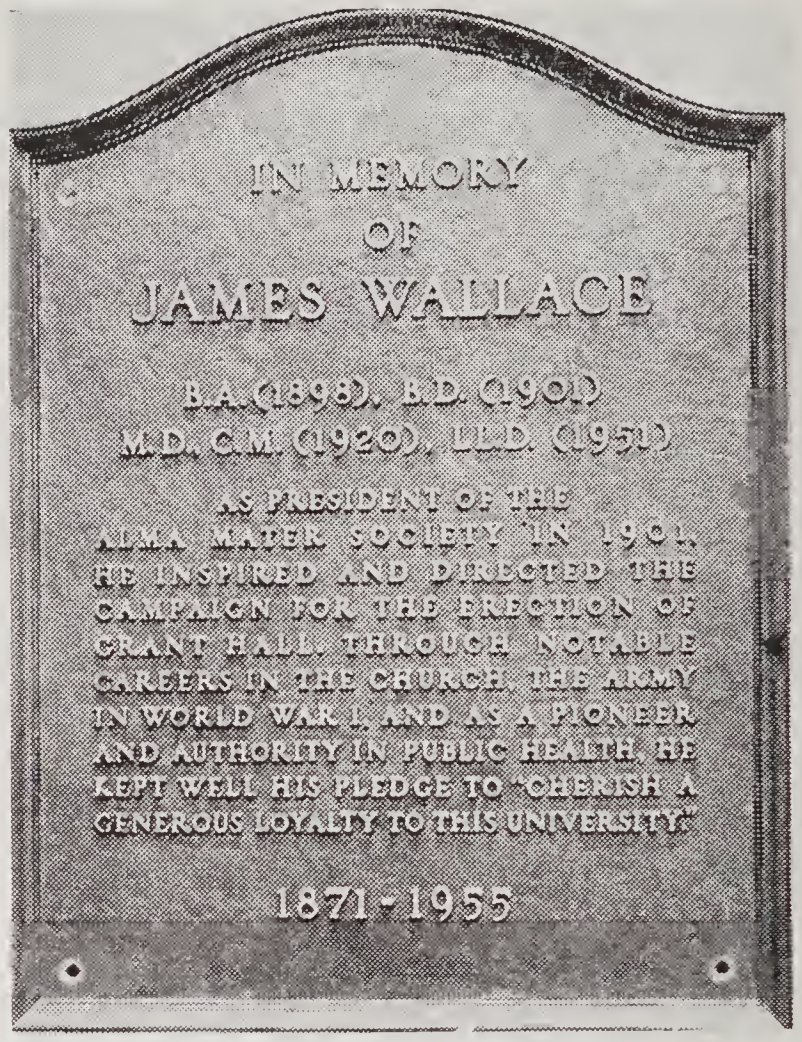

Edmonton, Alberta, and Mrs. A. Gordon Campbell of Toronto. The donors, in doing what they felt their father would have wished, thought it especially appropriate that a library so intimately connected with the history of Kingston should come into the possession of the University. They expressed satisfaction that the tools of Mr. Nickle's profession with which he had worked for over sixty years should be put in the hands of successive classes of students in the newly established Faculty of Law at Queen's. Mr. Nickle's library is one of the best private law libraries in Ontario, and unsurpassed among private libraries in Canada in its holdings of the older law reports and statutes now long out of print and indispensable for the teaching of law.

Mr. Nickle began the practice of law in Kingston in 1895, entering into partnership with the veteran lawyers, Thomas Kirkpatrick and R. Vashon Rogers, and eventually acquiring their libraries. The present collection had been built up over a period of one hundred years.

Alma Mater Society Court Punishes Nine Women Students

Nine women students who raided the Royal Military College on Hallowe'en were found guilty of conduct unbecoming members of the Alma Mater Society by the A. M. S. Court, fined $10.00 each and sentenced to ten hours' work for the Levana Society.

Defence counsel for the girls attempted to prove that the incident had been in the nature of a prank of the type that might be expected at Hallowe'en. The position taken by the Court, however, was that while the event had been harmless in itself, it had resulted in a retaliatory raid on the girls' residence by the Cadets, and there had been some danger of a repetition of such incidents. Several times over the past few years there had been an invasion of the women's residences and the Court was concerned with putting a stop to such behaviour.

PLAQUE ERECTED

Honoring the memory of the late Dr. James Wallace a plaque has been erected and unveiled in Grant Hall. Dr. Wallace, as president of the Alma Mater Society in 1901, planned, set up, and carried through successfully the project to build Grant Hall.

Dr. Wallace's record of undergraduate academic honours is believed unsurpassed in the history of the University. He earned his M.A., B.D., and M.D.,C.M. degrees at Queen's and his D.P.H. at Harvard and M.I.T., acquiring along the way all the major scholarships, prizes, and awards available.

R. B. McRuer Is President Of Brockville District

R. B. McRuer, Sc. '48, was elected president of the Brockville and District branch at the annual meeting held in the Moose Hall on November 6. Mr. McRuer succeeds G. G. Eller, Sc. '51.

Also elected were Dr. John Page, Med. '50, as vice-president; S. J. Covey, Com. '47, secretary-treasurer; and A. B. Henderson, Arts '34, G. C. McDonell, Arts '47, and L. H. Bracken, Sc. '51, directors.

Speaker of the evening was W. G. Leonard, Professor of Commerce, and Director of Professional Courses in the School of Commerce and Administration at Queen's. Mr. Leonard spoke on the value of higher education and its role in the future development of this country. He was introduced by Mr. McRuer, and was thanked by Mr. Covey.

H. J. Hamilton, Alumni Secretary, also spoke briefly. Mr. Hamilton introduced the new film, "Queen's University at Kingston."

Dr. H. A. Unruh Elected West Kootenay President

Dr. H. A. Unruh, Med. '51, Rossland, B.C., was elected president of the West Kootenay branch at the recent annual meeting. Dr. Unruh succeeds G. P. Lewis, Sc. '51, Tadanac.

Also appointed to the executive were: vice-president, Dr. C. J. M. Mackenzie, Med. '51, Trail; secretary-treasurer, J. E. Fletcher, Sc. '53, Rossland; directors—L. M. DeLong, Sc. '27, Trail; G. P. Lewis, Sc. '51, Tadanac.

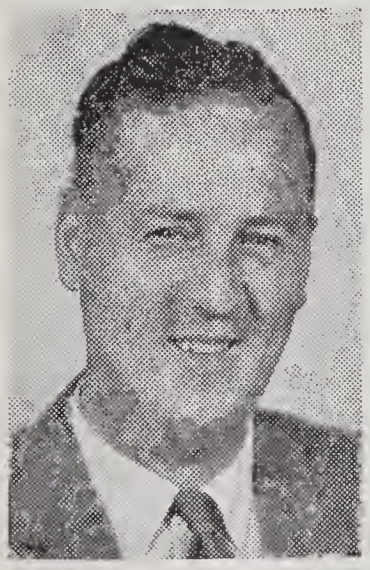

Dr. J. E. Hawley, Miller Memorial Research Professor and chairman of graduate work in the Geological Sciences, Queen's, was a guest at the meeting. Twenty-one members and friends and four visiting students were in attendance. The film, "Queen's University at Kingston," was shown and greatly enjoyed.

J. F. Whiting Elected President of Kingston Branch

J. F. Whiting, Sc. '41, was elected president of the Kingston branch at the annual dinner meeting held at Glen Arden Manor on September 28. Mr. Whiting succeeds David J. Day, Arts '49.

Also elected to the executive were: vice-president, J. F. A. Smythe, Sc. '49; secretary, Sam Kingston, Arts '49; treasurer, R. F. Browne; Alumni Fund chairman, A. R. Hazelgrove, Sc. '39; committee—Dr. E. M. Boyd, Arts '28, Med. '32, Eric Bronskill, Com. '48, Prof. I. S. Campbell, Sc. '31, Dr. L. R. Clow, Med. '45, Dr. D. J. Delahaye, Med. '50, Stewart Fyfe, Arts '49, A. E. Hyde, Sc. '37, Claude Root, Arts '55, Lloyd Woods, Arts '48.

Kingston Alumnae Dramatize Association History

A dramatic presentation of the history of the Alumnae Association was staged at the meeting of the Kingston branch in Ban Righ Hall on October 8, under the direction of Miss Belle Elliot, Arts '26. Short skits, with the performers dressed in the costumes of the period, illustrated the beginnings of the various branches across Canada.

Taking part were Miss May Macdonnell, Arts '09, Mrs. Ian MacLachlan (Sybil Spencer), Arts '26, Mrs. R. O. Earl (Olga Somerville), Arts '14, Mrs. J. H. M. Rombough (Beatrice Clendinnen), Arts '30, Mrs. A. M. Warner (Lillian Birley), Arts '12, Mrs. A. D Cornett (Jean Macalister), Arts '10, Mrs. J. S. Stewart (Myra Dyde), Arts '13, and Miss Frances Putman, Arts '55.

The president, Mrs. R. D. Bradfield (Eva Newell), Arts '26, was in the chair. The programme concluded with the serving of refreshments, by Miss Diana Blake, Arts '45, and her assistants.

Dr. William Angus Addresses Belleville and District Branch

An interesting talk on the little theatre movement and its importance in the community was given by Dr. William Angus, director of drama at Queen's at a meeting of the Belleville and District branch held at Centenary United Church, Belleville, on October 30.

Dr. Angus said that the legitimate theatre had managed to exist for 3,000 years in the face of all forms of competition and against overwhelming odds. He predicted that it would continue to prosper. The speaker neatly illustrated his points with personal reminiscences of the stage in highly entertaining fashion.

Dr. Angus was introduced by Miss Nellie Merry, Arts '13. He was thanked by Thorne Spear, Arts '29.

H. J. Hamilton, Alumni Secretary, spoke briefly regarding recent developments at the University and in the Alumni Association. A. S. Robb, Sc. '36, a director of Alumni Association, gave an account of the last Board meeting. A report of the National and Alumni funds was given by Mrs. J. H. Bateman (Helen Leslie), Arts '35.

The president of the branch, R. G. Moorman, Sc. '48½, was in the chair, and welcomed the guests. John Ross, Sc. '50, led the meeting in a spirited sing-song.

Particularly effective table decorations, with a Queen's motif, were the work of Miss Arlene Brandt and Michael Smykaluck.

Dr. W. J. Donevan Heads Up Huronia Branch

Dr. W. J. Donevan, Med. '46, was elected president of the Huronia branch at a picnic meeting held in Midhurst Park, near Orillia, on September 7. Dr. Donevan succeeds S. F. Saunders, Com. '24.

Also elected were: first vice-president, Mrs. R. E. Long (Peggy Dyer), Arts '52, Orillia; second vice-president, E. O. Nettleton, Arts '30, Barrie; Alumni Fund chairman, Miss Jessie Richmond, Arts '26, Orillia; secretary-treasurer, Miss Carol Hutton, Nursing '54, Orillia; directors—Murray Cameron, Arts '15, Huntsville; Ross MacKay, Sc. '23, Orillia; G. F. Stubbs, Sc. '48, Barrie; R. D. Marsh, Sc. '50, Orillia; Lou Morgante, Sc. '50, Orillia; Mrs. H. Drinkwater (Constance Low), Arts '07, Orillia; W. W. Baker, Sc. '28, Barrie.

Miss Olwen Davies Elected Head of Hamilton Alumnae

Miss Olwen Davies, Arts '48, was appointed president of the Hamilton alumnae at the annual dinner meeting held on October 2 at The Fountain.

Also appointed were: past president, Miss Anne Smith, Arts '22; vice-president, Mrs. H. J. Taylor (Anne Boyle), Arts '51; secretary, Mrs. W. A. Runge (Lois Cameron), Arts '52; treasurer, Miss Lois Allan, Arts '21; councillors—Miss Minnie Lenz, Arts '24, Mrs. A. F. Meiklejohn (Jean Ramsay), Arts '30,

GUEST OF HONOUR

Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, Principal, was guest of honour recently at a large gathering of Queen's graduates in Vancouver, when Eric L. Hartley, president of the alumni branch, and Mrs. Hartley were hosts at their home. Dr. Mackintosh was in Vancouver to receive an honorary degree from the University of British Columbia. Left to right, Mrs. E. C. MacPherson (Doris Hawke), president, Queen's alumnae, who helped to receive, Mr. Hartley, Dr. Mackintosh, and Mrs. Hartley.
